SHOWS IT'S EASY TO GET DRINKS AT OAK FOREST

Former Official Tells How Visitors Use 'Bottle' in Superintendent's Office.

'BLIND PIG' RUN BY INMATE

Bar Operated in Locker; Many Employes Go on Frequent "Jags."

STEWARD LIKES TO ENTERTAIN

BY OSCAR E. HEWITT.

No liquor of any kind allowed on these premises. Officers and employés especially enjoined to enforce this order.—Peter Bartsen, president of the county board.

That is the wording of a large sign posted in the main entrance of the administration building—the most conspicuous spot—of the Oak Forest infirmary. Of course, that is only a sign.

The initiated visitors at Oak Forest don't, according to Mr. Wayson, suspended assistant superintendent, believe in signs. When they become thirsty they walk through the superintendent's main office, straight into his private office, turn to their right, and open the top drawer of the filing cabinet, without every noticing the superintendent's desk.

There they usually make a pleasant discovery. Sometimes the bottle is empty, in which event they speak the charmed word to Superintendent Stein. Without instructions he will send the bottle to George Hamer, druggist, who knows the county decanter from which the superintendent desires the invigorating fluid.

Inmate Runs "Blind Pig."

Some guests have complained of the taste of the stuff to the superintendent. That was a mistake. If they had complained to the druggist he could have proved the popularity of the brand by showing a record indicating the dates when he has filled the superintendent's bottle.

In the superintendent's house he usually keeps beer. Most of his purchases are made at Blue Island, but often he gets a cargo from Tinley Park.

Inmates, employés, and modest persons do not like to go to either the superintendent's office or house. Some of them patronize Murphy, an inmate, who has been operating a "blind pig" in the locker of his ward. Murphy goes to Blue Island every Saturday for a stock of groceries, fruits, and dainties which he sells. He previously gets orders from employés so that he is certain to dispose of all he buys.

When making his purchases he gets some intimations. Last Saturday he was caught with the refreshments on him. It is said he had sixteen bottles of whisky, which were confiscated. Murphy was sent to Chicago last Monday, and has not been back to Oak Forest since.

Employes Out on "Jag."

Despite the reasonable precautions taken, the supply of liquors at the institution is inadequate at rare intervals. One of these was July 20 last. A certain officer and subordinate took a waitress and an inmate, Katie O'Hara, to Harvey for an outing.

They started in a county rig shortly after noon and returned about 11 o'clock that night. Katie, the inmate, enjoyed it immensely and told several what a dickens of a time they had.

"Sure, it was a gay time," she remarked to Superintendent Wayson. "We had all the fun we wanted—but I see by your eye there is no need of telling you all we had."

Katie left Oak Forest last week for Chicago.

Henry Lynch, assistant superintendent at Dunning, who took a fling at Dr. Frank Billings a few days ago, was assigned for three months last summer at Oak Forest. He left on Sept. 1. In his cottage next morning about 200 bottles were picked up by the nurse Katie O'Hara and John Schmeltz, a teamster. The latter hauled them to the dump.

Mr. Lynch also left a few unopened bottles of beer which Policeman Mooney took to the superintendent's house. Mr. Lynch returned to Oak Forest on Sept. 8 apparently to prepare in the same cottage for a clam bake which was held the next day. The empty bottles were again taken to the dump and the full ones to Superintendent Stein's residence.

Steward Likes to "Entertain."

The room of B. W. Conway, the steward, is located on the second floor of the administration building. He has two friends he is fond of entertaining in George M. Wheeler, clerk, and Peter Burg, food inspector, who is a brother of the county commissioner of the same name. Conway gave one of his social functions on Oct. 29 last, and Mr. Burg started to attend a party given that evening on the floor below. The next morning the latter filled twice a two bushel sack with bottles he found upstairs.

On Nov. 22 the farm boss, William T. Wellburne, and a farm hand named Albert Peterson got into an argument which resulted in the Greek gardener receiving a badly disfigured eye. The cause of the disagreement is uncertain. One story is that it was concerning their work. Another relates to refreshments. The subordinate was suspended. Superintendent Stein does not personally care much about strictly prohibition territory. He sometimes breaks away from the monotony of institutional supervision. One occasion was Aug. 5, when possibly he took a little nip. Several, including Paul H. Gerhardt, landscape gardener, thought they detected an unusual odor mixed in the superintendent's breath.

During the warm weather Check Clerk Fischer at times dropped his work to satisfy

'CAVE MAN' SLAYS WIFE AND COUSIN; HIDES IN CHURCH

Kenosha Murderer After Tragedy Stirred to Confession by Organ Music.

LAID TRAP OF VENGEANCE

Told Spouse He Wouldn't Return; Comes Back to Find Suspicions True.

WIELDS AX ON RIVAL AND SPOUSE

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Kenosha, Wis., Nov. 26.—[Special.]—The vengeance of the cave man fell upon Mrs. Rosaris Marchesi and Pasquale Marchesi when the husband, returning unexpectedly to his home last night, killed them, one after another, with a hatchet.

With their blood still fresh on his hands, he took refuge in the Holy Rosary church. The police sought and found him there today after they discovered the bodies of the wife and cousin lying side by side in the Marchesi home.

Marchesi's story, as told in a complete confession made later in the day, is that of the primitive man, the slaughterer. He suspected; he trapped; he killed. He was betrayed; he avenged himself. Cousin and wife are dead; Marchesi now awaits the law.

Tells of Laying Trap.

Marchesi is an Italian. He came to America eight years ago with his wife and two brothers. At the end of two years he moved to Kenosha. He started a small grocery. It failed, and three years ago Marchesi joined the ranks of unskilled labor.

About this time he sent for his cousin, Pasquale, then a boy of 16. Pasquale wished to come to America. He came and took up his residence with his cousin, Marchesi. The rest of the story Marchesi told—first to his father confessor, then to the police.

"For five months I had distrusted my cousin. He was too polite; too anxious to please me. Saturday afternoon I laid a trap. I told my wife I was going to Chicago, that I would not be back until late. I left the house, but I did not go to Chicago. Instead, I went to the church and helped Father Bandisonne with some work which was to be done. This took me until 7 o'clock.

"About 8, I started home. Usually, when I go home I whistle. I did not whistle Saturday night. I was thinking of something that a friend had told me. I did not go in by the door. I walked around to a window—the bedroom window. I looked in. It was as I had suspected.

Tells of Swinging Hatchet.

"They lay side by side, my cousin and my wife. Near them was my 2 months old son. In another bed lay my daughter Josephine. She is 4 years old. All slept.

"I walked to the woodshed. I knew what I wanted—a hatchet which hangs just inside the door. It swung into my hand. As quietly as possible I stole back to the window. It was open. My cousin and wife had awakened, but they did not see me. I could have touched them from where I stood. Instead I leaned over and raised the hatchet so it hung just over his head.

"'Cousin!' I whispered in Italian. He turned and saw me. Then I let the hatchet fall and jumped inside the room. My wife started to get up. I raised the hatchet again and when it fell she dropped back. Again and again I struck her—on the head, the neck, the shoulders. I thought I saw Pacquale stir and turned to him. I was determined they should live no more. The hatchet rose and fell until my wrist was tired. Then I stopped.

"I heard a sound. It was my baby, my son. He had awakened. There was blood on his night shirt. The sight horrified me. In my madness I might have killed them all. Throwing down the hatchet, I seized the baby and my daughter, who is 4 years old, and ran to the home of my brother, Frank, a block away.

Fears to Enter Brother's House.

"Everything was quiet. I told Frank I had fought with my wife. Such things happen often. He did not suspect. Leaving the children with him, I hurried back to the room. I had remembered something—the hatchet.

"The hatchet I picked up and carried back to my brother's, where I threw it away—where I knew it would be safe. I started into my brother's house, but heard the voice of my sister-in-law. She lives in the room next to mine. I feared to enter my brother's house.

"All night I wandered back and forth, in fields and on the road.

Takes Refuge in Church.

"About dawn I became cold. I shook from head to foot. Looking around I saw myself near the church. I had helped Father Bandizoane there often. Only two nights before I had left a basement window open. I wondered if it was open yet. Making sure no one was watching I walked over. The window was open. I dropped inside and laid down. It was warm and I slept.

"When I awoke feet were shuffling above my head. Outside it was daylight. I heard the organ. It was the 'choral communion.' Sweat broke out on my forehead. How often my wife and I had broken bread together—my cousin with us. For the first time I felt remorse, terrible and insistent.

"I could hardly wait for the service to finish to tell Father Bandizonne of my crime. As soon as I could I slipped up the stairs and found him. We went to the parsonage. The rest you know. I do not."

The discovery of the murder was left to Arthur Morrison, owner of the house in which the Marchesis lived. He called a little after 9 o'clock for the rent. He notified the police. It was not until Father Bandizonne informed them this morning of Marchesi's desire to confess that the police learned he had been hidden in the church.

DAWSON '11—FORTUNE HUNTER.

[Copyright: 1911: By John T. McCutcheon.]

Dear Nell: Scads has just told me the news of your engagement and I want to express my sincerest good wishes. I hope the future will be full of happiness and that all the good things in the world will be yours, as you so richly deserve. Of course, I have expected the announcement for weeks—ever since the middle of the summer when Scads showed so plainly that he was carrying about a big secret that he was almost bursting to tell me—so that now the news does not come altogether as a complete surprise. I am only surprised that I was so dull as not to suspect it even before I left home in June, but I suppose I was so excited by the prospect of my job hunting crusade in Chicago that I failed to observe the indications. It seems years since June, Nell, and what a lot of things have happened since then! I'm sure you will never realize how very much your good wishes and encouragement did for me during the first few weeks up here. There were times when I almost lost heart. Those were certainly days of failure and disappointment, though fortunately they didn't last but for a time. I hadn't the heart to write to my friends that I had failed to catch on. You have no idea how ashamed I was and how it hurt my pride to have the friends back home think that I wasn't making good. Possibly it might please you a little to know that your good wishes and encouragement did worlds of good for me and made me determined to justify myself in your opinion. I don't suppose you thought anything about it, but it made a big difference to me, and I shall never in the world forget your kindness or be able to repay it, except in the good wishes that I now send you from the bottom of my heart. I hope you'll be very happy and that some time I may see you to thank you as much as I can for being my good angel in the dark days when I was hovering on the brink of total discouragement. I had hoped to come down for Thanksgiving, but it is possible I may not be able to arrange it on account of a matter that has recently come up.

Please remember, Nell, that if there is ever anything in the world that I can do for you, you will let me know.

CHARLEY.

AGE LIMIT FOES PLAN BIG FIGHT

"Anti-45 League" Plans Fight for Jobs with Younger Men of City.

TO OPEN HEADQUARTERS.

ULTIMATUM TO EMPLOYERS.

If there is a traditional line in Chicago dividing men into two groups: Those under 45 and useful in business, and men over that age who should be at home puttering about in a garden, it should be considered this demarcation line is erased.

You should also ruminate on this: Any discharge or under payment or slighting of any worker over 45 solely on account of age will be effectively acted on by THE-ANTI-45-YEAR-AGE - LIMIT LEAGUE [Inc.].

The "Anti-45-Year-Age-Limit league" is going to begin regular meetings tomorrow night at Central Park hall, Francisco avenue and Lake street, and start a battle for jobs with younger men.

The league is not a brand new organization—just sluggish. No meeting has been held since the incorporation March 17. Undoubtedly the inactivity would have continued had not Capt. W. P. Black, president, read in THE TRIBUNE last week of the troubles of Woolsey E. Beach, 45 years old, who advertised that "the best woman in the world" was starving because he couldn't get a job.

"Our league has gone to sleep; lots of poor men must be enduring the persecution for the crime of being older than 45," exclaimed Capt. Black. "We'll rally and fight unjust employers."

To Establish Headquarters.

Capt. Black found the incorporators and members of the league were just as anxious as he to meet and "fly to the rescue." So the first meeting was called. There are to be regular meetings in the future and a headquarters is to be established where men more than 45 years old can find solace and help. In the headquarters will be an employment agency.

"There will be no fees at this agency," Capt. Black said. "We'll see that this particular economic problem of furnishing able bodied men of over 45 is taken care of."

The incorporaters are Capt. Black, Col. Edward Cecil, former State Senator W. H. Ruger, G. W. Lampkins, and Allen Tuell.

At the meeting tomorrow addresses will be made by Capt. Black, Attorney Robert Cantwell, Frank K. Wallace, Dr. James H. Flecker, and William W. Carnes.

Give Objects of League.

The objects of the league and the reason for its existence are given as follows:

"This association of men who labor for the wage that furnishes them the means of living for themselves and those dependent upon them, announce the considerations which actuate us in forming the association.

"To adopt a rule barring from employment in the productive industries of modern life is unjust, unreasonable, illogical, barbarous, and indefensible.

"UNJUST—Because it drives into the army of the unemployed a man solely because he has lived to reach the age limit arbitrarily established, and without any fault on his part.

"UNREASONABLE—Because a man at 45 is in the very meridian of his power for useful effort, with a disciplined and trained mind, and a quickened realisation of what he owes to his fellows and those dependent upon them.

"ILLOGICAL—Because the establishment and enforcement of such a limitation has a tendency to destroy worthy ambition when life's period of productive industry is but half spent, and the shadow of such a limitation disheartens and induces hopelessness.

Calls Rule "Barbarous."

"BARBAROUS—Because it ignores the fact that most workers at that age are the fathers of young, innocent, and dependent children, who are stricken cruelly, without fault on their part, by the shutting off from continued contribution to their needs those who have no greater desire than to be allowed to pursue their accustomed vocations for the sake of their children.

"INDEFENSIBLE from every point of view. These workers are so far the creatures of circumstances over which they have no control that they are worked like beasts of burden, without even the hope, save in rare and exceptional cases, of the stipend of a pension that they may receive consistently with a due self-respect."

One of the members of the league is John Carew, 35 South Dearborn street. He is 62 and has not a gray hair. He looks about 40.

Says He Can "Make Good."

Another who should be received into the league tomorrow night with Mr. Beach is J. Chapman, 3017 Wentworth avenue, who writes THE TRIBUNE as follows:

"I have been in the building line for several years and kept my end up with men who were years my junior. I am now declared by them to be too old, having worked for one firm five and one-half years and they just found out that I was too old.

"I have answered 'ads' in your valued paper for jobs such as watchman, collector, usher, man to tend door and answer questions, and work in wholesale houses, only to find that a young man is given the position.

"I have a delicate wife and a good one and the thought of her becoming a county charge is almost harrowing. Can some one give me a trial? I know I can make good."

AGED WOMAN DIES IN FIRE; LOSES WAY IN FIGHTING SMOKE

Three Firemen Overcome Also in Tenement House Blaze at 653 Liberty Street.

In a tenement fire panic last night at 653 Liberty street, Mrs. Sarah Chafman, 63 years old, a match peddler, wandered to the basement and was suffocated to death. Firemen John Riley, Thomas Coffey, and James Sullivan were overcome by smoke in getting her out, but soon recovered. Mrs. Chafman died a few minutes after her arrival at the county hospital.

The tenement is three stories. The fire was confined entirely to cordwood in the basement, but the smoke filled the house. Mrs. Chafman was on the third floor. She heard tenants of the lower floors shouting "Fire!" Without waiting for help she struck out into the blinding smoke and lost her way.

When she was almost to safety her feet found the wrong steps. Probably thinking she was still on the second floor the old woman felt her way blindly down to death.

The building is owned by Jacob Lubinsky. Six other families were forced into the street.

Liquor and cigars worth $5,000 were burned in the afternoon in a fire which destroyed the interior of the saloon of M. P. Diependach, 401-405 Rush street. The origin of the blaze was not learned.

MAINE BLOWN UP FROM WITHOUT

Members of U. S. Inspection Board Convinced That Outside Explosion Caused Disaster.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

HAVANA, Nov. 26.—The Maine inspection board will start for the United States this week. It has already been demonstrated to the members that the Maine was destroyed by an outside explosion, which occurred under the ship a little to the port of the keel between frames 28 and 30, where the outside skin was blown up and doubled over toward the starboard by the first explosion. After this the transverse armor bulkhead was blown aft from frame 24 by a second explosion and buried itself in the mud, through the hole left by the first explosion, which removed that part of the bottom of the vessel.

KARL MARX'S KIN COMMIT SUICIDE

His Daughter and Son-in-Law, Paul Lafargue and Wife, Take Lives in Paris.

MAN SOCIALIST LEADER.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

PARIS, Nov. 26.—A sensation was created among the Socialists here today by the announcement that Paul Lafargue and his wife, Laura, who was a daughter of Karl Marx, committed suicide today at Draveil, where they lived.

Lafargue was originally a Cuban. He was 68 years old. He was a noted Socialist writer and polemist. He was for a long time secretary of the French labor party. He had also been a deputy from the Nord. He took part in the congress of the Unified Socialists in Paris on Nov. 1 and at that time there was no apparent reason for his tragic end.

Lafargue Feared Old Age.

The couple possessed a comfortable fortune and no reason is known for their act beyond what was contained in a letter which Lafargue left for his nephew, in which he said that he felt age coming on and had resolved to die.

Death was caused by the injection of cyanhydric acid. It is supposed that Lafargue told his wife of his intention and that she did not care to survive him and took her life.

Suicide of Another Daughter.

Eleanor Marx, another daughter of Karl Marx, committed suicide in England in 1898, when Edward B. Aveling, whom she had expected to marry, abandoned her. Aveling, a noted Irish-English Socialist, had left his wife in 1886, and, accompanied by Eleanor Marx, made a tour of the United States.

Miss Marx was an effective public speaker as well as an attractive woman, and the couple received a good deal of attention in the United States. Eleanor Marx traveling as Mrs. Aveling. After their return to England they continued to live together.

Aveling's wife died and in 1896 he married again. When Miss Marx heard of his marriage she committed suicide. It was said that Aveling had procured poison for her and there was to be an investigation of her death, which, however, did not take place, as Aveling himself died of natural causes on Aug. 4, 1898.

FIND ANCIENT CHILD'S BODY.

Skeleton of Baby Which Lived in Glacial Period Uncovered in Cave in Hungary.

LONDON, Nov. 26.—The first skeleton of a child that lived in the glacial period has been located in the Balla cave, Hungary. The skeleton is well preserved, especially the skull, jaw, thigh bones, and the bones of the upper arm. Parts of the spine, however, and the small bones have crumbled away.

Prof. Lenhossek of Budapest, who has made an examination of the remains, has published a report in which he concludes that the child must have been about 15 months old.

The skeleton does not, of course, belong to the oldest races of which remains have so far been found; but to their immediate descendants, the so-called Mediterranean race

POLITICS MENACE TO U. S. BUSINESS, SAY TRADE CHIEFS

VIEWS GIVEN BY 19,000

Leaders of Both Parties Warned Force May Appear to Oppose "Attacks on Industry."

FUTURE HELD PESSIMISTIC BY MANY

New York, Nov. 26.—[Special.]—Ninety per cent of the business men of the country believe there is too much political agitation for the good of commerce, according to a report issued by the National Association of Manufacturers. The report is based on replies to inquiries sent over the country by the association.

The report was prepared by Henry Harrison Lewis. In order to get the widest possible expression of opinion, Mr. Lewis sent letters to 20,000 business men, and 19,000 replies were received.

"It is of interest to note," the report says, "that fully 90 per cent of the opinions expressed demand a cessation of political agitation. The belief that our industrial ills are the result of political agitation is widespread, and there is no question that our business men are determined to remove the disturbing element."

Remedies Which Are Suggested.

The questions related to business done since December, 1910, the present condition of the particular industry, and the prospects of 1912, with a request for suggestions as to the remedies. The remedies suggested were classified as follows:

Cessation of political agitation.

Cessation of tariff agitation.

Amend or improve the Sherman act.

Federal incorporation and regulation of trusts.

More national and individual confidence.

An improved system of banking and currency.

Governmental prosecution of the labor trust with all other illegal combinations in restraint of trade.

Increased export trade and rehabilitation of the American merchant marine.

Hint at Combined Opposition.

In regard to the opinions expressed as to the outlook for 1912, the report says:

"The personal statements of the contributors say that future conditions depend on the success of any preconcerted and systematic effort to check the reign of political agitation. In other words, depression as to future prosperity is a state of mind, and not a physical condition.

"The foregoing review of truths points its own moral. It affords concrete proof that industrial conditions are unsatisfactory. The inferences drawn are logical, and are borne out by the personal knowledge of practically every business man.

"The depressed business conditions really reflect a state of mind and not a fundamental weakness. This is shown by the following inventory of the nation's basic wealth:

Estimated wealth of United States	$125,000,000,000
Farm wealth	8,500,000,000
Annual crops	9,000,000,000

Opinion of All Classes.

Taking up the general situation the report says:

"That politics, played for personal motives, is the direct and menacing cause of our present unsatisfactory business conditions is practically the unanimous opinion of the 10,000 manufacturers, financiers, railroad officials, and commercial organizations.

"Manufacturers representing every industry, financiers of national reputation, important railroad officials, are practically one in their firm conviction that our business activities as a whole are suffering because politics has run mad.

"The peculiar and impressive feature of this conviction is its spontaneity. There has been no concerted effort to focus the truth. In conducting this canvass brief suggestions which may tend to improve trade conditions were all that were asked.

Ignore All Political Lines.

"The interesting thing is that this movement is nonpolitical. Party lines are ignored; these business men are neither Republican or Democratic. They care nothing for William Howard Taft or Theodore Roosevelt, Judson Harmon, or Woodrow Wilson; all they want is peace and prosperity. They want an opportunity to do business in a legitimate manner without political interference or any one of the isms of so-called progressiveness.

"Some revile Taft and fervently consign him to the limbo of political busybodies; others lay the source of their troubles to Roosevelt. Some advocate the election of a president only once in eight years, and still others pathetically suggest that the capitol at Washington be locked for an indefinite period.

"With it all, however, is a tinge of optimism and an attempt to make the best of the situation—a typical American sense of humor which lightens tragedy with almost philosophical fatalism."

Gives Warning to Politicians.

The report puts it up to the politicians to mend their ways, and says:

"It is obvious that our business interests have taken time from their respective pursuits to analyze conditions and have concluded that under no circumstances are they receiving a 'square deal.' They place the responsibility, rightly or wrongly, upon the politicians, and they believe they are right.

"They hold political activity responsible for the apparent indiscriminate and bullheaded prosecution of trusts, for the attacks on the tariffs, for the harmful uncertainty of legal enforcements, for the apparent penalizing of railways, and for the radical vagaries of national and state legislation.

"It is well for the politicians of all parties to understand that we have in this country a powerful force represented by an aggrieved business, which has determined to exercise its power at the polls. This force, held together by the bond of common interests and entirely independent of party lines, is watching both men and measures."

Many Hopeful of Future.

The strongest impression gained from the information supplied by the correspondents is that "business is unsatisfactory," and that this conviction is collective and uniform.

"Conditions of trade in all its ramifications," the report says, "sales, collections, present status, and prospects for the future, are unsatisfactory." There is this much comfort in the report:

"Behind this, however, is another impression, obtained from the opinions and suggestions contributed by the various industrial concerns. In commenting on the present status of trade a number of these expressed themselves as hopeful of the future because, in their opinion, the cause of the present trade depression has been found and a remedy surely will follow.

"Many even deprecate pessimism, believing the situation is not without its industrial advantage—that, in fact, the country needs drastic lesson as a curative for the irrational speculative part of the last decade. Others think that the business men are themselves to blame in good part and have practically invited the ills which have come upon them. And others welcome the opportunity to give a blow to the demagogic octopus which is paralyzing the nation's industries."

Depression on Luxuries.

The report contains a general analysis of the business of the country, with comments thereon. Industries directly connected with luxuries and possibly speculative improvements are the most depressed.

"Practically every industry closely allied with building of railway construction is depressed," it says. "These include structural iron and steel, lumber, paints and varnishes, cement and clay, plate and window glass, builders' hardware, woodworking machinery, and iron working machinery.

"Textiles are depressed, but not to the same extent. Finished clothing is unchanged from last year, while haberdashery shows only a slight decrease in volume of trade. This is due to the fact that clothing is necessary, and suffers only in times of the utmost depression.

"It will be seen that cotton and prints are slightly increased, while woolens remain unchanged, despite the discouraging effect of tariff agitation. Carpets and rugs, being luxuries rather than actual necessities, are, with lacings and silks, below normal.

Necessities Remain Normal.

"Industries directly connected with the manufacture of necessities such as cereals and their by-products, preserved foods, and sugar and its by-products, are practically normal, a perfectly obvious condition. Food animals and the by-products are rather below other food industries, due, apparently, to two facts, first that in times of industrial depression more grain products are consumed than meat, and second, that the packing industries just at present are inclined to pessimism because of certain well known complications.

"The leather trades, except boots and shoes, show improvement, but not to any considerable degree. Fewer boots and shoes are sold, but only because prevalent impressions of dull times create greater economy. The manufacture of belting reflects a decrease in consumption due to slackened activities in all manufacturing."

CRANE OFFERED ROOSEVELT AID?

Regular Republican Leader Wrote Colonel, Proffering Support.

SEE DESERTION OF TAFT.

Progressives Elated; Some Think Move Sign of Break in Standpat Ranks.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 26.—[Special.]—W. Murray Crane of Massachusetts is the United States senator who wrote to Theodore Roosevelt offering the support of himself and of his friends in the event that Mr. Roosevelt desires to be a candidate for the presidency next year.

This statement is made on the authority of a friend of Crane and Roosevelt, who has personal knowledge of the correspondence which passed between them on this matter.

The disclosure of Senator Crane as the author of the offer of political aid to the former president has caused excitement among the politicians of the capital. The telephone wires in Washington and between here and New York and Boston have been busy this evening with consultations of Republican party leaders concerning the effect the revelation will have on the country at large.

The importance of the intelligence arises from the fact that Senator Crane is practically the head of the regular Republican organization of the country, one of the principal directors of the management of the Republican national committee, and one of the closest, if not the chief, adviser of President Taft in all political matters.

Roosevelt's Reply a Puzzle.

Regular as well as progressive Republican leaders say that Senator Crane, if he wrote such a letter to Col. Roosevelt, must have come to the conclusion that the renomination of President Taft is impracticable from the viewpoint of party success next year, that President Taft could not be reflected if he were nominated, and that it behooves the party to select a candidate who can be elected.

There is much discussion of Roosevelt's reply to the senator. He said he was not a candidate and did not want his friends to put him forward. It is regarded as significant, however, that he did not say he would take the nomination under no circumstances. Then, if he refuses to be a candidate, there arises a further question which is bothering the politicians—will Senator Crane continue to look for a candidate whom he considers available, or will he revert to his allegiance to the president?

Coming almost on the eve of the assembling of the national committee to prepare for the approaching campaign the news of Senator Crane's move has hit the regular Republicans here with stunning effect. None of the leaders would discuss the matter for publication, but referred to the report as "astounding," "incomprehensible" and "unbelievable." On every side efforts were being made by the regulars to verify the statement.

Progressives Are Elated.

The progressive Republican leaders also were loath to discuss the incident for publication, but they did not conceal their satisfaction. From their viewpoint Senator Crane's action is the first indication of a break up among the regular Republican leaders who are being relied on to effect the nomination of President Taft.

Senator Penrose of Pensylvania and Senator Crane are recognized as the "big bosses" of the national Republican organization. Both are members of the national committee and dominate its machinery. They will select the place to hold the national convention and lay out the program the committee will follow until the nomination is made. Their power is such that they are able to put through the committee any measure they see fit to indorse.

Have Been Watching for Break.

The progressive Republican leaders have been watching for a break in the ranks of the Taft leaders. A United States senator from a state west of the Mississippi, who is one of the most conservative of the progressives, made this statement to THE TRIBUNE correspondent less than six weeks ago:

"There is no question of the unpopularity of President Taft with the people. However, it looks as if he would be renominated by the regular organization. But if Penrose and Crane decide that it is unwise to nominate a candidate who cannot be elected Taft will be thrown aside and a more available nominee selected."

The realization of the situation portrayed in that interview is what has stirred up so much excitement with the circulation of the story of the Crane letter. All the politicians are wondering whether a break in the Taft support is at hand.

On Dec. 12 the national committee will meet, and Senator Crane will be on hand to direct affairs in conjunction with Penrose. The Massachusetts senator is now the dictator of Republican politics in his own state. He almost succeeded in beating Gov. Foss for re-election. His failure was laid to the unpopularity of the Taft administration tariff policy in Massachusetts.

Letter Story Upsets Calculations.

Since the state election Mr. Crane has been taking up matters relating to the presidential campaign. He has been in correspondence with national Republican leaders throughout the country. But he has been keeping his plans a profound secret. It was expected that the first inkling of his policy would be disclosed at the national committee meeting. Now the letter story has upset all calculations.

Kenosha Slayer, His Child, and 2 Victims.

The woman shown in the photograph is Mrs. Rosaris Marchesi, one of the Kenosha, Wis., murder victims. The man standing is a cousin, Pasquale Marchesi, also killed by the woman's husband, who is the man sitting down. The baby is the slayer's child that he took when he fled after the tragedy.

COLONEL TO SUPPORT NO ONE?

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 26.—[Special.]—The North American says that Col. Roosevelt within the last three days has stated to its representative that he will not support any man for the nomination for the presidency in 1912, neither Mr. Taft nor any one else. As to the persistent suggestions that he had designs upon the nomination himself, Col. Roosevelt was equally emphatic and explicit, according to the newspaper. He declared he was not in the remotest sense a candidate for the nomination and that he declined and deplored all such suggestions.

CAPTURE MANY AUTO SPEEDERS

Motorcycle Squad Lands 22 Drivers in Hyde Park—Range from 26 to 40 Miles.

Twenty-two alleged automobile speeders were arrested yesterday by the police of the Hyde Park station. Motorcycle policemen who made the arrests, declare that the men were driving from twenty-six to forty miles an hour when caught.

C. Neilson, 2946 South Park avenue, a merchant, was arrested while taking a minister to the Chicago Beach hotel to perform a wedding ceremony. He pleaded with his captor to allow him to continue.

The policeman accompanied them to the hotel, witnessed the wedding, and then took his prisoner to the station.

Members of the North Shore Congregational church decided yesterday that they had been a bit too hard on Coroner Hoffman a week before when they adopted resolutions criticising the coroner's office for laxity in conducting inquests in cases of deaths caused by reckless automobile drivers.

So they adopted another resolution modifying the first and ending "we censure and condemn the gross injustice of many verdicts exonerating the owners and occupants of the machines."

The Rev. Ainslee, pastor of the church, explained this action by stating the first resolution sought to awaken public sentiment and obtain petter protection for pedestrians. The amended resolution passed by a bare majority.

PASSION FOR SNEAKING KISSES LANDS BOY IN JUVENILE COURT.

Kansas City Youngster Osculates Too Freely, Says Teacher, but Victims Never Objected.

Kansas City, Mo., Nov. 26.—[Special.]—Oliver Smith, 14 years old, must be careful about his manner of kissing girls hereafter, and always act on the defensive, because if he should be the aggressor it might be the means of sending him to the reform school.

Oliver lives in Turner, Kas., a village about six miles west of here. He was in the Wyandotte county Juvenile court yesterday.

"He will persist in kissing the girls," Miss Arnold, the teacher, said. "Several times I have caught him running up behind the girls and kissing them while they were on the way home after school. I have whipped Oliver, warned him to stop the practice, and finally had to take him to the principal."

The truant officer testified to the same thing.

"Did the girls ever protest against this promiscuous habit of kissing by Oliver?" Judge Sims asked the complaining witnesses.

"Well," the principal said, "now that I think about it I don't believe that I ever heard any of them say anything about it."

Oliver was made a ward of the court and paroled. He must report every Saturday.

G. O. P. Newspaper Men Split on Deneen and Congressional Indorsement.

PROGRAM STRIKES SNAG.

Promise of Big Attendance Causes Change in Plans at Springfield.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Springfield, Ill., Nov. 26.—[Special.]—The Illinois Republican editors—or as many of them as are on the ground early—have determined to indorse the administration of President Taft and the senatorial career of Shelby M. Cullom.

They will meet in convention tomorrow afternoon at the state house and they are in two hostile camps over the proposal to further indorse the administration of Gov. Deneen specifically and to add to the resolutions an indorsement of the entire Republican delegation in congress from Illinois, including the junior senator, William Lorimer.

The executive committee, meeting tonight, found that a storm had sprung up when the scope of the backers of the convention became known, and the proposed program struck a snag.

In Nature of Massmeeting.

Clarence E. Snively of the Canton Register, president of the association, said tonight the convention would not be held as a formal meeting of the Republican Editorial association of Illinois, which is an organization including all of the Republican editors of the state. He said it had been called by the executive committee of the association, but that the convention sessions tomorrow and Tuesday would be in the nature of a massmeeting, which would be free to take whatever action it might find proper.

Gov. Deneen has many newspaper friends, some of whom are members of his administration. They are on the way to the capital, or already here, ready to protest, it is said, against any set of resolutions which may be construed as representing the sentiment of the Republican press of the state and slapping the administration of Gov. Deneen, which, they argue, will form the basis of the coming state campaign, from the standpoint of the Republican organization.

Yates Men Against Indorsement.

Standing against any indorsement at this time of any particular candidate for governor by the convention, the newspaper allies of former Gov. Yates arrived tonight, insisting that there be a free chance for all comers and no indorsement of any person at this juncture.

Gov. Deneen's friends have not taken an active hand in the proceedings, beyond stirring around and suggesting that a luke warm indorsement of the governor will not be satisfactory, and that if there is to be a general indorsement of the national and other Republican administrations, there must be included a hearty boost for the state administration.

Lorimer Men Get Setback.

The understanding tonight is that Senator Lorimer's friends are not anxious about trying to push through a resolution giving him explicit indorsement. They came down from Chicago to find that certain downstate editors who have always been strong anti-Deneen men are refusing to sanction anything which savors of sympathy for Lorimer at this time.

"We do not think any more of Lorimer than we do of Deneen," was the comment of one of the governor's opponents, who has been considered a strong supporter of Senator Lorimer.

RIBE FOR THE TRIBUNE.

DOG-WOLF GONE; DEATH IN TRAIL

Strange Blight Falls Upon Family with Advent of Hybrid Animal.

EVIL GENIUS NOW LOST.

Woman, Sole Survivor, Tells of Series of Fatalities Following Her Finding of Mongrel.

With the disappearance last week of a small black hybrid—half dog, half wolf—there developed a story of a strange series of fatalities in the family of Miss Myra Edwards, a trained nurse of 3806 Ellis avenue. One by one her father, her mother, two brothers, and five sisters—nine in all—have died. When at last it halted with the death of the mother only Myra Edwards and the dog-wolf remained alive.

The dog vanished on Nov. 14 while its mistress was in the grip of typhoid fever. It has not been seen since. Miss Edwards is now on the way to recovery, but her physicians fear that worry over the loss of the strange animal will drive her into a relapse. To her it was the only living reminder of the days when the family numbered not one but ten.

Death on Heels of Death.

This was four years and six months ago. The first death occurred a week after the advent of the dog-wolf into the Edwards home, then at 6327 Monroe avenue. The eight others followed within twenty-eight months.

For ten days Miss Edwards has had the police, private detectives, friends, and other agencies searching for it. She says she would give all she owns—a life competence—for the dog-wolf's return. But the dog-wolf comes not. It is gone into mystery as deep as that from which it sprung.

The following advertisement from THE TRIBUNE will convey an idea of Miss Edwards' anxiety:

DOG—LOST—SMALL, BLACK, WITH BROWN face and stomach; little lame on right hind leg; reward $50. 3806 Ellis-av.

No one has claimed the reward. Miss Edwards says she would give double the amount merely to know that the dog is alive.

"I must have him back," she said yesterday to a visitor at her home. "It seems foolish, but he is all that I have left. Think of it. And four years ago there were ten of us." She leaned back—tall, sorrow worn—then touched her hand to something hanging from the dresser.

Found Dog in Mountains.

"His muzzle. They found it the next day. That's what makes me think he was stolen. I can't guess why any one would want him.

"I found the dog in a peculiar way. It was in March, 1907. I was traveling in Scotland. In the mountains near Aberdeen I ran across 'Collie'—that's his name. He was huddled up under a furze bush. You couldn't have told whether he was a dog or a wolf, for he was only a few days old. He tried to fight when I picked him up, but he didn't have the strength. I carried him back to town, and when I left for York, England, a few days later, Collie went with me.

"When he was a month old he looked more wolf than dog. His nose was long and pointed. His haunches turned silver-brown, at least half black, half red. Some friends told me he was half dog, half wolf. They said I couldn't tame him. Others said there were no wolves in Scotland except in zoos. I didn't pay a great deal of attention to any of them. I was satisfied.

List of Fatalities Long.

"In May I sailed for home. From New York to Chicago I sat most of the time in a baggage car, the puppy in my lap, because the train crew would not let it ride in a passenger coach.

"One week after my arrival in Chicago my sister Myrtle was killed in Iowa by an automobile. Six months later, my oldest brother, Frank, was caught by a cave-in during the Illinois Tunnel company strike."

After that the record reads:

Feb. 22, 1908—Lizzie and May Edwards drowned; fell through ice while skating on English river at Riverside, Ia.

August, 1908—Leo Edwards, a brother, fell from carpenter's scaffold in Denver, Colo.; killed instantly.

Oct. 4, 1908—Eugene Edwards, father; died from pneumonia.

November, 1908—Rose Edwards died from diphtheria.

Feb. 8, 1909—Edith Edwards died from pleurisy.

Oct. 3, 1909—Mrs. Eugene Edwards, mother; died from injuries received in runaway.

Dog's Howls Save Her.

Thus in two years and four months Miss Edwards was stripped of her last immediate relative. Even the dog-wolf came home one night dragging a broken leg. It healed, but he remained lame. For the next desolate year he limped to the cemetery every day with his mistress, sitting with her through long hours of twilight until the cemetery guards coaxed them away.

"He was my only comfort then," his mistress explained, "and when I was taken sick three months ago I suppose he saved my life. I fainted. When I was convalescent they told me that Collie had scratched and howled at the door until the janitor opened it. I had been unconscious, the doctor said, for several hours."

That is all. The dog-wolf is gone. Miss Edwards is recovering. For once death has passed the family by.

MAN LONG MISSING SLAIN; BODY FOUND IN OLD BARN.

William Golterman of Lombard Discovered by Relative Hanging to Nail—Bullet in Back of Head.

William Golterman, missing from Lombard for several weeks, was found dead in an abandoned cow shed on the Knoop farm, three miles southwest of Lombard, yesterday. The body was suspended to a nail driven in a chimney. A wire had been used for a noose. A hole such as would have been made by a bullet was found in the back of the head.

The cow barn had not been used for years and no one had entered it for months, the Knoop family declares. One of the Knoops, searching for a strayed cow, entered the barn, which is half a mile from the farmhouse, to climb upon the roof so as to scan the fields. The body was found in the loft.

Coroner R. B. Olson of Lombard was summoned, and after finding the wound in the man's head he notified the sheriff and prosecuting attorney of Dupage county. Arrangements were made for an autopsy.

BATTLES WITH A BURGLAR.

Man Finds Robber in His House and Is Hit on Head with Billy—Thief Escapes.

David L. Hughes, 2750 Warren avenue, encountered a burglar in his house last night. During a struggle he was struck on the head with a billy. The burglar escaped. He got no plunder.

Bloodhounds That Captured Thief, and the Long Trail.

Jessie and Nick are two Russian bloodhounds, the services of which have been retained by the Chicago Telephone company. They are part of a flying squadron, the other components of which are a high power automobile and five deputy sheriffs, engaged in the business of running down wire thieves. Their latest exploit was the capture of a man who gave the name of Fred Bailey and was alleged to have stolen $400 worth of copper wire from the telephone corporation.

The dogs trailed the man from Desplaines to a saloon near Rogers Park. The map shows the course pursued.

NEGRO ROBS WOMAN AT NIGHT

Rips Bosom of Her Dress to Secure Jewels She Conceals.

ANOTHER VICTIM IN HOTEL.

Man Takes Mrs. Solomon's Valuables and Leaves Her Gagged.

Mrs. Sadie Russell was held up by an unidentified negro early yesterday morning near her residence at 3541 Michigan avenue. She was robbed of jewelry she values at $1,080 and a purse containing $20. The negro tore away her clothing to secure jewelry concealed in the bosom of her dress.

Mrs. Russell is the wife of Alphonse Russell. She stopped with some friends at her husband's saloon, 3459 South State street, late on Saturday night. Mrs. Russell decided to walk the short distance home alone.

She had gone a little more than a block east from State in Thirty-fifth street when a negro jumped from an alley at the De La Salle institute. He seized her by the throat with one hand and thrust the muzzle of a revolver against her breast with the other.

Threatens Her with Death.

"Don't make a sound or I'll kill you," he cautioned.

Mrs. Russell raised both hands to her breast, instinctively guarding the bag of jewels. The negro tore her hands away, ripped her clothing, secured the bag, and disappeared up the alley.

The police believe the robbery was committed by one of a gang of young negroes, companions of Claude Taylor, 17 years old.

Bound and Gagged in Hotel.

Mrs. Rose Solomon, 1121 Fullerton avenue, told the police early in the morning she had been bound, gagged, and robbed in a room at Vencedor hotel, 516 South Wabash avenue.

Mrs. Solomon said she met a man, well dressed and about 45 years old, in front of a moving picture show near Monroe in State street. She accepted his invitation to drink with him, and later at dinner with him at a downtown café. Then she accompanied him to the Vencedor hotel.

"The moment we entered the room he seized me, tied me hand and foot, and stuffed a towel in my mouth," Mrs. Solomon said. "I was so afraid he would kill me I let him take the change in my purse and a pair of diamond earrings worth $200. Then he left me. When the maid came to the room she gave me 50 cents for car fare and asked me not to report the attack to the police."

Miss Margaret Taubert was attacked by a man early in the day near her residence, at 2003 North Forty-fourth avenue. She is 19 years old. She said he tried to take her handbag, but finally ran away.

An attempt to attack Mrs. Charles Munson, 2144 Avondale avenue, was made by a man at 6:30 o'clock last evening near North Whipple street and Avondale avenue.

"BATHHOUSE JOHN" WANTS POSTERITY TO HEAR VOICE.

Alderman Would Like Historical Society to Have Phonograph Record of His Ballad.

Future generations will hear the voice of Ald. John J. Coughlin if the Chicago Historical society accepts a phonograph record which the bard will make of his famous ballad, "Dear Midnight of Love."

"It's up to the Historical society whether my voice is to be handed down to posterity," said the First ward alderman last night.

"The suggestion has been made to me by several of my colleagues in the city council, and if the Historical society will stand for a rendition of my 'Dear Midnight of Love' I'll do the warble act. I'll write to the society."

DREAM OF ACCIDENT TRUE.

Evanston Conductor Loses Right Foot, Then Tells of Having Been Forewarned in Vision.

A dream that he would meet with an accident came true to Stephen J. Campbell, 1128 Maple avenue, Evanston, last evening. He is a conductor for the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad and got in the way of a coach. His right foot was cut off.

"I dreamed I would be injured in an accident," he told the police who picked him up. "I don't understand how I got under the wheels."

Paul Schultz, 23 years old, 825 Monroe avenue, was killed in the evening by a Chicago and Northwestern train at the Wisconsin avenue station. He had been married recently.

While "tipping" a car on the Pennsylvania railroad at West Harrison street John Hartman, 14 years old, was thrown under a train and lost his left leg. His right ankle also was crushed.

ALDERMAN IN FIST FIGHT WITH "BOSS" OF LITTLE ITALY.

B. F. Clettenberg and John Durso, Ex-Pugilist, Have Battle on Street—Former Receives Two Blows on Jaw.

Ald. B. F. Clettenberg of the Twenty-second ward and John Durso, once known in the prize ring as "Young Russo," had a fight yesterday at the corner of Oak and Larrabee streets.

Durso is the man who created a scene at the inquest over the body of Ald. Bauler on Saturday. He is a bailiff, lives at 1012 Milton avenue, and is known as a political boss among his compatriots in "Little Italy." He could not be found yesterday. His friends said he "needed sleep."

"I left my real estate office at 1011 Larrabee street about noon and walked toward Oak street," said the alderman. "I passed Durso just as I reached the corner. I nodded to him and he responded in vigorous language.

"I reproved him. Then he swung at me, first with one hand and then with the other. One blow struck on the left side of my jaw and another on the other. I wasn't hurt at all, but when he started another swing I jumped back. He swung so hard that he spun round on his feet when he missed and fell down. Then I put my hand on him to hold him there.

"Some of my friends came up. They helped him to his feet and escorted me down Oak street. That's all there was to it—except Durso's language."

ARREST ACTOR AS A SWINDLER.

Accused by Girl of Getting $25 on Promise of Position Which She Did Not Secure.

Franklin Clifford, an actor, living at the Hotel Mayer, East Twelfth street and South Wabash avenue, was arrested yesterday on the charge of obtaining money by a confidence game from Miss May Krouse, 3554 Belden avenue. She claims Clifford agreed to secure her a position of piano player on payment of $25. She said she paid him the money, but failed to get the position.

SMUGGLER OF CHINESE SLAIN

Agent for "Trust," Dying, Reveals Secret Hiding Place.

FOUR ALIENS CAPTURED.

Dragged from Space Over Vestibules of Baggage Cars.

In the capture yesterday in Chicago of four Chinamen who had been smuggled across the Mexican border in a baggage car of the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific railroad and the killing of an agent of the "importers" the crusade of the federal government against the "smuggling trust" which has imported thousands of Chinese laborers into the United States progressed a long step.

The four aliens were found stowed away in the spaces over the vestibules of the baggage car in the Gresham yards by special policemen of the railroad. The car had been attached to a train which arrived from El Paso, Tex., a few hours before. The Chinamen were dragged from their hiding places and turned over to the police. They will be surrendered to the federal authorities today.

Wounded Agent Reveals Secret.

An ante-mortem statement made by Emil Hagenbeck, agent of the smugglers, who had been shot by a railroad watchman while prowling about the railroad yards on Wednesday night, led officials of the road to order a strict lookout for smuggled Chinese. Before his death, Hagenbeck confessed he had been trying to locate a car in which two Chinamen were secreted. Railroad agents obtained the number and traced the car to the yards at Gresham. But the Chinamen referred to had escaped. The steel plates over the vestibules had been removed and replaced. In the spaces were found empty water bottles and scraps of food.

It is believed other agents of the smugglers accomplished the work of liberation in which Hagenbeck failed. How the trick was done was shown by articles found in Hagenbeck's pockets. He was equipped with a large screw driver, used to remove the plates, a revolver, and a hand electric flashlight.

Formerly a Train Cook.

It was learned he formerly had been a dining car cook in the employ of the Rock Island, and in this way had become familiar with the construction of the baggage cars and the spaces that might be used to smuggle aliens across the border.

H. D. Ebey, Chinese inspector in the immigration service, put the captured aliens through a long line of questioning through Edward B. Kan, official interpreter.

"It would hamper the work of the government if we were to reveal what we learned from the men at this time," said Inspector Ebey. "We believe a great number of Chinese have been smuggled across the Mexican and Canadian borders in this way."

TYPHOID DANGER ON NORTH SHORE

Evanston Physicians and Other Citizens Meet to Agree on Emergency Remedies.

UP TO DRAINAGE BOARD.

Wilmette, Also in Peril, Wants Sewage Outlet Made in Sanitary Canal.

Evanston physicians are warning residents of that city that an epidemic of typhoid fever is imminent. They are arousing citizens to demand of the drainage canal trustees relief from unsanitary conditions, the effects of which, they say, already is being reflected in the Evanston death rate.

Evanston residents are drinking "raw sewage," according to the Evanston branch of the Chicago Medical society. Analysis shows pollution of the drinking supply is increasing daily. The situation is so serious in the eyes of the medical society that at a meeting tomorrow evening physicians and other citizens of Evanston will consider emergency remedies.

Prof. W. Lee Lewis, Evanston's city chemist, reported at the recent meeting of the Evanston Medical association branch that of the twenty-six cases of typhoid reported since Oct. 1, 90 per cent of the victims had been using the city water. The lake water near the intakes for the water mains is so filled with sewage, it is said, that it is abominable even to swimmers.

Want Outlet Into Canal.

The only remedy, the physicians assert, is another method of disposing of the city's sewage. A temporary relief could be afforded by a disinfectant system by which the sewage could be purified in a measure before being dumped into the lake. This, however, is only a makeshift, the experts say, and the diversion of the sewage into the drainage canal is the most desirable plan.

Evanston, the citizens point out, already has contributed $300,000 to the drainage trustees, and pays money into the canal treasury every year without receiving any benefit therefrom. Now, they assert, the trustees should come to Evanston's aid and share the expense of constructing intercepting sewers which will carry the waste from Evanston into the drainage canal.

The north shore city already is almost at the limit of its bonded indebtedness. It is believed the courts would not permit any special assessment by which the intercepting sewers might be built by the city alone.

Wilmette Also in Danger.

Wilmette, which gets its water supply from Evanston, although it uses the canal for drainage, is in the same peril of an epidemic as is Evanston, and yet contributes a considerable sum annually to the drainage board. Residents of Wilmette also are prepared to petition the drainage trustees to alleviate conditions at Evanston.

Some Evanstonians are advocating the erection of a filtration plant to cost $250,000, thereby putting Evanston in a position where, if Chicago objects to the contamination of the lake water by Evanston sewage, the city can say:

"If you want Evanston sewage diverted, do it yourself."

Others, however, favor applying the $300,000 to the construction of drainage connections. It is probable the former course will be advocated by the physicians. The $250,000 can be raised by increasing the water rates, if necessary.

Sue to Stop Drains.

Suits to enjoin the draining of sewage into the northwest branch of the Chicago river by villages along its banks and in adjacent territory are being prepared by the Northwest Sanitary Drainage association. The suits will be filed in the Superior court this week by Attorney P. R. Barnes.

The suits will allege that the drainage of sewage into the river is a nuisance and a menace to public health. The association was organized in October to obtain adequate sanitary drainage in that part of the sanitary district.

The suits are brought primarily to prevent operation of a sewage system at Morton Grove, nearing completion, and the carrying out of similar plans at Shermerville and other points.

HAS A BUSINESS 'DECALOGUE'

The Rev. Millard Offers Commandments for Merchants.

FALSE LABELS STEALING.

Calls Political Corruption Treason; Charges Starvation Wage Fosters Vice.

TEN COMMANDMENTS FOR MERCHANTS.

I. Thou shalt not corner the people's bread.

II. Thou shalt not put more on the label than there is in the can.

III. Thou shalt not coin the blood of thy neighbor's child into gold in order that thine own children may swell the ranks of the idle rich.

IV. Thou shalt not underpay thy female employés so that they be driven to sell their virtue.

V. Thou shalt not maim or destroy a workman with thy machinery or wear out his strength in building up thy fortune and send his family to the poorhouse.

VI. Thou shalt divide fairly with thy employés the product of thy joint labors and shalt not take refuge behind the law of supply and demand to lower wages and shorten hours.

VII. Thou shalt not use thy vote as director to order a corporation to do what thou thyself wouldst not do openly in the sight of all men.

VIII. Thou shalt not rent thy property to white clad drink dispensers, scarlet women, or blacklegs, neither shalt thou plead ignorance when thy agent pays over golden tribute from the underworld.

IX. Thou shalt not buy legislators, corrupt judges, nor intimidate executives.

X. Thou shalt not denounce anarchy in a red shirt for violating law and wink the other eye when big business, in silk hat and broadcloth, violates law.

The merchant who sells short weight packages, captains of industry who swell their fortunes through the toil of underpaid employés and children, heads of corporations who purchase legislation and corrupt the judiciary, all were paid respects by the Rev. William B. Millard, pastor of the Morgan Park Congregational church, yesterday. The pastor supplemented his "ten commandments" to parents, to sons, and to daughters with another series for business men.

Property Owners Wink at Vice?

"A man who uses a dishonest label in business is guilty of obtaining money under false pretenses," declared the minister. "Cornering the market and charging all the traffic will bear' are merely matters of discriminating robbery."

"A member of the vice commission told me that some of the owners of property rented for disreputable uses are enrolled in the 'Blue Book,' 'Who's Who,' and fashionable church registers.

"Think of the terrific strain which is put on the moral principles of a young woman who is compelled to work hard for $5 or $6 a week, with the glittering temptation of 'easy money' always before her."

"Something Rotten" in Illinois.

The Lorimer investigation and the police gambling shakeup are handled in the following:

"Without anticipating the verdict of the commissions which are investigating the election of the junior senator from Illinois and the police force of this city, it is not unwarranted to suggest that if Hamlet should reappear he would not have to go to Denmark to find something rotten.

"Corruption of officials of government should be regarded as treason. The insolence of the rich in playing fast and loose with the laws of the land, and the almost insuperable difficulty of convicting a rich man of any crime in any court are together doing more to breed disrespect for law than all the speeches of flaming tongued anarchists."

SAYS ROCKHILL PASSED UP JEWS

Interviewer Claims American Ambassador to Russia Opposed Passport Question.

COMMERCE HIS REASON.

Jewish Committee Gives Out the Report in Reply to Declaration of Taft and Knox.

New York, Nov. 26.—[Special.]—The American Jewish committee that has been agitating the unfair discrimination by Russia against American Jewish holders of passports in Russian territory, gave out for publication today what purports to be an interview with Herman Bernstein, a newspaper writer, obtained last May from William R. Rockhill, then ambassador of the United States to Russia.

In this interview Bernstein quotes Rockhill as having said that the passport question is not important and that he "can't understand why the American Jews are so keen on the passport question."

Cause of Publication.

Bernstein says that he did not publish his interview with the ambassador at the time and would not have published it at all were it not that the state department at Washington gave out on Nov. 18 a semi-official statement which said that President Taft and Secretary Knox had instructed Ambassador Rockhill to do his utmost to change the attitude of the Russian government toward American passports held by Jews. He then proceeds to quote what Rockhill said to him on May 20 of this year, as follows:

"The passport question is not an American question. Too much fuss is made about the passport question. To be frank, it is bad policy to force this passport question on Russia. In time Russia will settle it itself.

"Parsons and Bennett were wrong when they said that Russia needs us more than we need Russia. Parsons said that our commercial interests here are insignificant. He is mistaken. We need Russia more than it needs us. We, who are so clumsily struggling for new markets everywhere, need Russia.

Have Identical Interests.

"We are interested in improving the cotton fields here and in building grain elevators. We have the same interests as Russia has in Japan.

"Russia is favorably inclined toward American capital and enterprises, also, for the reason that its credit is almost exhausted with France—that is, not exactly exhausted, but Russia does not want to tie itself to the European powers. It has credit and interests in England and in Germany, but for the future the interests of Russia are destined to be with the United States.

"Personally," added Mr. Rockhill, "I can't understand why the American Jews are so keen on the passport question. It is not an important question. It would not be wise to press the matter just now."

URGES POLISH-AMERICANS TO UPHOLD NATION'S LAWS.

Election Commissioner Czarnecki Also Asks Countrymen to Fight Divorce and Radicalism.

Polish-Americans were urged to uphold the laws of their adopted country by Election Commissioner Athony Czarnecki at a mass meeting at Throop and West Fifty-second streets yesterday. Nearly 1,500 Poles gathered to observe the anniversary of Poland's struggle for independence in 1830.

"It is the duty of the Polish people here in their chosen country to protect and maintain the ideals upon which this country is founded," said Mr. Czarnecki. "The purity of the home, respect of law and authority, and the fighting of the evils of divorce and destructive radicalism are especially calling the attention of the Polish people. The purity of the ballot box holds the attention and has the support of the Polish-Americans as a sacred duty."

Other speakers were the Rev. L. Grudzinski, B. F. Kowalewski, and Leon Mallek, director of the Polish National alliance.

Child Hurt by Fall Off Wagon.

Christina Marvabt, 9 years old, 2622 South Fifty-sixth avenue, Cicero, was severely injured yesterday when she was thrown from a wagon driven by her father. The wagon was dashed into a pole.

Here's Another Chance for "Good Fellows"

THE TRIBUNE again will undertake this year the work of putting the Good Fellows of Chicago in touch with the children who otherwise would have no merry Christmas.

Plans for securing the names and addresses are systematized. Everything is ready. If you won't or can't follow Good Fellow's advice, THE TRIBUNE will do your shopping, but you'll enjoy it more if you do it yourself. And do it early. Last year 3,000 Christmases were in danger up to Christmas eve.

Here is how you can join the lodge of Good Fellows. Write a letter to "Santa Claus," care of THE TRIBUNE, something like this:

"I live at No.....street. I will be Santa Claus to (any number you wish) children. JOHN JONES."

The letter will go to Santa Claus. He will indorse on it the names and addresses of the children. That letter will be remailed to you. There will be no publicity. Then you get busy. That's all.

END RUSSIAN TREATY, PLEA

Dr. Joseph Stolz Wants Congress to Give Czar Year's Notice.

JEWS BARRED FROM EMPIRE.

Speaker Says Protests Were Made as Long Ago as 1882.

A plea for the abrogation of the Russian treaty of 1832 because of oppression of Jewish citizens of the United States yesterday was voiced by Dr. Joseph Stolz at the Isaiah temple, Vincennes avenue and Forty-fifth street.

Dr. Stolz asked for mass meetings and nation wide efforts to induce congress to give Russia the customary year's abrogation notice. He said in part:

"About eighty years ago, during the administration of Andrew Jackson, Russia and America entered into a treaty providing a reciprocal liberty of commerce and navigation and a mutual liberty of sojourn and residence, and equal security and protection to the inhabitants of the two countries.

Holds Russia Violated Treaty.

"During the first half of this period Russia made absolutely no distinction between all Americans who sought to enter her territory. But during the second half of the period she has been systematically discriminating against American citizens of the Jewish persuasion, whether they be native or naturalized.

"Every president, every secretary of state, every ambassador to Russia has protested as long ago as 1882—thirty years ago. Congress already has passed resolutions of protest, and it has repeated the process seven times.

Recalls Stand of Parties.

"In their platforms both political parties have taken an unequivocal stand. And what is Russia's answer to our political parties, our congressmen, our ambassadors, our secretaries of state, our president?

"Is it not time for Chicago to make her voice heard in tones so loud and emphatic that our senior senator, chairman of the committee on foreign relations, may understand what is the wish of this, the second largest city in the union?"

NEW FACTOR IN VERMILYA CASE.

Police Find Witness Who Says Woman Had Poison Box Many Weeks Ago.

The inquest into the death of Policeman Arthur Bisonette, last of the nine alleged poison victims of Mrs. Louise Vermilya, will be held at the Twenty-second street police station this morning, regardless of whether the accused woman is able to leave her cot in the county jail hospital.

Detectives Flynn and Murphy have found a witness to swear that the poison "pepper box" had been in Mrs. Vermilya's possession for weeks previous to its discovery through her attempt to commit suicide while under police surveillance. Attorney Joseph Burres, representing the prisoner, was planning to show that the box was placed in Mrs. Vermilya's kitchen by an enemy.

This witness, the police say, formerly was intimate with the prisoner's private affairs and was a frequent visitor at the Twenty-ninth street flat. One day the witness used the pepper box, thinking it contained talcum. Her face started to smart and she told Mrs. Vermilya. First, Mrs. Vermilya, according to the police, tried to convince her visitor that the box contained face powder, and then she laughed at her discomfiture and said it was roach powder.

Woman Arrested as Insane.

Mrs. Isabella Wells, who says she has a husband and daughter living in Chicago, was arrested yesterday in Buffalo, N. Y. She appeared to be insane. She could give no address except Halsted street. She said she had left her husband last Thursday.

GROGAN CALLS MAYOR TARGET

West Side "Boss" Charges Vice Inquiry Is "All a Plot."

MAY GO ON STAND TODAY.

Levine Called Tool in Conspiracy to Discredit Harrison.

"Barney" Grogan, west side Democratic leader and saloon-keeper, accused of being a collector of vice tribute for the police, hopes to take the witness stand before the civil service commission today and "prove" himself to be a genuine reformer, who has been trying to purge his district of evil.

Incidentally Grogan is sanguine of shattering the entire investigation by "proving" that "unworthy enemies" of Mayor Harrison have formed a conspiracy and forced themselves forward as witnesses for the sole purpose of discrediting the present administration.

Grogan will be called providing the attorneys who represent Inspector Dorman, Lieut. Ambrose, and Lieut. Howard, whose trials will be resumed this morning, finish their cross-examination of Levine.

Calls Inquiry a Farce.

"The investigation becomes farcical when such creatures as Levine, Ben R. Hyman, and Harry Brolaski are given free rein on the witness stand," declared Grogan yesterday. "The conspiracy shows on the face of it it's a scheme to discredit Harrison and his friends. Such fellows will swear to anything.

"I will explain this whole situation on the witness stand. Levine is posing as a suffering citizen driven to the wall by a cruel police force. As a matter of fact, he is worth at least $60,000 and made most of it as a 'white slaver.' I drove him out of the ward and compelled him to sell his resort at 23 North Sangamon street."

Attorney Percival Steele, whose name also was mentioned by Levine, said he was ready to respond to a subpœna if the commission desired to hear him.

"Levine might have given Grogan money for me, but I never received it," declared Steele. "I never met Grogan and got acquainted with Levine through prosecuting him."

Vice Called Worst of Problems.

The testimony given before the commission in the police trials was dwelt upon by Arthur Burrage Farwell, president of the Illinois vigilance committee, in an address on "The Contest of Virtue Against Vice" at the Grace Methodist church, Elgin, last night.

"Taking into consideration the terrible forces that have to be met, the vice problem is the most serious now confronting the world," he said in an appeal for the enlistment of young men and women into an anti-vice crusade.

Pastor Urges Police Reorganization.

The gambling and vice inquiry was made the subject of comment at the Lexington Avenue Baptist church by the Rev. Melbourne P. Boynton last night.

"If Mayor Harrison is correctly quoted and he did say that the present investigation of police relations with vice conditions is for the purpose of putting the fear of God into the hearts of the policemen so that they will fear to do wrong and will remember the days of 1911, the mayor uttered one of the wisest and most immediately useful truths," said Mr. Boynton.

"It would seem from the evidence adduced that our police system is rotten to its center. These conditions have prevailed so long that a new organization of the police department is demanded. The highest minded men of the city and the best statesmanship ought to be put to work on this matter."

GOOD FELLOW YET? DON'T WAIT! JOIN

Only 29 Days Between Now and Christmas to Prepare to Aid Poor.

THINK OF CHILDHOOD.

Would You Not Have Been Disappointed if Santa Claus Failed to Appear?

You have twenty-nine days between now and Christmas to join the Order of Good Fellows. The sooner you do it the fewer children will be in danger of missing their Christmas and the more mothers will be spared the sorrowful fear that Santa Claus will forget their homes.

After twenty-nine days your chance will be gone. You may be a thirty-third degree Good Fellow at heart, but you won't have the feeling of generous satisfaction which will abide with your brothers who have put their kind thoughts into execution. Of course, you may reason that you'll have another chance next year. There are lots of next years which never come. One of the strictest rules of the order is that Good Fellows must be alive. Good Fellowship deals with the living.

You can leave your money to hospitals, libraries, or belligerent relatives, but Good Fellowship can't be bequeathed. It dies with you—all the fun of bringing smiles to smileless faces, of putting cheer into homes where sadness has come to be the accepted thing. Be a Good Fellow now—today.

Fate of 2,500 in Balance.

Last year the happiness of 2,500 children trembled in the balance for twenty-four hours. The name of every one of those children was in Santa Claus' filing case at THE TRIBUNE office. Every one of them needed Christmas just as your children or the children of your best friend. They were expecting it. Their playmates were going to have it; their teachers had told them about it; their hearts were overflowing with expectation.

The filing case didn't know all these things. It only knew "Johnnie Jones, 9 years, old, father sick, mother dead, very poor, not provided for." Which meant that if some Good Fellow didn't come to the rescue, Johnnie Jones and his 2,499 trustful sisters and brothers would wait all Christmas eve—perhaps all night—for a Santa Claus who would never come. The filing case checked it off relentlessly. And the Good Fellows, being apprised of the fact, came hurriedly to the rescue. Johnnie was spared disillusionment by a hair. But it was too close for comfort.

How the Children Feel.

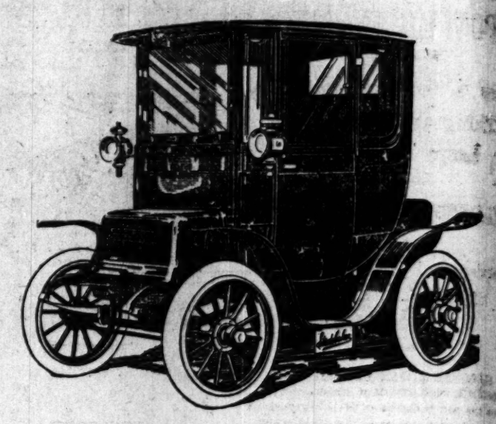

It is a surprising fact that all men have at some period in their existence been children themselves. Most of them were taught to believe in Christmas. All misbehaved occasionally.

Did your parents ever tell you that you were a bad boy and that Santa Claus didn't come to bad boys? Did they ever tell you that on the day before Christmas? If they did you lie awake long on Christmas eve. There was a horrible dread in your heart. Your throat felt tight. And when daylight came through the curtain you sneaked out of bed and made a bee line for the spot where you had planted your stocking.

Of course, it was full. Santa Claus had come. Your father and mother regarded the phenomenon with a pleased expression which said plainly that perhaps you weren't such a bad boy, after all.

Good Fellow: Suppose it had been empty!

NEWSPAPER GAINS POWER IN CHINA

Press a Comparatively New Thing and It Grows by Leaps and Bounds.

MOLDING PUBLIC OPINION

Frequently Hysterical, It Sometimes Is in Conflict with Authorities.

BY GEORGE A. DORSEY, PH. D., LL.D.

PEKING, Chili Province, China, Oct. 7.—In China the pen has always been mightier than the sword, more honored, more respected, and venerated in a way impossible to the more savage weapon. Indeed, of the two the pen has been the more deadly weapon. The Chinese not only revere the printed page; they fear sarcasm above all things.

For ages China has maintained a kind of news agency. Fleet couriers have carried the official news from Peking to the uttermost parts of the empire. But the newspaper in the modern sense of the term is of recent origin. It was a negligible quantity before the China-Japan war; today there are hundreds of them. If not crushed from above it will soon be the most formidable element in China. In no other country has the newspaper started out so advantageously. The reading population of China may have been and certainly is comparatively small. But that reading population dominates the empire. To those who can read, reading is a joy without a rival. For the written language is China's most beloved treasure.

As in so many other ways, there is a marked parallel between the development of the newspaper in China and Japan. With certain glaring exceptions, the Japanese press today is fairly dignified and fairly reasonable. But in its infancy it was something of a holy terror. The Chinese press has not yet passed beyond that stage, but repression is beating it into submission.

Growing by Leaps and Bounds.

It is quite impossible to predict the power of the press in China within a comparatively short time. It started out more than fearless, more than outspoken. Much of it bordered on the insane. But on the whole it has been as good as could be expected. It develops by leaps and bounds. There are thousands of newspaper readers today to one twenty years ago. And when the railroads have welded together the various sections of the empire and the telegraph has become a general disseminator of news, the press must be reckoned a force more powerful than pulpit or school.

The Chinese press has had two models. First, the Japanese. In its mechanism—and the press in both countries had enormous technical difficulties to overcome owing to the peculiar nature of their written language—it follows the Japanese. The printed page is about a foot wide and three feet long. Thus it adapts itself easily to the hands of the reader. The columns read from right to left. It can be folded up like a fan into small compass and opened as the reading progresses.

Japanese Influence Deep.

Japanese influence is deeper than this. One must travel far and wide in China and remain in the country long enough to get something of the Chinese spirit before one discovers the depth and subtlety of Japanese influence. It is unobtrusive, but it is here, there, and everywhere; quietly, patiently at work. There are hints and rumors and positive statements that this or that paper is directly or indirectly controlled by the Japanese. That they seek to influence public opinion there is no doubt. But though the Chinese press got its first lessons from the Japanese, it has always maintained a not unexpected independence. And this undoubtedly will become absolute, for if the truth must be told, the Chinese have less love for the Japanese than for any other nation. It is doubtful if they really love anybody.

For many years strong, clean, healthy, able newspapers have existed in the main treaty ports, especially in Hongkong, Shanghai, and Tientsin. At first these papers were exclusively English; recently other nations have recognized the possibilities of the press as a molder of public opinion in the far east.

American Interests Suffer.

American interests have suffered on the coast. For years Dr. Fergusson has edited the Shanghai Times with distinction. But he has recently given up his paper to accept a post with a high official in Peking. A new paper has come to life under the editorship of Thomas F. Millard, a well known American writer with strong anti-Japanese views. The idea has got abroad that our government is in some way or other back of this venture. This is unfortunate for obvious reasons. The paper's hostility to Japan on the one hand would be resented by the Japanese and welcomed by the Chinese, but both countries will conclude that the paper's views are those of the American people.

In certain English newspapers the Chinese have had fine models, for the English press of the China coast, whatever its defects, has maintained a high standard and has been clean and dignified. The number of Chinese who read English is, of course, comparatively small. But a portion of them eagerly follow the foreign press and must inevitably be influenced by it.

Anti-Foreign Sentiment.

For a while the Chinese press was markedly anti-foreign. It stopped at nothing in the way of scurrilous attacks on the missionaries, often, even though in a veiled manner, hinting at or suggesting violence. The Russo-Japanese war was closely followed by the press. Its outcome, it proclaimed, showed up European inferiority and the white man's fallibility. At this time Japanese influence in the Chinese press was strong. And the Japanese probably assisted the dissemination of such ideas.

Common sense people that they are, but lacking ability to get at right meanings and properly interpret news, the Chinese press can have a deal to do with unrest. A hysterical quality displays itself now and then at unexpected times and in unexpected places. The press, taking advantage of this tendency, could easily raise a spirit of revolt, could convert common sense Chinese into raging animals. The spirit which leads men to write petitions with blood of the arm, to carve their bodies, and to commit suicide in the supposed interests of their country sometimes leads the press into equal extremes.

The dramatic club already has presented several successful amateur productions.

CHINESE REBELS BOMBARD NANKING

Revolutionaries Swarm Hills Eager to Capture Manchus' Southern Stronghold.

LOYALISTS LOSE HEAVILY

Sortie of the Besieged Driven Back; City Invested from River and Land Sides.

NANKING, Nov. 27, 1 a. m.—After more than half a century of silence the hills overlooking the walled city of Nanking, the ancient capital of China, swarm tonight with rebellious forces, eager for its occupation and determined to overthrow the last stronghold of the Manchus south of the Yangtse.

From the Tiger Hill fort for several hours Sunday morning big guns spoke repeatedly, while farther up along the northeastern range, from the top of Purple mountain, overlooking the Ming Tombs for a fifteen mile semi-circle westward to the Yangtse, smaller forts scattered shells into every section of the city. Gen. Wong, second in command of the defenders, is among those killed.

Imperial Sortie Fails.

During the earlier part of the day the imperialists attempted a sortie against the attacking forces with a view to recapturing their positions and guns, but were driven back inside the walls with considerable losses. The Tiger Hill batteries, meanwhile, were pounding shells into Lion hill. They succeeded in silencing the Manchu batteries there, which, it is suspected, were of little value.

The object of the first seizure of Tiger hill was shown by the early appearance of four rebel cruisers and, later in the day, of other warships. In the evening a dozen torpedo boat destroyers and cruisers were lying menacingly near the city. Doubtless they will quickly reduce the lower sections and drive the defenders to the south.

The Viceroy of Nanking and Tartar general, in fear of Gen. Chang, the imperialist commander, have taken refuge in the Japanese consulate, in which only the consul remains. He is the sole official representative of foreign interests now in Nanking. The consulate is well guarded by marines.

May Not Rush City.

Sunday's attack can only be considered a slight foretaste of bigger things to follow, because the main body of the revolutionists is steadily investing every side and bringing the big guns into position on every eminence. The revolutionaries may not attempt to rush the city, but may prefer to bombard steadily and await its surrender. But if breaches are made in the walls of the city and the rebels enter, it is believed that Gen. Chang and the loyal troops will make a desperate stand.

KILLED IN LISBON RIOTING

Kidnaping of Chinese Women by Officials Cause of Outbreak.

POLITICS PLAYS A PART.

Armed Mob Battles in Streets with Troops of Government.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

LISBON, Nov. 26.—Rioting, in which several persons were killed and many seriously wounded, today resulted from the official kidnaping of two Chinese women.

The two Chinese women have been holding forth for several days as self-styled eye doctors. Their reputed ability to heal those suffering from trouble with their eyes brought great crowds to the hotel where they were stopping.

Order Resented by People.

The crowds grew into mobs, traffic was interfered with, and the thing became a public nuisance. The governor ordered the women to cease treating patients at the hotel. This angered the people last night and they entered a protest.

When this did not have the desired effect the crowd mobbed the Parliament building and the residences of the ministers. The gendarmes finally dispersed the mob and the governor then ordered the police to kidnap the women. This was done at 4 o'clock Sunday morning when they were removed quietly from the hotel where they had been staying.

Great Massmeeting Held.

The news of the kidnaping of the women became known Sunday afternoon and a great massmeeting of protest was held on Rocio square. The people became greatly excited and there were shouts of "Down with the government."

As the troops charged on the mob, they were received with volleys of stones and some shots. The cavalrymen used their swords freely and many persons were cut while others were trampled under the horses' feet. Instead of dispersing, the mob fought back.

ITALIANS VICTORS IN TRIPOLI FIGHT

Turkish Lines Are Driven Back from Positions Around the City.

BATTLE LASTS ALL DAY.

Heavy Engagement at Derna Ends When Both Forces Retire from Field.

BULLETIN.

PARIS, Nov. 26.—Notwithstanding the strictest censorship in Italy over war news, a dispatch has come through from the Secolo of Milan, stating that reports are current in Rome that an action has commenced in the Ægean sea and that a bombardment is actually in progress.

Officials maintain the strictest silence, but the fact that telephonic communication abroad has completely stopped and telegrams are subjected to long delays is taken to indicate that the gravest events are afoot.

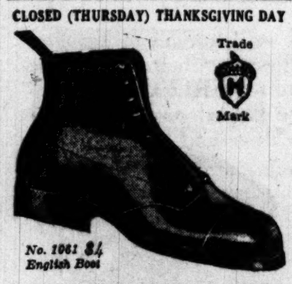

ITALIAN ARMY VICTORIOUS.

TRIPOLI, Nov. 26.—The Italian army today gained a complete victory in its effort to drive the Arabs out of the oasis and force the Turkish lines back at all points. The fighting, which lasted all day, terminated at nightfall by the Turks retiring from all their positions.

Heavy Fighting at Derna.

DERNA, Tripoli, Nov. 26.—An Italian reconnoissance on the plateau outside the city yesterday resulted in an encounter with the Turks in force. The fighting lasted all day, both sides retiring on their positions. The Italian casualty list numbered twelve killed and thirty-eight wounded.

Paul Revere Sheffield Silver

—named after the famous Colonial silversmith, and reproduced or adapted from his quaint designs—

May Now Be Had in Chicago at The Tobey "Gift Rooms"

We are pleased to announce an arrangement by which this company becomes the exclusive representative in Chicago and vicinity of the PAUL REVERE SILVER COMPANY, of Boston, makers of exquisite Sheffield plate—the most desirable, we think, that is now being produced. To our choice displays we especially invite the attention of present owners of this beautiful ware, who heretofore have been unable to supplement their collections in this city.

In PAUL REVERE SHEFFIELD SILVER the charm of a very high order of excellence in craftsmanship is added to that of rare, quaint old Colonial designs. A particular merit is in the base metal, which is the finest copper and upon which are plated heavy layers of pure silver.

A distinguishing feature is the old "butler" finish, which in beauty and wearing quality is unsurpassed.

The modest prices at which PAUL REVERE SHEFFIELD SILVER is offered have been a surprise to many persons who have compared it with Sheffield from other sources.

Following are a few of the many items:

Entree Dishes, $4.50 to $7.50 Gravy Boats, $7
Bottle Coasters $3 Bon Bon Dishes, $4
Vases, $6 to $14 Fruit and Vegetable Dishes, $8.50 to $12
Coffee Combination, $11.50 Decanters, $10
Milk and Water Pitchers, $5.50 to $11 Muffinier, $4
Candlesticks, $3.50 up Tea Sets, $37 and $39
Platters, $4.50 to $24 Finger Bowls and Plates, $4.50
Muffin Dishes, $12.50 Dressing Mirror, $45
Etc., Etc., Etc.

MRS. PATTERSON ROASTS STROUSS

Defendant in Murder Trial Says Former Admirer Could Clear Her Name.

FEARS SHE'LL BE HANGED

Victim's Mother to Go on Stand; Diary May Figure in Case.

Denver, Colo., Nov. 26.—[Special.]—With her arms around the matron's neck, Mrs. Gertrude Gibson Patterson clung to Mrs. Normile at the county jail and sobbed for an hour this morning.

When she was led back into her cell she dropped to her knees and clung to the matron's skirts, crying:

"O, please don't leave me; they are going to hang me; please help me—don't let them hang me!"

Mrs. Patterson is indignant because Emil W. Strouss does not come to her aid.

"Strouss should be here at the trial to help me instead of hiding and letting me face all this trouble," she said today. "He is the one man that could help me now that I am in trouble.

"He could break down this testimony that I was in a St. Louis resort. He could prove an alibi for me and clear my name that they are dragging down in the mud.

"But is he here? No. He is hiding. I don't know where he is, but I do know that his place is here on the witness stand to protect me when I need him."

Victim's Mother to Testify.

The second week of the trial of Mrs. Patterson on the charge of murdering her husband, Charles A. Patterson, will begin tomorrow with the prosecution having closed its direct case and the defense having placed on the stand its most material witness—Mrs. Patterson.

The defense expects to introduce witnesses to corroborate the woman's story of abuse by her husband. In rebuttal, the state will place Mrs. Mary K. Patterson, mother of the victim, on the stand.

The prosecution will attempt to introduce numerous letters written by Patterson to his brother, a Chicago attorney, in which he discussed his affairs, and probably will attempt to introduce what purports to be Patterson's diary, written in the form of notes or letters to his mother.

Diary Tells of Marital Woes.

This diary, which was found among the dead man's effects, has been in the possession of Prosecutor Benson from the first, and he made frequent reference to it in his cross examination of Mrs. Patterson.

This diary contains severe criticism of Mrs. Gertrude Patterson and references to torture, worry, threats, and attempted attacks the husband said he experienced during their married life.

BODY OF H. C. BEATTIE BURIED.

Fear of Great Crowd Causes Holding of Funeral of Virginia Slayer Soon After Sunrise.

Richmond, Va., Nov. 26.—By the grave of the wife whom he murdered July 18, the body of Henry Clay Beattie Jr. was buried at sunrise today. There was a brief service at the residence.

To guard against possible annoyance the hour of the funeral was kept secret. The pallbearers, boyhood friends of Beattie, were asked by him to serve. Several of them had testified in his defense at the trial, and one was his best man when he and Louise Wellford Owen were married.

After it became known the funeral had been held a large crowd visited the cemetery. Two mounted policemen in addition to officers afoot kept the crowd back from the grave.

CARNEGIE'S LIST OF 20 GREATEST MEN.

In an interview in New York on Saturday Andrew Carnegie gave a list of the twenty greatest men in history. The men and their achievements are:

SHAKSPEARE, WILLIAM (England, 1564-1616)—Poet and dramatist.

JENNER, EDWARD (England, 1749-1823)—Physician; discoverer of vaccination.

NEILSON, JAMES B. (Scotland, 1792-1865)—Engineer; inventor of use of hot blast in smelting furnaces.

LINCOLN, ABRAHAM (United States, 1809-1865)—President of the United States; liberator of the American slaves.

BURNS, ROBERT (Scotland, 1759-1796)—Lyric poet, whose works are a favorite reading among all English speaking peoples.

GUTENBERG, JOHANNES (Germany, 1400-1468)—Inventor of the printing art.

EDISON, THOMAS A. (United States, 1847)—Inventor of duplex telegraph, carbon telephone transmitter, phonograph, incandescent electric lamp, and other revolutionizing electrical devices.

SIEMENS, SIR WILLIAM (Germany and England, 1823-1883)—Physicist, engineer, and inventor; noted for researches in electricity.

BESSEMER, SIR HENRY (England, 1813-1898)—Engineer; inventor of the Bessemer process of steel making, which greatly cheapened the cost of steel.

COLUMBUS, CHRISTOPHER (Italy and Spain, 1446-1506)—The discoverer of America.

WATT, JAMES (Scotland, 1736-1819)—Inventor of condensing steam engine.

BELL, ALEXANDER GRAHAM (Scotland and United States, 1847)—Inventor of the telephone.

ARKWRIGHT, SIR RICHARD (England, 1732-1792)—Inventor of the cotton spinning frame, first to employ machinery in textile manufacture.

FRANKLIN, BENJAMIN (United States, 1706-1790)—Philosopher and statesman; demonstrated that lightning is electricity.

MURDOCK, WILLIAM (Scotland, 1754-1839)—Inventor who made the first practical use of illuminating gas and devised the oscillating steam engine.

HARGREAVES, JAMES (England, 1.18)—Inventor of the spinning jenny.

STEPHENSON, GEORGE (England, 1781-1848)—Inventor of the locomotive.

MORTON, WILLIAM THOMAS GREEN (United States, 1819-1868)—Physician; discoverer of the anaesthetic porperties of ether.

MUSHET, DAVID—Inventor of methods used in the manufacture of steel.

SYMINGTON, WILLIAM—Inventor of the steamboat.

TIGHT GOWNS BOOM TRADE OF PICKPOCKET, SAYS CHIEF.

Baltimore Police Head Says Passing of Pockets Makes Feminine Sex Easy Prey to Thieves.

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 26.—[Special.]—The tight gowns worn by fashionably dressed women are an invitation to pickpockets and thieves, said Chief of Police Farnan today.

"Women will carry handbags containing money and valuable papers," he said. "The time was when women had pockets in their dresses where they could put a purse, but nowadays their gowns are built so tight that they couldn't slip a $1 bill into them without making them bulge.

"Women carry handbags along dark streets; a purse snatcher rushes out on them. There is a short, sharp struggle, if the woman is the least bit plucky, but the purse snatcher generally wins. But if the woman had their gowns built differently, so they could have pockets, or if the gowns didn't button down the back, I don't believe there would be so many of these kind of robberies."

DEATHS.

[For other death notices see page 16.]

BOGUE—Oswell A. Bogue, at St. Louis, Nov. 24, father of Luman M., Warren C., John H. and Roswell C. Bogue. Services at Rosehill chapel on Wednesday, Nov. 29, at 11 o'clock. Friends are invited.

MADDEN—Norman Joseph Madden, beloved son of James S. and the late Mary Madden, nee Nolan, brother of Loretta, Raymond, and twin of Catherine. Funeral Tuesday, Nov. 28 at 10 a. m., to St. Killian's church, where high mass will be celebrated, thence by carriages to Mount Olivet. Boston and Canandaigua [N. Y.] papers please copy.

M'GUIRE—Hugh McGuire, suddenly, Nov. 26, 4410 Langley av., beloved husband of Delia McGuire, nee O'Brien, father of Mary McGuire, brother of Mrs. Holl. Member of Knights of Columbus, Lambkin, and Street Car Men's union No. 260. Funeral notice later.

BUILDERS TO SEEK LIFE SAVING LAWS

Uniform Statutes for Protection in All States Will Be Sought by Union.

FEW KILLED IN CHICAGO.

Four Disputes Must Be Decided by Meeting to Be Held in Atlanta.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 26.—[Special.]—Uniform laws for safeguarding human life against accidents in the construction of buildings, especially skyscrapers, will be urged by the building trades department of the American Federation of Labor, which opens its annual meeting here tomorrow.

Data are now being obtained from coroners at the request of the department which will show that an appalling number of building trades workmen are killed every year because of insufficient protection.

Conditions in Chicago Good.

Conditions in Chicago are cited in support of the contention that building regulations should be more rigid. James A. Short, president of the department, in his annual report says that at present there are fewer accidents in Chicago than any other first class city in the United States.

This is because the laws were drafted with a view of affording sufficient protection to men engaged in the construction of buildings. President Short will institute a campaign through the department for uniform building regulations throughout the country.

Must Decide Four Disputes.

Four jurisdictional disputes between organizations affiliated with the department are scheduled for adjustment. Conflicts exist between the following trades: Iron workers and metallic lathers, cement workers and building laborers, stone cutters and granite cutters, and marble setters and tile layers.

It is predicted that satisfactory agreements will be made in each case. The department expects to be in session the entire week.

STRANGLED TO DEATH BY QUID.

GIRL HOLDS TO WEIRD STORY

Edith Walker Gives More Details of Her "Abduction."

CAPTORS STRANGE BEINGS.

She Tells of Skull and Cross-Bones, Bombs and Symbols; Police in Doubt.

Detectives from the Central station are becoming reconciled to the strange tale of abduction told by Miss Edith Walker, which recalls the Ella Gingles case. Lieut. Gleson has detailed a number of men to verify the girl's story and attempt to find the abductors.

"The fact that she was taken on State street at a busy time of day seems impossible, but the consistency of the story makes it worth a searching investigation," said the police officer.

Miss Walker, a student in the Bryant & Stratton Business college, disappeared from her home at 709 South Winchester avenue over a week ago and returned home Saturday night. She said that she had been approached by two men on the corner of State and Randolph streets and drugged and put in a taxicab. When she awoke from her stupor she found herself captive in a small inside room somewhere on the north side, and there went through all manner of torture. She claims that two of her captors were Italians, who she thinks were members of the Black Hand. The other was an American.

Tells Captors' Strange Actions.

The girl gave a few more harrowing details of her experience yesterday.

"There was a picture of a skull and cross bones on the wall," she said. "As these men passed it they always bowed and showed every sign of having respect for an invisible something. Besides the skull there was a picture of a bomb on which was inscribed the symbol xx85xx. I asked about these things, but they always became so angry that I feared to press them. I was in constant terror all the time. I was made to cook the meals and do all the cleaning up about the room while they looked on. They ate real meats, but I was given nothing but bread and water. I had one loaf of bread all the time I was there.

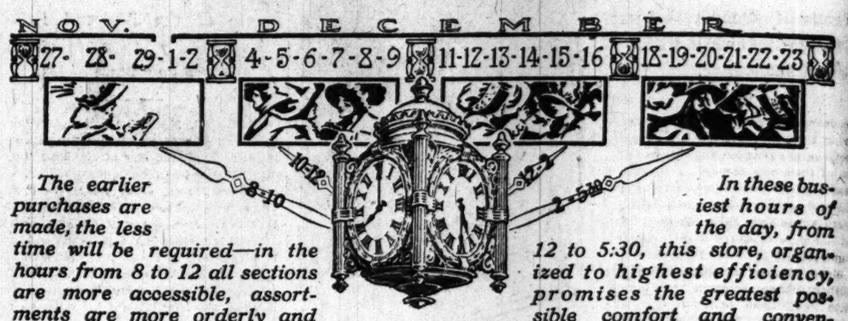

"Only one of the three, the American, showed any kindness to me. It was he who drove the automobile. I think he is responsible for my getting free."

Search for Car Conductor.

Detectives are hunting for the conductor on the Western avenue car, which the girl says she boarded when she started home, in the hope of getting a more accurate description of the man who paid her fare. Miss Walker and her mother are both prostrated as a result of the week's ordeal.

Only 23 Shopping Days—Then Christmas.

A Quick Impression of the Advantages of Shopping Now, and Early in the Day.

The earlier purchases are made, the less time will be required—in the hours from 8 to 12 all sections are more accessible, assortments are more orderly and more immediate service is assured.

In these busiest hours of the day, from 12 to 5:30, this store, organized to highest efficiency, promises the greatest possible comfort and convenience to every Christmas Shopper.

But a few days—then the inevitable rush of the Christmas season. Too much cannot be said against the delays that mean disappointment to such great numbers—delays that make gift buying a burdensome, disagreeable task with belated shoppers, instead of the pleasure it should be.

This store is now in entire readiness. Gift stocks are now complete—now at their best. Nothing is to be gained by delay. Now the crowds will be avoided. Now all parts of the store are more readily accessible. Christmas shoppers know well the advantages in assortments and varieties that are unbroken. Then, too, there is the great sense of satisfaction in approaching Christmas with all gifts leisurely and thoughtfully chosen, and made ready for presentation.

While customers may at all times—even in the day's busiest hours—look to this store for the highest efficiency in store service, we nevertheless again urge that selections be made now, and when possible in the day's earlier hours.

Three Archbishops and Five Bishops Take Part in Dedication Exercises.

SAVE MONEY SINCE 1896.

Four Thousand Members of St. Mel's Parish Meanwhile Built School and Convent.

Four thousand members of St. Mel's parish assembled at Forty-third avenue and Washington boulevard yesterday to witness the dedication of their new church. Two archbishops and five bishops assisted Archbishop James Edward Quigley in the ceremonies.

They were Archbishop John Joseph Glennon of St. Louis, Archbishop John J. Keane of Dubuque, Bishop Edmund M. Dunne of Peoria, Bishop James O'Reilly of Fargo, N. D.; Bishop Richard Scannell of Omaha, and Bishop Paul Rhode and Bishop A. J. McGavick of Chicago. Nearly 150 priests also attended.

These dignitaries of the Roman Catholic church were met at Hamlin avenue and Washington boulevard by several hundred members of the church, and all proceeded to the scene of the dedication. The procession was headed by St. Mary's fife and drum corps. Fourth degree Knights of Columbus representing thirty councils acted as personal escorts.

File Into New Church.

After a brief prayer Archbishop Quigley took up the censer and sprinkled the walls of the new building with the blessed water. The parishioners then filed inside for the first services. Solemn pontifical mass was celebrated by Bishop Dunne. Archbishop Glennon had the honor of preaching the first sermon in the new church.

The parish numbers 1,000 families. They are particularly glad to see their church finished. Since May 3, 1896, they have been worshiping in the basement of the edifice. When they had raised enough money to finish the church it was found the parochial school was insufficient.

The archbishop decided in favor of the school. In August, 1906, the first stone of the present three story school building was laid. St. Mel's convent was built in 1908 across Forty-third avenue from the church. On June 19, 1910, Archbishop Quigley laid the cornerstone of the new church.

Church Cost $175,000.

St. Mel's church has cost $175,000. It belongs to one of the largest and wealthiest parishes in Chicago. The interior is beautifully finished. The three altars are of Carrara marble and are the largest in Chicago. Biblical scenes are carved in relief at the bases and the whole is surmounted by gold candlesticks. The stone church is of the Romanesque style and is surmounted by an electrically illuminated cross visible at night for miles. The church will seat 1,250 persons.

The church was founded in 1878 by the Servite Fathers, who in 1883 resigned their jurisdiction. The Rev. Father P. J. McDonnell, the present pastor, was then appointed.

Solemn pontifical vespers were celebrated at night by Bishop Rhode. Archbishop Keane preached the evening sermon.

SMASH JEWELER'S WINDOW; FLEE AS POLICEMAN FIRES.

Robbers Scoop Rings and Watches Valued at $1,000—Booty Scattered in Street When Bluecoat Gives Chase.

Two burglars early yesterday smashed a plate glass window in the jewelry store of Charles E. Graves & Co., jewelers, at 32 East Madison street, and escaped with booty valued at about $1,000 from a policeman who fired several shots at them.

The burglars broke the window with a padded horseshoe and the noise attracted Policeman Charles Saxon, who opened fire as the robbers ran.

In their haste the fugitives scattered rings, watches, and jewelry which later were picked up by Policeman Saxon.

HENS CACKLE AN ALARM; ALLEGED THIEF SHOT DOWN.

Harry Steen, Caught in Coop, Receives Wound Which Hospital Officials Say Will Cause His Death.

Harry Steen, 5802 La Salle street, was shot and perhaps fatally wounded early yesterday morning when he was discovered in the barn of Matthew Hoffiller, 5837 Lafayette avenue, while stealing chickens, the police say.

Steen was shot by Harry Read, 18 years old, who lives next door to Hoffiller. Hearing the cackling of the hens and the fluttering of their wings, Read, who was on his back porch, aroused Hoffiller.

The latter started for his barn armed with a revolver. Steen rushed out and knocked him down. Read went to his neighbor's assistance, seized the revolver and fired several shots. After running a few yards Steen fell, wounded in the abdomen. Physicians at St. Bernard's hospital said Steen will not recover.

Fears of Poisoning Unrealized.

Mrs. Rebecca Klein was taken to the county hospital yesterday. Mrs. J. Zuckerman, 800 South Ashland boulevard, believing from her actions she had been poisoned. No trace of poison could be found.

O'CONNELL TALKS WITH POPE PIUS

Pontiff Accords Cardinal Designate Warm Reception at Vatican.

CONVERSE FOR AN HOUR.

Secret Consistory Ceremony Will Be Held Today; Red Hat Bestowed Thursday.

ROME, Nov. 26.—The Most Rev. William H. O'Connell, archbishop of Boston and cardinal designate, was received by Pope Pius today. About forty persons, half of the number ecclesiastics, accompanied him.

His holiness prevented the archbishop from kneeling and addressed him as "my dear brother." They then retired to the library, where they engaged in conversation for nearly an hour.

At the conclusion of the private audience, the pope appeared at the door of the library, with the archbishop at his left, holding the pope's arm. They proceeded to the small throne room, the chamber in which Pope Leo died, where the members of the pilgrimage from Boston were gathered, all kneeling.

The pontiff, with a benevolent and paternal smile, passed round the room, the archbishop introducing each of the visitors. The pope gave his hand to each to kiss and imparted the apostolic benediction.

Preparations are completed for the secret consistory in the Hall of Consistories tomorrow. The ceremony attending this consistory, at which the creation of the new cardinals will be ratified, is simple.

The public consistory, to be held on Thursday in the Sala Regia, will be characterized by much pomp and ceremony.

A Woman's Protection

A woman often needs money urgently, ready money for immediate use. She is not always in a position to earn it or to look to some one else for assistance. At such times money in bank is an unfailing protection.

Whether a woman earns her own living or handles household funds, she owes it to herself and her children to put by something each week.

In the course of time a savings fund becomes considerable, if deposits are made regularly and earn 3% interest.

You can open a savings account in this bank with $1 or more. Special pains taken with women who may not be familiar with banking routine.

OLEO TAX BREEDS CORRUPT GROCERS

Commissioner Cabell Says Ease with Which Law Is Evaded Creates Fraud.

FIND MANY INSTANCES.

Suggests as Remedy for Deception Sales in Small Sealed Packages Instead in Bulk.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 26.—[Special.]—Thousands of grocers are being corrupted by the profits of selling oleomargarine for butter and the ease with which the tax law is evaded, according to Royal E. Cabell, commissioner of internal revenue in his report, made public today. The most widespread fraud and the easiest to commit by the grocers is effected by a juggling of tax labeled tubs in which oleomargarine originally was legitimately packed.

Although much progress has been made in stamping out the evasion of the law by the big manufacturers and the professional moonshiners of oleo, the revenue bureau declares that the law, taken as a whole, is unenforceable. The commissioner believes the evil would be remedied if the tax of one-fourth of a cent a pound on uncolored and 10 cents on artificially colored oleo were supplanted by a straight tax of 2 cents a pound and sale required in original sealed packages, like cigars.

How Grocers Evade Law.

The following reasons are given:

"Under the law the oleomargarine is permitted to be packed by the manufacturers and sold in large firkins or tubs containing about sixty pounds, with a stamp on the outside showing proper tax payment. The retail dealer would buy a small number of tubs of artificially colored oleomargarine, tax paid at 10 cents a pound. He would then proceed to buy large numbers of tubs, tax paid at ¼ cent a pound. He would pay the special tax as a dealer in colored oleomargarine.

"The retail dealer, therefore, would sell from his tubs of colored product, and, in general, the product would be sold as butter, and when a certain number of tubs would be nearly empty the dealer would remove them, together with a corresponding number of tubs, tax paid at the lower rate, to some place in his private residence, or other place securely guarded, and there simply mix a little coloring matter in the white goods, refill the tubs in which had been colored oleomragarine, destroy the stamps on the tubs emptied of their white contents, take the refilled tubs back to his place of business and continue selling therefrom.

Field Officers Find Frauds.

Field officers discovered this done in numbers of cases. Great difficulty has been experienced in securing convictions even where the facts of manipulation have been undisputed.

By the simple process the retail dealer can add 9¾ cents to every pound manipulated and, by furnishing this to his customers when they call for butter, he can sell the product, which cost him from 12 to 15 cents per pound, for from 25 to 40 cents a pound.

"The comparative immunity from detection and punishment and the great financial profit growing out of the transaction have proved sufficient inducement to cause thousands of otherwise reputable grocers, marketmen, and dealers to engage in the nefarious business of defrauding the government of its revenue and perpetrating a fraud on their customers.

"It is confidently believed that the oleomargarine law is at this time corrupting and debauching more taxpayers and affords the opportunity for greater fraud upon the public than any other statute with which the internal revenue bureau has to deal."

EASY TO DRINK AT OAK FOREST

his thirst. One of these instances was on Sept. 1. He, with Ralph C. Hartwig, another employé, was at the depot ready to take the train when Assistant Superintendent Wayson says he appeared. Asked where he was going Mr. Wheeler replied, according to the assistant superintendent:

"It's so darn hot that I thought I'd jump down to Blue Island for a cold bottle. And I'd like to know who the h—— is going to stop me."

"On another occasion," said Mr. Wayson recently, "an employé came to my office and announced he was going on another spree and wanted to know what I thought about it. I thought several things, but held my tongue."

On Sept. 9 one of the women inmates was intoxicated. She was found coming down the road with a sack of peanuts in one hand and a package of popcorn in the other. She was waving both in the air and yelling: "Hurrah for Pete Bartzen! He's all right!"

Some visitors at the institution during the summer took away with them bottles of whisky. One of these guests, who is not known as a teetotaler, declined to drink at the institution, explaining that it might become known and he did not care to encourage by his example the use of liquor at the county poor house.

BAR ASSOCIATION INVITES BARNES; CLELAND PIQUED.

Contestant for Place on Bench Ignored in Planning Reception Tonight to Judges Elect.

Although his commission is being withheld by Gov. Deneen, pending outcome of a contest by McKenzie Cleland, Albert C. Barnes is recognized by officers of the Chicago Bar association as one of the ten judges-elect of the Superior court. He has been invited to be an honor guest at a reception to the judges-elect at the Bar association tonight.

Cleland has not been invited. He feels a bit put out about it.

"I did not think the Bar association would decide the case before the governor or the courts determined the issues," he said last night.

The invitation to Barnes, inclosing a seat at the president's table, was addressed to Barnes as "Judge-elect." It was signed by Maj. E. B. Tolman, president. Tolman has been in New York for several days, but will return today. Other officers of the club did not know the Barnes-Cleland issue had been raised. Edwin A. Munger, chairman of the reception committee, said he presumed both Cleland and Barnes had been invited.

The judges-elect will not be asked to make speeches at the reception. Instead, they will hear a discussion of methods of clearing the dockets of the Appellate court of the First district. State's Attorney John E. W. Wayman will lead, aided by George W. Miller, a former legislator who worked for court reform.

Over 1,600 cases are now pending in the court; the business is said to be two years behind. Two remedies have been suggested. One suggests the creation of a second Appellate court by transferring three trial judges. The other suggestion is that the state Supreme court appoint assistant judges.

United States Senator La Follette, all progressive Republicans, and all others advocating the initiative, referendum, and recall, were classified at night by United States Senator William Lorimer as either "nonthinkers, socialists, or demagogues."

In a bitter speech before the Homeward club in the Chicago Hebrew institute, the Illinois senator said the result of the proposed reforms "would be more disastrous than the separation of the states or the dissolution of the union."

NINE GOVERNORS START LONG TRIP

Special Train Will Educate People of East to Advantages of West.

TO ENTER MANY STATES.

Exhibits of Products to Be Carried Along as Arguments for Cause.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

St. Paul, Minn., Nov. 26.—[Special.]—St. Paul began its transformation into the temporary capital of nine northwestern states today, when the governors of the states represented in the Western Development association began to gather.

Tomorrow evening they will start out to tell the citizens of twenty-one eastern cities what the west has to offer. In a special train carrying five carloads of exhibits of typical western products they will spend three weeks in covering some 4,000 miles of territory, touching Chicago, New York, Boston, Washington, and St. Louis, and the larger cities along the route.

The end in view is the development of the west; the means, the development of the east to a quicker realization of opportunities on the other side of the Mississippi.

Governors in the Party.

Govs. West of Oregon, Hawley of Idaho, and Vessey of South Dakota have joined Gov. Eberhart of Minnesota. Tomorrow morning Govs. Hay of Washington, Burke of North Dakota, Shafroth of Colorado, and Norris of Montana will arrive, and Gov. Carey of Wyoming is expected to meet the party in Chicago. There are also former governors and other state officials, business men, and railroad men who will add their explanatory abilities. But the real demonstration work will fall on the chief executives.

California's governor is not present, but the state sends the largest exhibit of all, occupying a full car. Colvin B. Brown, director of the Panama-Pacific exposition, comes as the governor's representative, and also to represent the commission in charge of the 1915 celebration.

Montana has a large exhibit with Joseph A. Shoemaker, secretary of the state fair, temporarily in charge. Former Gov. James H. Brady of Idaho, the originator of the western governors' special, will help in demonstrating the claims of Idaho.

When the westerners reach Washington, where President Taft will hold a reception for them, an attempt will be made to corral as many of the senators and representatives from western states as can leave.

Arrive in Chicago Tuesday.

The long journey will start at 10 o'clock tomorrow evening, when the ten coach train leaves via the Burlington route, arriving in Chicago early Tuesday morning, and leaving again that night for Michigan. During their Chicago stay, the governors will be entertained by the Chicago Association of Commerce and the government land show officials.

"Roast Beef, Medium"

THE whole philosophy of the drummer's life is summed up in this one expression—"Roast Beef, Medium"—according to Emma McChesney who is on the road for T. A. Buck, selling Featherloom Petticoats, and "Roast Beef, Medium" was the way that she applied the philosophy of life to the fresh drummer of the masculine persuasion in her racy, slangy way which had in it just as much of human nature as it did of natural humor.

Emma McChesney, whom we met before in the American Magazine, is to be a regular character in its pages. O. Henry's mantle certainly fell upon Edna Ferber, the creator of Emma McChesney.

URGES STATE AID TO TEACH TRADES

Dr. J. B. McFatrich Points Need of Broader System of Industrial Education.

TALKS WITH NEWSBOYS.

Finds All Hold Ambition to Rise in World; Sees Opportunities Lacking.

Dr. J. B. McFatrich, president of the Chicago board of education, who with Mrs. Ella Flagg Young, superintendent of schools, has been urging closer attention to industrial education in the Chicago schools, which would fit pupils for earning a livelihood, has been carrying on an investigation of his own.

During several days of last week Dr. McFatrich took sufficient time to talk with a number of newsboys in the downtown section. Of a large number he talked with he found none who admitted satisfaction with their trade.

"Every one," he said, "showed plainly that he wanted something a good deal different. The boys' words were so plain that I feel sure they would have worked hard to acquire the education needed for the trades and professions they wanted to enter. Two, three, or four years of schooling beyond the little practical education they acquired while in school would have made them self-supporting and given them the chance every boy should have."

Boys Tell Their Ambitions.

Dr. McFatrich showed a list of some of the boys he talked with. Here are his comments on a few of them:

Harry ——, 12 years old, intends to be an architect when he completes school. He was glad of the opportunity to tell his plans of what he was going to be when he was a man.

Morris ——, a 10 year old Jewish boy, is going to be a lawyer when he completes school. His father is dead, and he is helping an older sister to support his mother and younger brother.

John ——, a lad of German parentage, 16 years old, wishes above all things to become a mechanical draftsman. He is not attending school, and his education has been neglected. He was forced to leave school at the age of 14 to go into a machine shop as an apprentice on account of the poverty of his parents.

Michael ——, a sturdy boy of 11, intends to be a plumber. He explains: "Folks in the city have got to have the plumbing put in, and the law makes them do it right."

Ralph ——, a widow's only child, is going to be an engineer or electrician. His mother works in a department store, and he is selling papers to try to make the burden lighter for her.

Poor Boys Lack Opportunity.

"Try it yourself," urged the president of the board. "Go out on your corner some night and talk with the newsboy there in a friendly way.

"Now, what is the lesson? Just this—that the average boy of poor family in the city does not have one-half the chance that you had or that he ought to have. The state spends millions on its penal institutions. Let it spend a little more on its trade schools, making them free and practicable for every child, and there won't be nearly as much need for prisons.

"There are tens of thousands of children in Chicago longing and waiting for the help that will make them capable business men of the future. There are millions in the United States waiting and longing for this opportunity.

Dr. McFatrich expects to present his detailed plans for wider trade education at some board meeting prior to the making up of the new year's budget.

ASKS REFORM IN POORHOUSES

W. O. Graves Says Good There Must Mingle with Vicious.

WOULD SHUT OUT POLITICS.

Urges Individual Care of Persons in "Miserable Mixing Pot."

William O. Graves, former secretary of the Illinois state board of charities, yesterday called Illinois poorhouses miserable mixing pots of the good with the vicious and of the diseased with the healthy. He spoke in the pulpit of St. ePter's Episcopal church.

In the average poorhouse, said Mr. Graves, promising children and women of delicate sensibilities are thrown together with the dregs of the underworld. There, he said, the idiot, the consumptive, and the inebriate mingle in loathsome intimacy with persons of self-respect driven to pauperism by force of circumstances.

The poorhouses of the country, he asserted, are catch basins for a vast sewer of misery. He advocated a system whereby the individual inmate's inherent characteristics should not be permitted to suffer by contamination. The speaker pleaded for another Dickens to arouse public sympathy for the derelicts compelled to accept the hospitality of the county.

Urges Less Politics.

Better medical treatment and nursing and the elimination of politics in management were the reforms most urgently needed, Mr. Graves said, in the almshouses of Illinois.

"The poorhouse has been shunned as an iniquitous place," said Graves. "One within its walls, the unfortunate is forgotten by those who enjoy the hum and bustle of life in the city across the hills and beyond the woods that surround the pauper's place. Occasionally the public is reminded when some good woman, like Julia Lathrop, goes into an almshouse and sees conditions.

"Then visiting and advisory boards, some meddlesome and some helpful, come into existence, and reforms are inaugurated. This is not enough. When the county home has provided for the physical comfort of its inmates, there remains much else to be done. The human element must be considered.

Urges Individual Study.

"Each individual's mental and spiritual welfare should be individually considered. The inmates should not be handled as a mass, but the matron or superintendent of such an institution should know personally each one's desires,—each one's traits and the longings that make them look wistfully back 'over the hill.'

"Then some day another poet than Will Carleton will write of the journey of the aged to the almshouse. When he does I hope it will be entitled 'Over the Hill to the County Home.' That sounds better than poor house, doesn't it?"

ASK TEN HOUR FIGHT DELAY.

Woman's Trade Union League and Labor Federation Desire More Time to Prepare Briefs.

An extension of time for the filing of briefs has been asked by the Woman's Trade Union league of Chicago and the Chicago Federation of Labor in the case of the People vs. the Charleston hotel of Charleston, Ill., to test the ten hour law passed by the last session of the legislature.

Dec 5 had been set as the time for the filing of briefs. The Supreme court of Illinois will have immediate jurisdiction of the case. Ella Gates Starr, chairman of the league's committee on church coöperation, is asking all the churches in Chicago to print in their parish bulletins the provisions of the law.

"LET US ALONE."

Since Mr. Roosevelt left the presidency the world has heard less from Chancellor Day. But not because that zealous worshiper of plutocracy has developed any misgivings. The Archboldian scheme of things finds the chancellor faithful, and, be it said to his credit, as outspoken as ever. Thus at a notable discussion before the Eastern Society of Economics Chancellor Day contended for the repeal of the Sherman law and for full freedom of the "trusts" from any interference. He alone held that the Sherman law had accomplished no good whatsoever. If a bust of Chancellor Day is not shortly placed in the editorial rooms of the New York Sun and a heroic statue erected at the head of Wall street, then there is no such thing as gratitude in this best of all possible worlds.

THE YEARLY PLEA.

To save Christmas from itself seems to be urgently necessary. To save the spirit of the day and the season from the crushing weight of the machinery we have constructed for its celebration is a duty we would do well to apply ourselves to.

And one of the ways in which to accomplish this is to heed the appeal which of late years has sprung up to do your shopping early. This is an appeal first on behalf of others, the thousands of workers who serve you, and, second, on behalf of yourself. There is little left of the Christmas spirit in the trampling rush of belated shopping, when every one who works to serve your needs is exhausted with long hours and ferocious strain. If there is anything left of the Christmas spirit, either for shoppers or shop folk, it is only because that spirit is so deep and strong in the human breast that it cannot be killed.

If there is any season when the golden rule ought to find us ready to obey, it is Christmas. But it is not doing to others as we would have them do to us to turn the Christmas season into a nightmare for so many fellow beings.

THE TWO BARTZENS.

Bartzen-Who-Fires-'Em is now replaced in the spotlight by Bartzen-Who-Doesn't-Fire-'Em.

In the auditor's department, where they are supposed to check up on expenditures, Bartzen-Who-Fires-'Em has been at work.

"Let us economize here!" says Bartzen-Who-Fires-'Em.

"Good," assents Bartzen-Who Doesn't-Fire-'Em. "Go as far as you like!"

When a Republican appointee is observed clinging to a job, Bartzen-Who-Fires-'Em tosses him out of the window, while Bartzen-Who-Doesn't-Fire-'Em jumps on his hat with joy.

But, after all, this Bartzen-Who-Doesn't-Fire-'Em gets his innings, and he does very nicely, thank you, for so quiet a person.

As a result of the team work of these two Bartzens the taxpayers of Cook county will pay about $24,000 more for the benefits of Bartzenized government during October than they paid during the same month a year ago for the administration of the Busse board.

When the incomputable expense of the demoralization worked by Bartzenism in the county institutions is considered, this paltry $24,000 sinks into insignificance. The county could better afford to pay that out direct for Bartzen's resignation. Bartzen virtue is as expensive as it is peculiar.

OUR UNHAPPY TORIES.

In the sad case of Col. Frank O. Lowden, Republican national committeeman for Illinois, we observe an instance of misplaced confidence. Mr. Lowden impulsively trusted his intuitions and they have betrayed him. He thought he stood with patriotic feet firmly planted on the historic principles of the grand old party. Considerate persons who assist him to arise and dust off his clothes will explain that it was President Taft himself who kicked out the supports.

Mr. Lowden's instincts, when he was asked to support the movement for a presidential primary, prompted him instantly to save the republic. He refused to lend aid or comfort to an iniquity. His language was formal, but we knew that his emotions were intense. The colonel would not support such heresy. He stamped upon the infamy, instinctively and impulsively. Horatius at the bridge felt no higher exaltation than did the colonel interposing his devoted body between his country's institutions and the onrush of its enemies.

Unfortunately for the serenity of this patriotism, President Taft, being asked to indorse the demand for a presidential primary in Ohio, promptly causes Secretary Hilles to issue a statement that the president will be glad to have the voters of his own state express their preference as to nominees.

Considerate persons here rush to Col. Lowden's assistance, pick him up, dust his clothes, and inquire anxiously if he be badly injured.

We incline to the belief that damage is done only to the patriotic pride of the colonel, and that he will place a balm on that injury by opposing the movement with greater obstinacy than before. Nevertheless, if he should feel that the incident has greater embarrassments than he cares to face, he will see that the insurgent wing of the Republican party in Illinois has been truly considerate in suggesting that he give up his position on the national committee.

These are not days when toryism, rural or otherwise, whether it has its abiding place in Sinnissippi or Chicago, can trust its impulses to be infallible. The mere fact that a movement is intended to grant a freer expression of the will of the people no longer sets it apart as inimical to the republic.

THE SO-CALLED PENSION LAW.

The county agent is somewhat concerned lest the so-called widows' pension law, which is not a pension law, will swamp the county funds. This is the law:

> If the parent or parents of such dependent or neglected child are poor and unable to properly care for said child, but are otherwise proper guardians, and it is for the welfare of such child to remain at home, the court may enter an order finding such facts and fixing the amount of money necessary to enable the parent or parents to properly care for such child, and thereupon it shall be the duty of the county board through its county agent or otherwise to pay to such parent or parents, at such times as said order may designate, the amount so specified for the care of such dependent or neglected child until the further order of the court.

The terms of the law are not mandatory and it may be administered, and undoubtedly will be administered, by the Juvenile court with discretion and due regard for the resources of the county. The law does not contemplate permanent pensions, but merely relief during periods of need, and its purpose is plain—namely, to obviate the necessity of separating families and to leave children under the care of their natural guardians when these are fit.

This is the aim of enlightened, organized charity, and it should be the policy of public agencies like the county, whose prime object is social protection and betterment. Mothers and children should not be separated if it can be avoided without detriment to the latter.

Furthermore, the law is a measure of economy. Judge Pinckney has pointed out that it will materially reduce the expense now incurred in the care of dependent children. The county pays out about $75,000 annually to institutions for the care of children. It could well afford to spend more, but whatever the sum it will go farther in the homes and be better spent in many cases if spent there.

The county agent cannot be blamed as a layman for some anxiety. The notion that the law provides a pension proper has gone abroad and will result in a rush to the county for aid. But it is an adjunct to the general work of the Juvenile court and must be administered within its discretion and in regular course of its work.

The inherent danger in the situation should be recognized and Agent Meyer has done well to sound warning. This danger is the misuse of funds under cover of the law for political purposes. While a careful, courageous, and conscientious man such as Judge Pinckney has control, all will go well. But some day, may that day be far off, he may be succeeded by a less scrupulous administrator. The result would be that these so-called pensions would be given "where they would do the most good"—to politicians.

This will be attempted now, which presents another consideration—namely: that it is unjust to conscientious men in office to put upon them the burden of disfavor caused by refusing applications encouraged as they are being encouraged even thus early. The Juvenile court should not be made a center of politics such as it is fast becoming through recent misguided or unscrupulous activities.

The proposal of Judge Pinckney for a special nonpolitical commission or committee made up chiefly of persons in touch with local charity and social work would safeguard the operation of the law and protect conscientious officials, or check attempts to misuse the funds for political or personal advantage.

An Excellent Series.

[Jonesboro Gazette.]

THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE is publishing a series of excellent articles on the Sherman anti-trust law and the trust problem. The articles are written by statesmen, publicists, lawyers, and business men, and the views expressed are not so widely divergent as might be expected. All agree that legitimate business should be untrammeled and unhampered by governmental interference, but that oppressive monopolies should be regulated. The articles contain many valuable suggestions.

How to Keep Well, By Dr. W. A. Evans.

STOVES.

STOVES have some advantages and some disadvantages as compared with open-fire heating. They are less cheery, and I suppose that everybody will agree that something is lost there. A bright, glowing fire has stimulated many a bright fancy and cheered many a drooping spirit.

Stoves do not stimulate room ventilation as much as open fires do. On the other hand, they have certain advantages. Being placed, as they usually are, toward the center of the room, they heat much more efficiently than do open fires. They are much less wasteful of heat, particularly when the stovepipe is used to heat other rooms or other portions of the same room.

They do not heat the outside walls and the floors as well as do proper steam and hot water heating apparatus, but they heat them better than open fireplaces do. As the fire in a stove is located inside the room, they make for ventilation more than does hot water, hot air, and steam heating. If the air is let in the room the fires burn better, and thus in an indirect way, properly managed, stove heating helps ventilation.

If, however, the cold air is unpleasant to somebody and the air intakes are closed, stove heated rooms speedily become nuisances beyond compare.

There is another objection to stove heating, which is of consequence enough to require some emphasis. It has been found that when iron gets red hot the combustion gas is in part changed from the slightly harmful carbonic acid to the very harmful carbon monoxide. This is partly the cause of the burnt odor of some bad air.

Therefore when stove heating is employed the stove should not be allowed to get red hot unless the windows are opened wide enough to permit the poisonous gas easily to escape to the outside. Who of us has forgotten the red hot stove, the burnt odor, the feeling of drowsiness, the soon coming headache?

For rooms occupied by a moderate number of persons stoves are fairly well adapted, even as far north as Minnesota. The one room school probably will have to stick to stoves.

Can they be installed so as to make them more satisfactory than they now are? Yes.

As at present run they cannot heat the outside walls, they cannot heat the incoming air, and they overheat the near by air. This is more of a load than they can carry.

The remedy is to conduct at least one-half of the ventilation air through ducts under the floor and to discharge it into the room under and around the stove; to take in some fresh air through the windows; to let out the foul air at the windows; to use the windows on the wind side of the building for an accessory air intake and the windows on the lee side of the room for air outlets. Thus will the disadvantage of stove heating be overcome. The stove will not overheat. The temperature of the air next the walls will be increased, wall chill will be lessened, the air for ventilation will be warmer and more tolerable.

If the air is freshened by opening the windows periodically, small schools, small halls, railroad stations, farmhouses, and small homes in towns and cities can be ventilated by stoves without discomfort and harm as far north as Canada.

BAD HOUSING CONDITIONS.

Miss J. I. F. thinks Chicago housing conditions should be receiving more attention than they are at present. She says that, looking north from West Chicago avenue, near the terminus of the street car line, fifty newly erected cottages can be seen. They are set along the front line of the lot. They are but two or three stories high, but they have not been so erected as to get as much light and air as they should have. One remedy suggested by her is that the houses alternate with respect to their positions on the lot; that one house be set in front of the lot and the next on the back.

REPLY.

There is no question that neglected housing constitutes one of the great wastes of the day. We are drifting into congestion and bad housing situations which are going to prove almost impossibly expensive when we come to remedy them. They are costing vast sums now in the way of inefficient labor and consumption and other diseases, but we are drifting along toward worse conditions. Nor is it limited to large cities. Lake Forest has bad housing; Springfield has much of it. The farmer suffers from it.

The Chicago ordinances passed January, 1911, cannot be enforced because there is no appropriation. The poor people are without protection.

The checker board plan would give more light and air under certain circumstances, and yet a twenty-five foot lawn, plugged on three sides, would not help much. Generally speaking, authorities believe it vital to keep the rear of the lot unoccupied.

I think the present Chicago ordinances a better solution than yours. The problem is to get money for the health department that the present ordinances may be enforced.

AIR TOO DRY.

J. C. has an itching of the skin which nearly sets him crazy. He wants to know what he can do.

REPLY.

You are living in air which is too dry. See that the humidity of the rooms gets up to say 70.

CLEANLINESS ONLY CURE.

T. P. S. writes: "What is the best way to prevent falling hair, which will eventually cause baldness? My hair is gradually coming out. My father has a fairly thick head of hair for a man his age. Are the patent hair tonics on the market any good?"

REPLY.

Hair tonics, patented or unpatented, have no value. Wash your hair with soap and water. Keep your scalp as clean as your face. Massage it. If you have a skin disease of your scalp, consult a dermatologist. If cleanliness does not cure, accept your fate. There are worse things than being bald.

MUDDY WATER.

J. M. wants to know why the tap water is so muddy just now. Is this a frequent condition, and what can be done about it?

REPLY.

The Chicago intakes are located in water which is twelve to thirty feet deep. Frequently the Lake Michigan wave action extends deeper than that. Even when the waves are not deep enough to cut the lake bottom near the cribs, the mud and sand may not settle out before the wind blows the muddy water to the crib. The so-called mud is mostly fine sand, though some of it is clay.

Occasionally the water is muddy because the supply in the tank on the top of the house has got low and the sediment has run into the house pipes. Some of it is due to dredging being illegally dumped into the lake.

Filtration through ordinary filter paper or through a special paper filter is all that is required.

LA MARQUISE DE FONTENOY.

[Copyright, 1911: By the Brentwood Company.]

AN interesting story might be written about ultimatums—that is to say, the documents that virtually announce war. That which the late Sir Edmund Monson, British ambassador at Paris, was instructed to present to the French government at the time of the now almost forgotten Fashoda crisis, was carried by him in his pocket for a couple of days. He refrained from complying with the instructions of the foreign office in London about its immediate presentation, but unofficially informed the French foreign minister that he was holding it back. That gave time to the French government to retire gracefully from the altogether untenable position which it had assumed.

Had Sir Edmund delivered the ultimatum as directed war between England and France would have been inevitable, and both nations owe him a debt of gratitude for having, though a man of absolutely no private fortune, risked his office, and consequently his daily bread, in order to avert a sanguinary struggle.

Italy's ultimatum inaugurating her war with Turkey was presented to Hakki Pasha, the Ottoman grand vizier, while the latter was engaged in a game of bridge at the house of a foreign friend, at about 1 o'clock in the morning. Hakki, who is a bridge whist fiend, saw it was a letter from the Italian embassy, but laid it by his side unopened, without paying any attention thereto, not dreaming matters had reached such a stage as to demand immediate action on his part.

It was not until a quarter of an hour later that one of the women of the bridge party, who happened to be an Italian, and who had an inkling of the state of affairs, remarked, jokingly:

"Had not you better open that? It may be an ultimatum!"

Laughingly the premier opened it. His face blanched. He jumped up and, without taking any time to excuse himself, rushed off to the palace to inform the sultan that the fat was in the fire.

In the case of the Japanese war with Russia in 1904 the respective ultimatums were not delivered until after the war had actually begun, and after the Japanese night attack on Port Arthur had taken place.

Volumes, indeed, could be written on the subject of ultimatums, and of the oddities, the comedies, the dramas, and even the tragedies connected with their presentation. One of the most peculiar that occurs to my memory at the present moment is that presented to the last sovereign elector of Hesse by the Prussian general, Henry von Roeder, whose favorite daughter had been jilted by the elector's son at his father's instance. When the elector failed to comply with the demands contained in the ultimatum the general was commissioned by the Prussian government to seize him and to place him under the arrest which was the beginning of his captivity.

About a year or so ago King George on the recommendation of the government and in deference to a petition presented to the crown by the bona-fide members of the Order of Baronets, created a special tribunal for the purpose of determining claims to baronetcies, and to advise him thereof. Until that time there had been no tribunal competent to deal with the matter such as the peerage has in the so-called committee of privileges of the house of lords. The consequence was that anyone who wished to do so was free to adopt the title of baronet.

The tribunal for the baronetage is composed of a committee of members of the privy council of the king, specially selected by him for the purpose. Under their direction and supervision a list of bona fide baronets was drawn up—that is to say, of baronets whose rights were beyond cavil—received his approval, and was officially gazetted as the only list recognized by the crown and government.

Of course several people who had been using the title of baronet and who had been omitted from the list applied for a place thereon, and submitted their claims to the committee. In three instances their rights were recognized. In another case, that of Sir Herbert Perrott, the sovereign was recommended to confirm the title, which had been borne in consequence of a natural error for nearly 200 years, without the original patent being duly registered by the college of arms.

The committee of the privy council on the baronetage has now, for the first time, turned down a claim, which has been in consequence thereof rejected by King George. The unsuccessful petitioner is Edmund Charles Cox, who has been flourishing as a baronet for a number of years, and has his name recorded as the fifteenth holder of the baronetcy of Cox in Dunmanway in Ireland, in most of the works of reference devoted to the enumeration of the possessors of English titles.

Some years ago, indeed, "Sir" Edmund Cox's name and title appeared in the London Nineteenth Century Review as the author of a particularly foolish article promulgating a plan for England's summary arrest of the naval preparations of Germany by forthwith destroying every battleship and cruiser possessed by the latter without warning or declaration of war.

The baronetcy of Cox of Dunmanway was originally created by letters patent dated Nov. 21, 1706, in favor of Sir Richard Cox, lord chancellor of Ireland. Sir Richard had nine sons, one of whom became archbishop of Cashel. "Sir" Edmund Cox, the claimant, urged his rights to the baronetcy as the nearest heir male of William Cox, the eighth son of the first baronet.

The claimant had no documentary evidence proving this descent; nothing but mere family tradition. Nor was he able to show that all the descendants in the male line direct of the seven elder sons of the first baronet, and all of whose rights would enjoy priority to his own, had become extinct. All that he was able to put forward was the fact that the title had been borne for twenty-one years by his father, the Rev. George Cox, assistant master at Cheltenham college, and a reader of the London publishing house of Longman & Co., until his death, in 1902, when the baronetcy was assumed by his son, Edmund, at that time an inspector of police in Bombay. The only official recognition which "Sir" Edmund was able to produce of his pretentions was the fact that he had drawn his pay until his retirement last year, and since then his pension, under the name of Sir Edmund Cox.

The committee of the privy council, in consequence of this condition of affairs, "humbly advised his majesty that the name of Edmund Charles Cox be not entered on the official roll of baronets, in respect to the baronetcy of Cox of Dunmanway," and the king, on the strength of this recommendation by his privy councilors, rejected the petition of the claimant.

Owing to the publicity which the case has received it is doubtful whether the thus defeated petitioner will continue to assume a title which has been denied to him by the crown, and which has been judicially proved not to belong to him.

THE LINKS OF ANCIENT ROME.

(From the Latin of P. Sibleius Fervs.)

I.

AUGUSTUS BECOMES CZK.

MAECENAS:

"Octavius, I've often heard you say
That you would knock off work some sunny day
And have a look at our new country club.
Why not to-day, old top? Put on a sub;
Come down and watch us shoot a game of golf,
Whether you stay to play or stay to scoff."

"Nix on that golf stuff," said the Emperor,
And so to urge him further I forbore.
Grabbing my clubs I chucked them in my car
And made the two miles to the links in par;
While Caesar, peeved at having stood me off,
Let go the following remarks on golf:

* * * * *

AUGUSTUS:

"War, glory, statecraft, and the muses nine
No longer charm these golf-mad friends of mine;
Wine, skirts, and song have also lost their hold
Beside this strange new game that, I am told,
By old and young and wise and foolish played is,
For which I would not give a hoot in Hades.
Me for the play or moving picture show,
A hand at bridge, or any game with go;
But chasing white pills round a vacant lot
Is my idea of entertainment, NOT.

"But here I am, singing the same old tune,
I've really not much on this afternoon,
And can, as old Maecenas said, knock off
And watch him shoot a hole or two at golf.
My motorcycle, boy! I'd like to see
Just whatinel this d. f. game may be."

"DROP a nickel, please." We did. And while we waited for the connexion we had leisure to reflect that if everybody who serves us (for a consideration) were half as eager to give good service as he is to get our money there would be fewer letters addressed to the "Friend of the People."

THE waiter may be slow in serving your dinner, but he is quick enough when you come to pay for it. A c. o. d. package usually arrives on time. The street car conductor makes sure of your nickel, though he may forget to call your street as requested. You may get the wrong phone number, but you drop the nickel first.

ANY one may multiply instances. Possibly there may be an exception to the rule alluded to. Do you happen to know of any?

The Friend of the People.

DEPOSITIONS MAY BE TAKEN.

Chicago, Nov. 20.—[To the Friend of the People.]—A foreign born friend of mine some three or four years ago took out the "first papers" required for citizenship. Now that she is eager to secure final papers the situation is complicated by the fact that all of her friends who could, of their own knowledge, testify to her residence here for the required time have moved to more or less distant parts of the United States. We wish to ask you whether or not in such circumstances a deposition from these witnesses would be accepted in lieu of testimony given in person. SUBSCRIBER.

If the applicant has resided in the state where his application is filed during the full period of five years the persons who appear as witnesses for him must present themselves before the clerk of the court in which the application is filed and make affidavit before the clerk. Section 10 of the Act of June 29, 1906, however, makes provision for the taking of depositions in cases where the applicant has resided a portion of the five year period in a state other than that in which the application is filed.

COMPENSATION IS PAID.

Chicago, Nov. 22.—[To the Friend of the People.]—For the last three years on the east side of South Fortieth avenue between Colorado and Harrison street there has existed two openings in the sidewalk with steps leading to the basement of the building adjoining. These openings are protected only by iron railings which are a hindrance to the general public and the openings are a menace to life. The sidewalk is narrow and with this space taken off leaves about six feet for the public use. Only recently a shoe shining stand has been built on the sidewalk between these two openings.

The question is, who gets the rent, and why? Does the city have the power to rent this space for commercial use, robbing the general public of the use of the sidewalk, to which it is justly entitled? Is it not in violation of city ordinance for openings in the sidewalk such as these to exist, uncovered? The attention of the commissioner of public works has been called to the matter with no result.

What is the remedy, if any?

ROBERT R. BIRNEY.

The conditions at this location are no different from the conditions at thousands of other locations in the city of Chicago. In the past owners of buildings were allowed to construct basement entrances in the sidewalk space, but at the present time no permits are issued for permanent obstructions of that character. However, it has not been the policy to cause the removal of entrances already constructed unless some extraordinary conditions exist. The bootblack stand referred to is being maintained under a permit issued by this office in pursuance of a general ordinance passed by the city council, authorizing such privileges. This policy is the means of producing several thousand dollars a year revenue for the city.

Mr. Birney called my attention to the above matter over the telephone some time ago and he was given complete information by me.

H. V. McGURREN, Superintendent.

STREETS TO BE ANNOUNCED.

Chicago, Nov. 8.—[To the Friend of the People.]—I am obliged to ride upon the Ogden avenue or Madison street cars every evening between 6 and 7 o'clock as far west as Ann or Center avenue. Between these points the conductors call out at Halsted and sometimes at Sangamon street. It is annoying to a person whose sight is not as good as it used to be not to have other streets called.

The company has promised to have this defect remedied immediately.

ALL ABOUT A PIN.

Chicago, Nov. 10.—[To the Friend of the People.]—Oct. 1 I moved from 1632 North Francisco avenue to 3229 Evergreen avenue, where another telephone was in operation, and was taken out by the company.

On Oct. 2 I requested my telephone, Humboldt 7201, removed to my new home, about six blocks away. On Oct. 4 I received a letter from the company saying it would be attended to. It is now Nov. 4, and yet there is no sign of the telephone coming. I have called twice at the company's office during October urging expeditious transfer, and the clerk at the Humboldt exchange in the commercial department acted complaisantly each time.

About Oct. 25 I wrote the company to please fit up my phone, but I have not so far received even an answer to my letter. Today I called on the company again and the clerk at the Humboldt window telephoned the Humboldt division, and the reply came that they are waiting to have a "small pin" put in somewhere. I asked the clerk what that small pin is, and he said: "It should not really be delayed on that account at all, because it does not take more than twenty minutes for a man to arrange that pin."

I am a professional man, and it hampers me and my clients very much to spend five weeks, and I do not know how much longer, waiting for that arrogant "pin" to get into place.

Such monopolies can really irritate every business principle, and the community must bear the infliction while looking for a remedy. Uncle Sam does not stop his mail service for a month or more when a man moves, and if he ran the telephone system there would be no such exasperating creaks in the service, and appropriate correspondence would no doubt be given due attention.

OLAF E. RAY,
3229 Evergreen avenue.

This complaint has been investigated, and we regret exceedingly that he gained the wrong impression. In plain terms, a lack of pin room means a lack of wire facilities. The maximum number of pins on each crossarm is ten—one wire to a pin. When, as in this case, a crossarm contains ten wires, it is necessary to bunch these ten wires into a cable before additional pin room can be provided. The work was under way when communication reached us, and Mr. Ray was furnished with service on Saturday, Nov. 11.

During the fall rush, which begins about Oct. 1, we ask our subscribers to give us thirty days' notice, because of the great volume of work. Mr. Ray notified us the day after he moved. We have no record of his letter of the 25th ult., hence our failure to reply. A. M. RAMSAY,
Commercial Superintendent.

TRANSFER NOT GOOD THERE.

Chicago, Nov. 20.—[To the Friend of the People.]—On leaving the passenger terminal of the Chicago and Northwestern railway to go to La Salle station I boarded an eastbound Madison street car, and on paying my fare asked for a transfer on "Fifth avenue south." The inclosed transfer was given me. On presenting the transfer to the conductor of a southbound car on Fifth avenue it was refused, the conductor saying it was not good because it was issued on a "Number 7" car. So I and two others had to pay another nickel to ride to Van Buren street, or 10 cents to ride eight blocks. Can you explain why the transfer was issued for a Fifth avenue line, and why it was refused? W. A. F.

The transfer which you inclose has upon its face the words "not good in south division north of Twelfth street." The conductor erred in giving it to you. He probably misunderstood what you said.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

THE EVOLUTION OF TRUSTS.

Hinsdale, Ill., Nov. 24.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—In the evolution of business methods partnerships were formed, because individuals would die, and although their names were sometimes retained in the business, yet as a rule the capital was scattered and the good name finally lost. Corporations were formed because members of partnerships would die or become inharmonious, and the same results followed in a less degree. The weak points in these methods were overcome to a great extent by vast combinations called trusts, developing unprecedented financial strength, chiefly derived by economy and monopoly. Now it is proposed to break up the trusts by fighting against the law of nature—evolution. Defects will show up at every turn. It is our duty to correct them, not retrace our steps.

Trusts have come to stay, because "in union there is strength."

Economy is one source of their strength, therefore they should be made lawful. Monopoly is another source, therefore it should be curbed by government supervision, so that there may be no advantage in fixing prices higher than enough to reach the limitation of salaries, dividends, or any other device by which unreasonable gain may accrue for use of capital.

C. C. WARREN.

MR. SMALL'S METHODS.

Kankakee, Ill., Nov. 2.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—Are not the voters entitled to primaries in county and town elections? Len Small in his speech here seems to be afraid of the thoughtless mob. This did not worry him any in the elections for county supervisors. There were four vacancies and there were four names to fill them, and they got the offices whether any one voted or not. They said it would not do to change the supervisors while the courthouse was being erected. The county was to get $200 per day if the job was not finished in time. It is about four months overdue and not finished yet, but I haven't heard of the county holding the $200 per day back. The election for the school board was the same as the supervisors. It was held on the courthouse steps. Three vacancies and three names. Thoughtless mob is our right name, I guess. WM. MCKEON.

BUTTERINE TAX AND COST OF LIVING.

Chicago, Nov. 23.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—The great complaint of the high cost of living calls for careful investigation and remedial legislation by those in authority, so far as it is possible to effect same.

Butter is one of the prime necessities of the family, and for some years the best grades have been beyond the reach of thousands of our bread winners. This is largely owing to the protection afforded the farming community of our lands by the imposition of a tax on butterine by the government, which in view of the present immense prosperity of the farmer and the reverse condition of those who are obliged to live in our cities is out of harmony with the conditions that should prevail.

Why should our legislators longer tolerate this tax, so detrimental to the masses of our population, in the interest of our farmer friends, who are so well able to care for themselves, regardless of this tax of which we complain? H. W. D.

MR. BRYAN'S PLAN.

Moline, Ill., Nov. 20.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—Mr. Bryan's 50 per cent limit on trust control is precisely in line with the practice of the trusts in dividing territory or business among the subsidiary members.

In view of this fact, Mr. Bryan's plan can not be consistently attacked by the friends of the trusts. E. H. PUTNAM.

WHY SHE LIKES "THE TRIBUNE."

Chicago, Nov. 24.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—As a fresh air fiend I wish to add my quota of thanks to Dr. Evans for his valuable health notes. One of many whose name does not appear on the subscription list of THE TRIBUNE, I am a constant reader. THE TRIBUNE is to be congratulated on having on its literary staff so many efficient and influential writers. The late acquisition, Marion Harland, the epitome of foreign news, the fine system of advertising columns, the intensely interesting sporting letters of the Marquis of Queensberry, the beautiful Sunday magazine, and the clever daily cartoon all tend to make THE TRIBUNE the great paper it claims to be. Last, but not least, THE TRIBUNE is to be commended for the high moral platform it maintains, which is essential in a newspaper of so far reaching influence. MRS. H. HERBERT STEELE,

HE LIKES DAWSON'S PIPE.

Chicago, Nov. 20.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—I desire to take exceptions to H. M. Wamsley's remarks concerning the "Dawson" cartoons, one of which was published in today's TRIBUNE. Mr. McCutcheon, to my mind, is portraying with sincerity the life and struggles of a boy from the country against the temptations and pitfalls of a great city.

"Dawson '11" is to me a pretty likable chap, and one that I should certainly be glad to associate with—even though he is so morally degenerate as to smoke a pipe.

It seems to me that if Mr. Wamsley would stop for a moment and meditate on "Dawson's" letters to his mother and the whole hearted love he has for her and his brothers and sisters he would refrain from criticising him for so small a thing as smoking a pipe.

Mr. McCutcheon, to be true to life (in Mr. Wamsley's estimation), should place a halo around "Dawson's" head, to give him a saintly appearance, which would certainly be typical of the average boy from the country. J. T. WALLACE,

AN EDUCATIONAL QUALIFICATION.

Chicago, Nov. 24.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—The present laws relating to suffrage permit those who are born in America to vote at 21 years of age and foreigners coming here to become citizens after five years' residence, both these privileged to vote without regard to their intelligence or ability to understand the principles of our government. It is assumed that the native born are fit, but often this is not the fact because of their environment. It is much less the fact with reference to the foreigner. It would seem to be a wiser policy to limit the right of suffrage to those who are intellectually fit, such fitness to be proven by their having passed a reasonable educational test.

The extension of the franchise to women, as well as the possession of the franchise by the men who now exercise it, when placed on such a basis will be a long step toward the solution of the political difficulties under which our country is now laboring. An educational standard will cause the ignorant of our native population, as well as those who come to us, to seek our schools; and it will at the same time place the right of suffrage at a premium, thus raising our citizenship to the place it should be, nearer the ideal. DR. FRANK M. WOOD, 15 East Washington street.

The Recognized Supremacy of The Pianola Piano

Does Not Mean Excessive Prices

When you purchase a Player-piano, you are buying an artistic accomplishment—the ability to play the piano—and you are buying for a lifetime.

Obviously, there are considerations in such a purchase much more vital than the initial cost.

Real musical worth and proven durability—the capacity to stand years of service—are far more important. When these are the deciding issues on which the selection of a Player-piano rests, there is never any question as to the purchaser's choice.

Such unquestioned pre-eminence has the Pianola Piano won, not only among the world's famous musicians, but among all classes, in all countries, that its supremacy is accepted as a matter of course.

It is important to know, however, that there is

A Genuine Pianola Piano at $550

The difference in price between the celebrated Pianola Piano and other Player-pianos is not nearly so great as their relative merits would justify, or lead one to expect

To possess a piano is one thing—to possess a piano that you can play is quite another.

Pianos were not made simply to look at. They were made to gratify the love of music which is universal—which is deep down in the heart of everyone.

Everyone loves music—everyone, naturally, wants to play, and everyone should be able to play his piano.

The Pianola Piano sets aside the old barrier—the technique of playing. Here is a piano over which your mastery is instant and complete. A piano which introduces into your home and into your life, a new and lasting pleasure.

The Piano is no longer a soulless thing of strings, hammers and wood, but now, with the marvelous Pianola inside its case, fulfills its intended purpose. You can know the thrill of personally producing music. Anything and everything from the sublime classics, to the latest Broadway hit.

It is natural that an instrument that has opened up to the whole public the most beautiful, "the most nearly divine" of all the arts—that has been signally honored by the approval and use of such musical authorities as Paderewski, Strauss, Debussy, Grieg and scores of others, should have imitators.

But the qualities that have won for the Pianola Piano its pre-eminent place, are peculiar to it alone. It should not be confused with other and less perfect instruments. Over 800 patents assure to the Pianola Piano a continued supremacy both musical and constructional.

The Metrostyle and Themodist

Two Exclusive Features that have made the Pianola Piano famous

The feature which has placed the Pianola Piano in a class by itself is the human-like quality of its playing, due largely to the Metrostyle and Themodist, both of which are exclusive.

The Metrostyle provides an authoritative guide to correct expression and enables even those who lack musical training to play artistically and with true musical feeling.

The Themodist enables the performer to strengthen the melody above the accompaniment, and thus impart a true cantabile effect or "sense of song."

Not only in its special features, but in every respect, the Pianola Piano is supreme and virtually alone among similar instruments.

In spite of this, however, a genuine Pianola Piano is no more expensive than a majority of other Player-pianos now upon the market.

In purchasing a Pianola Piano, the choice is offered of five well-known pianofortes, each the recognized leader in its grade. These are:

The Steinway, Weber, Steck, Wheelock and Stuyvesant Pianola Pianos

Society, Meetings and Entertainments.

Dance Invitations Issued by Chicago Assemblies.

INVITATIONS for the two dances to be given by the governors of the Chicago assemblies are out. The dances are set for Friday evening, Dec. 15, and Friday evening, Jan. 12, as previously announced, and both will be given in the ballroom of the Blackstone hotel. The governors of the year are Edward F. Adams, Watson F. Blair, H. C. Chatfield-Taylor, Joseph G. Coleman, Richard T. Crane Jr., Stanley Field, Howard F. Gillette, Morris L. Johnston, C. Garfield King, Eames MacVeagh, Harold F. McCormick, Arthur Meeker, William R. Odell, Honoré Palmer, Clive Runnells, A. A. Sprague II., and Bertram M. Winston.

One of the important debutantes of Saturday was Miss Caryl Spoor, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Spoor, 1526 North State street, who was presented at a tea given by Mrs. Spoor during the late afternoon. Mrs. John Black, Mrs. Henry Dibblee, Mrs. Joseph Coleman, Mrs. Harry Howard, Mrs. Warren M. Salisbury, Mrs. E. W. Cramer, and Mrs. John Gott assisted in receiving and Miss Gwendolyn Mitchell, Miss Gwendolyn High, Miss Eleanor Jewett, Miss Virginia Whitehead, Miss Dorothy Linn, Miss Margarett Street, Miss Mildred Blair, Miss Harriet Walker, Miss Elizabeth Harlan, Miss Isabella Robbins, Miss May Peabody, Miss Marian Farwell, Miss Ruby McCormick, Miss Marian Scott, Miss Barbara Thompson, Miss Dorothy Leonard, and Miss Ruth Davis were the young women assistants. A dinner dance followed the reception. Mrs. Spoor and Miss Spoor will receive on Mondays.

Announcement has come from Washington of the marriage of Miss Alva May Sanders, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin H. Sanders, to Newton Ford Carpenter, which took place at Washington on Wednesday, Nov. 22. Mr. and Mrs. Sanders and her daughter are well known in the city, having been south side residents for many years. They have been active in the Midlothian Country club circles. Of late years, however, Mr. Sanders' duties as a member of the tariff board have kept the family in Washington.

The wedding of Miss Frances Robinson, daughter of the late J. K. and Mrs. Robinson, to Paul McEwen will take place in New York Tuesday, Dec. 12.

The marriage of Miss Isabelle Gunn Watters, daughter of Mrs. Benjamin Watters, 5225 Woodlawn avenue, to Herbert W. Stevenson, son of William Stevenson, 4759 Lake avenue, took place at the Chicago Beach hotel at 8:30 o'clock Saturday evening. The Rev. Charles Bayard Mitchell performed the ceremony. Miss Margaret S. Watters was the maid of honor and Miss Alice and Miss Amy Watters were the bridemaids.

Norman A. Stevenson, a brother of the bridegroom, was the best man, and the ushers were John Clark, Mark A. Shoreen, Arthur G. Lantz, Herbert Miller, and William H. Stevenson Jr. Margaret F. Edwards was flower girl and Harris Shoreen ring bearer.

John R. Watters, a cousin of the bride, gave her away. The bride wore a gown of white satin trimmed in old Spanish lace and pearls and carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley. The maid of honor wore pink satin, trimmed with pearls, and carried a shower bouquet of pink and white sweet peas.

The bridemaids wore pink crêpe meteor trimmed with white lace and pearls and carried Killarney roses. A reception and dance followed the wedding. The bride and bridegroom will be at home Dec. 23 at 4759 Lake avenue.

Mrs. Reginald Stephenson of Manchester, England, formerly Mrs. Henry R. Shaffer of Chicago, announces the engagement of her niece, Edith M. Schultz, to Frank J. Scholl. The wedding will be early in January.

Mrs. Jane Lloyd announces the marriage of her daughter, Helen Crane, to Benjamin Franklin Webb Jr. on Saturday Nov. 25. At home after Jan. 1, at 2235 Lincoln avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Watson of Crescent place announce the engagement of their daughter, Cordelia L., to Albert H. Wehler, son of Herman Wehler of Buena Park.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanfell F. Forbes, 315 South East avenue, Oak Park, announce the engagement of their daughter Ethel to Edwin Alan Sutcliffe of Wyoming.

Mrs. William D. McKey, 5114 Hubbard avenue, will introduce her daughter, Miss Josephine McKey at a tea given Saturday afternoon, Dec. 30, from 4 until 7. Assisting in the dining room will be Miss Evangeline Nean, Mrs. Edward Hearne, Miss Grace MacLean, Miss Miriam Herman, and Miss Maude McKey.

Announcement is made of the engagement of Miss Estella M. Wilson, youngest daughter of Mr. P. E. Wilson of 1209 Michigan avenue, Evanston, to Mr. Arthur Winfield Gorrill of Oakland, Cal. No date set as yet for the wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Jennison, 200 North Franklin avenue, Austin, announce the engagement of their daughter, Mable E., to Harold R. Pillinger, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Pillinger, 135 North Park avenue, Austin.

Miss Elizabeth McHugh of the Lexington hotel will give a young people's dinner party in honor of Miss Lenore Ray tomorrow evening, previous to the ball of the Mothers' Relief association.

Miss Eleanor O'Callaghan of Norway, Mich., a student at the University of Wisconsin, and her brother Robert, who is a student at the Northwestern Military academy, Highland Park, are guests at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. William Rothmann, 6035 Drexel avenue.

Mme. Racheal Frease-Green of the Chicago Grand Opera company has chosen a suite of rooms at the Plaza hotel, overlooking Lincoln park, to be her home during the opera season.

The Misses Lillian and Leontine Inderrieden, with Miss Jane Taylor of St. Louis, have arrived in New York after a sojourn the last few months in the principal cities of Europe. They will remain in New York for several days before returning to Chicago.

Capt. and Mrs. Charles Stuart Wallace of New York are the guests of Mrs. Bazel Wells Veirs, 1946 Park avenue. The captain has been assigned for duty in the Philippines and is on his way to his new post.

MRS. KERSEY COATES REED

Mrs. Kersey Coates Reed was Miss Helen Shedd, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John G. Shedd, whose marriage to Mr. Reed of Kansas City Saturday evening was an event of general interest.

The wedding party was small, Mrs. Reed's only attendant being her sister, Miss Laura Shedd, and Mr. Reed having his brother, Homer Reed, for his best man, with four Kansas City men friends as ushers.

Mr. Shedd purchased an eight room house on Warwick boulevard, Kansas City, as one of his gifts to his daughter, and this is to be the future residence of the bride and bridegroom.

Entertainment Nets $1,000 for St. Margaret's Home.

Nearly $1,000 was taken in yesterday afternoon at the Olympic theater, where an entertainment, given under the auspices of the national order of Daughters of Isabella, was conducted by St. Margaret's Relief society to raise money for St. Margaret's home, Blackhawk street and Ashland avenue. Miss Amelia I. McDowell is president of the relief society.

Besides Irish dances in costume, under the direction of Prof. McNamara, the program included violin and vocal solos and recitations. A notable feature was the playing of Alfred Goodwin Keens, a 7 year old boy of Grand Rapids, Mich., who displayed unusual talent as a violinist. The Rev. Father T. V. Shannon of St. Malachi's church addressed the audience.

St. Margaret's home, which was opened last February, is the only Catholic maternity hospital in Chicago. It is in charge of the Franciscan Sisters of St. Cunigunda. The present accommodations are inadequate, and the ultimate object of the directors is to erect a new building. The home is open to all nationalities and creeds and is supported entirely by charitable contributions.

Puppy Show to Open December 16.

Normandy kennels of French bulldogs, owned by Dr. F. A. Fisher, are grooming a number of puppies for the young dog show, to be held in the Grand Pacific hotel on Dec. 16. The show is limited to French and English bulldogs, Airedale and Boston terriers and collies. The judges will be Dr. C. A. White, R. C. Vilas, Edwin A. Munger, and John T. Elkins. A. W. Cates, 1609 Fullerton avenue, superintendent, will receive entries until Dec. 8. Medals are offered by the Chicago Kennel club.

The twelfth annual Beresford cat show will be held in the Coliseum Annex on Dec. 7, 8, and 9. Cats are expected from every state in the Union, and 404 prizes will be awarded. Dr. C. A. White and Lola A. Besse of Chicago will be judges. Half the proceeds will be donated to the Chicago Home for Boys, 1500 West Adams street.

House of Good Shepherd Bazaar.

Little girls and dolls will vie with each other tomorrow and Wednesday at the House of the Good Shepherd bazaar, 1120 Grace street. Many valuable and pretty dolls will be placed on sale. The dolls have been dressed by the girls at the home.

Tomorrow will be woman's day. On Wednesday many games for the children will be arranged and the grown ups will be compelled to leave the children alone. Grab bags, candy, and cake will be distributed among the youngsters.

The bazaar has been termed "the Christmas sale." The proceeds will go to benefit the House of the Good Shepherd. All articles to be offered for sale were made by persons attached to the home.

Oldest Dancer Jigs with Youngest.

Fun ruled at a party given by the Eleanor Club No. 1 to the Woman's Club of Fellowship House at the settlement on Saturday evening. The Eleanor club furnished a program marked by much humor. A burlesque orchestra provided the music and professional readers varied the entertainment. The oldest member of Fellowship House Woman's club, Mrs. Margaret Horan, gave an impromptu Irish jig, assisted by the youngest member of a girls' club present, Miss Margaret McNamara. The courtesy was a return of a similar entertainment given recently by the Woman's club to the Eleanor club.

Swedish Count Studies Life in Chicago.

Count Walter H. Hamilton, a settlement worker of Stockholm, Sweden, who has been studying social institutions in Chicago, sails for London this week. He will reside for a time at a settlement in London before returning to Sweden. The count, who is a civil engineer and writer, has been at work on some stories of America, soon to be published in England and Sweden.

Surprise at Birthday Party.

C. A. Vorce, a retired business man, gave a birthday party last evening to guests of the Drexel Arms hotel, where he resides, as has been his custom for several years. The guests, as a surprise to their host, at the appointed hour appeared in "hard times" costumes.

Wants Song "Tildy."

"Has any one 'Tildy,' a song with music? It is quite new, but out of print. If it can be spared I shall pay postage.

"I have a lot of 'Christian Science Sentinels' to offer. M. P. B."

"Reciprocity" is an active and popular principle with the Cornerites, however slow political parties may be to adopt it. To give falls so naturally into line with asking that we have ceased to remark upon the habit. "I should be glad to bestow" is the sequence of "Can you give."

An ancient proverb tells us what manner of rule it is that does not work both ways. We will try to get the song for the donor of the "Sentinels."

Offers Home to Girl.

"I ask your assistance in finding a girl over 14 years of age, who will assist me by acting as a 'mother's helper.' I shall give her a good home, clothes, and raise her, for the assistance she will give me in my housework. I should like an orphan or one from some poor family—but I do not wish to adopt her. I am alone a great deal of the time, and, as I am hard of hearing, I must have some one in the house with me constantly. I have four children, the two older being away all the year and the younger ones at school.

"MRS. J. J. B."

I take advantage of this proposal to emphasize the fact that we do not ask for salaried positions at any time, be the wage ever so small. Nor do we offer anything for sale. Whatever passes through our hands, in response to query and petition, is a free will offering. The Corner is not a bargain counter, nor yet an intelligence office. "Live and let live" is one of our golden mottoes. A moment's reflection will make clear to sensible readers why these restrictions are just and right.

In the present instance the girl will have parental care; her bodily comfort will be attended to and she will be in the way of learning household duties. There is no question of wages.

Greek Letter Fraternities.

"Will you kindly explain what is meant by 'Delta Kappa' and 'Delta Phi?' Is it right to write a note to, say, Mary Smith, and put down in the left hand corner the word 'addressed' or 'address,' not writing the person's address? C. D."

1. "Delta Kappa" and "Delta Phi" are Greek letters that stand for the names of college fraternities—secret societies with members scattered all over the globe. The titles, objects, and proceedings of these are known only to the initiated.

2. The fashion of writing "addressed" upon a note is less in vogue now than it was thirty years back. It was always, to my notion, an affectation. It is far more sensible to write the residence of the person for whom the note is intended, as it is certainly safer. If lost the communication marked "addressed" has little chance of reaching its destination, the finder having no clew to the owner.

How to Clean Velvet.

"Your Corner is so interesting I have decided to ask your advice in cleaning black velvet that I wish to use for a suit. I tried gasoline, but with poor results. MRS. E. M. B."

Why was the gasoline a failure? Probably because you found that the "pile" of the velvet was crushed by the application. Try it again, and, when the velvet is dry, hang from wires stretched from side to side of the bathroom so that it touches nothing in the room. Then let the hot water run until the room is stiflingly full of steam. Shut doors and windows before you begin operations. Leave the velvet hanging and the steam in full blast for an hour. Then open the window and let the stuff dry, still not touching it. Let it alone until it is perfectly cold and dry. The "pile" will be restored unless by previous experiments you have crushed it too flat.

To Bar Out Fleas.

"We have been living in Chicago a short time, and the ground is sandy. If that is the cause, I suppose we shall always have fleas in the basement. I tried sulphur candles, but perhaps I didn't have enough. Our basement is 21x43. Now they are beginning to come into the house. We are nearly crazy about it! Whether they are coming from the sand or from a kitten that crawled in, we are at a loss to know. Any information I receive from you I shall indeed be grateful for. MRS. E. L."

Strew fine salt all over the floors, and lay sticky fly paper under the furniture with bits of raw beef dotting them. Also, scald shelves, etc., with water in which you have mixed oil of pennyroyal.

The fleas will try to reach the meat and get caught by the sticky surface.

Books and Patterns.

"In a recent moving I had occasion to sort out our books. I find several that are in good condition and interesting and safe, as they never have been exposed to any communicable disease. Don't think me a crank, but I know of more than one case of infection traced directly to second hand books. I also have a number of embroidery patterns. If any one would care for them they are in excellent shape. L. V. A."

The hint dropped here by our generous friend should be taken into serious consideration by parents and by readers in general. Some libraries—to their honor be it said—subject every volume returned to them to fumigation, which destroys any lingering germs of disease. Others—I fear the majority of these institutions established for the public good—pay little or no attention to a matter of such grave importance that the boards of health should guard it with special care. In private families, who thinks of fumigating the book brought back from the sick friend or neighbor to whom it was lent last week?

Scarlet fever patients, children with measles, the nurses in typhoid fever cases borrow and handle books to pass away the weary hours of convalescence, with never a thought of the absorbent property of papers, and return them to the owners thankfully, with colonies of deadly bacilli breeding between the pages. It is not enough that the book is clean when you send it home. It also should be disinfected.

Asks for Cocker Spaniel.

"Will some kind Cornerite please tell me of any one who will give me a cocker spaniel? No one but myself knows how much I want one of that breed. I do love them! I am deaf and cannot hear when any one comes to the door. If some one will give me one it shall receive loving care and a good home. Does any one want any old magazines? They were given to me. I shall pass them along, as I have finished reading them all. There is a lot of them, not all alike. I hope some one will give me the dear little cocker spaniel dog.

"MRS. A. J. N."

This is the third application we have had in a short time for small house dogs from deaf correspondents. One and all want the bright little spaniel or terrier to "answer the doorbell." I have a friend whose excellent housemaid has but one fault. She is so deaf that she does not hear the doorbell. Her pet spaniel actually keeps the place for her by springing at her and barking shrilly when the tinkle catches his sharp ears. It is not strange, then, that I should give earnest heed to this seemingly singular request. If any one would get a good home for her dog and do a kind act at the same time here is the opportunity.

Would Learn Polish.

"Can any one in the Corner assist me in getting a knowledge of the Polish language? I should like to learn it, if possible. I am 21 years old. Is that too old to begin learning? If I could begin by obtaining a dictionary in English, with the equivalent words in Polish, I should appreciate the gift; also some reading of good character for my boy of 10 years of age.

"MABEL R."

The address of the mother is in my hands. It will be a worthy deed for our young Corner to supply both of her needs.

"Too old to learn" at 28! It might be said of thousands of successful men and women that at that age they had—to quote Paul Jones—"just begun to fight"—i. e.: to acquire the knowledge by which they were to conquer circumstance.

Woman and Her Interests.

Laura Jean Libbey's Comment and Advice.

When a Woman's Single.

BY LAURA JEAN LIBBEY.

[Copyright: 1911: by Laura Jean Libbey.]

IT would seem as if the majority of women were never satisfied with their lot in life. Many of the single women wish they were wedded, and, alack and alas, there's a goodly number of married women sighing to be single again.

The single woman always has hope of a roseate future. The married woman who has perchance missed happiness believes that the door of hope is closed and barred against her.

When this state of feelings exists who shall say that the single woman has not the best of it?

The single woman takes a world of interest in her personal appearance. She is a joy and an inspiration to those about her. The happily married woman, while neat and charming in her attire, leaves off the furbelows, which cost money that can be spent in more useful directions. The woman who marries unhappily sinks into the slough of despair and is apt to grow untidy in her dress, if not slovenly, unless she is on her guard continually against this state of affairs. There is no one to care, she says to herself; she turns madly to books, or whatever is nearest at hand that will bring her oblivion from care.

Single women always have an attraction which there is no gainsaying. They are not embittered against the world as the years go by. On the contrary, their sympathies grow broader and their natures grow sweeter. They are able to adapt themselves to all sorts of people and conditions in life. The married woman has reached the goal of her ambition and happiness by marriage.

There are women who are born to be just wives and mothers—undeniably a splendid mission. There are other women born under fame's star who could never attain the heights intended for them to climb if hampered perchance by husbands who are pulling against them, dragging them by main force two steps backward for every one they make forward. The single woman may seek her fortune where she will; may invest the money she has earned as seems best and proper for her. There is no one to come to grief if she errs in her judgment.

The married woman cannot as a rule use her own reasoning powers. Her hands are tied by husband, children, and home.

In years agone, single women were led to believe by fiction writers when a woman married she supposedly lived happily ever after and her lot was to be envied. Now the single woman knows that the world is not entirely devoid of unhappy wives; that if she would live happily ever after she must be most careful of her selection of a husband. With every year that wings its swift length by, single women seem to be looking farther into this problem.

If would-be lovers do not qualify in most of the requirements of what they consider that their future heart mates should be they simply tell them frankly that their love is not for them.

They are not afraid to let a suitor slip by lest he be the last on their list. Single women will always have chances to marry, no matter how long they wait. The women who wait longest seldom make a mistake in their choice. Not one time out of a thousand do you see their names dragged through the divorce courts from a choice of wedlock. Their motto is: "Better a contented single woman for all time to come than an unhappy wife."

Has He Heard You Play?

"Dear Miss Libbey: I have a friend who calls quite often, and although he knows I can play the piano and sing, he will never ask me. Would it be impolite for me to play without waiting for him to ask me? ELSIE."

Elsie, are you sure that he particularly doesn't want to have you play? He may have heard you some time, you know. If you are sure you can play fairly well, by all means play for him whether he asks it or not. Simply ask him if he wouldn't like to hear you play.

"A Little Strongheadedness."

"Dear Miss Libbey: I am in love with a young woman, but we had a misunderstanding some time ago, and now we do not speak. I would like to make up with her, and her chums say that she feels the same way. But neither wants to start, owing to a little strong headedness. What would you advise?? H."

Don't be strong headed. One makes life so much harder for himself when he is. Write her a note, inviting her to some entertainment. That's the way to do.

Wants Her Name on List.

"Dear Miss Libbey: Will you kindly add my name to your list, which I imagine is growing, of lonely ones in Chicago. There must be plenty of good, worthy young people who, if brought together under proper auspices, could form a helpful association for the purpose of sociability and companionship. My experience since living in Chicago has been much the same as those already stated by 'Business Man' and others, so there is no need to go into it further more than to say I shall be glad to cooperate if it is decided to form a club among nice, refined, congenial young people who are engaged downtown during the day, with the objects of helpfulness and sociability. Such clubs are formed in smaller towns, and I think one could be formed with the same good results in Chicago. NINON."

He Did Not Answer.

"Dear Miss Libbey: During the summer I got acquainted with a boy I like very much. I sent him a card, but he did not answer it. I want to meet him and never get the chance. What should I do? Did I do right in sending him a card? LONELY."

There was no harm in sending the card. The person doesn't seem to be interested in you, so don't waste any more time thinking about him. The right one will come along some day.

Economical Housekeeping

BY JANE EDDINGTON.

A Slice of Bacon.

BACON has been picturesquely, if pitifully, connected with hard times. That famous dish "potato and point" was potatoes on the table and a flitch of bacon hanging high, at which the eaters of the potatoes pointed. Few of us have come to that point, even in these days of high prices.

Yet bacon, among other things—too many other things—is very high, though some people, perhaps yourself, think you must have it for breakfast. If you are going out into the cold to do hard work you do, otherwise not. In the morning you do not need food for tired muscles, but something energy making, starchy things like oatmeal, etc.

Bacon is especially high if you buy only from the highest priced cuts, and only 10 cents worth at a time.

Have you tried brisket bacon, or some of the other inexpensive pieces? To be sure you then have to buy the whole piece, and you cannot get nice, long slices from it, but it is exactly as good for a great many purposes, and it is not bad for dinners.

Since you can get over two pounds of this meat for 25 cents, and not a single pound of the highest grade bacon for that amount of money, you ought to congratulate yourself on such a piece of good fortune, if bacon is a necessity in your family. You would better do the slicing yourself, for the butcher will not take the pains to cut it in the nice thin slices he makes with the more expensive sorts.

A slice of bacon over fish, and even over turkey often adds a great deal to their flavor and richness, as it does to roast veal.

The really chief or characteristic thing in a club sandwich is a short slice of bacon. You may use it with remnants of the feast day turkey or chicken, a slice of pickle or two, a little lettuce, and some left over salad dressing for this purpose.

A slice of bacon fried and cut up into little bits and scattered over a green salad is very good with a French dressing. And the bacon fat may be substituted for oil in a dressing for wilted lettuce or for a salad of wax beans, or even for one of German celery root.

A slice of bacon toasted and eaten with just plain bread and butter gives a hearty element to an otherwise light luncheon.

A slice of bacon around a cold potato, in imitation of pigs in blankets of oysters and bacon, can be fried in either frying pan or chafing dish, and be very good.

First and last there are dozens and dozens of uses for our slice of bacon, to say nothing of its use with eggs alone, which has not been mentioned here.

Escalloped Potatoes with Onions.—Bake four potatoes and slice them thin. Butter a baking dish well. Put in a layer of potatoes with salt, pepper, and flour, then a slice of bacon cut in dice, and onion cut in the same way. Put in another layer of potato, and so continue, finishing with bacon on top. Sprinkle well with cracker crumbs, put three or four bits of butter on top, pour milk or milk and water, or even water, over all to nearly cover. Bake in moderate oven.

Beef Roll.—Cut a thin slice of round steak in four strips. Lay on table and place on each a slice of bacon. Add salt and pepper, and if liked, a sprinkling of sweet herbs. Roll each strip and tie to hold it rolled. Heat a little butter in a frying pan until it begins to brown, and fry the rolls in it until they are of a nice brown color. Add three-fourths of a glass of water, cover and cook slowly for an hour and a half. When done there should be about a third of a glass of gravy. Pour this over the rolls in serving.

Lillian Russell's Beauty Secrets.

Look for Beauty—Show Beauty.

BY LILLIAN RUSSELL.

[Copyright: 1911: By Lillian Russell.]

IN the foreword of a November magazine are these words: "There once lived a woman who was blind to all but beauty." She was criticised for drawing pictures that were not true to life, but she replied that her pictures were life as it appeared to her.

A life of perfect beauty was Kate Greenaway's, and who shall say that her influence was less great because nothing ugly existed for her.

I contend that Kate Greenaway, who is said to have founded a new school of art and who has dressed the children of two continents, was much greater because she saw only beauty. No one but myself knows how much I want one of that breed. I do love them! I am deaf and cannot hear when any one comes to the door. If some one will give me one it shall receive loving care and a good home. Does any one want any old magazines? They were given to me. I shall pass them along, as I have finished reading them all. Round About Chicago.

Training for Thanksgiving.

BY RICHARD HENRY LITTLE.

IT being now but four days until Thanksgiving the great question of how to train properly for that event is now to be most seriously considered. There can be no doubt but that many of the fatalities and much of the unhappiness associated in the past with the last Thursday in November have been due to lack of proper training.

Statistics reveal that most of the accidents and injuries incurred on that day were suffered by amateurs, while professional turkey wrestlers never received a scratch.

Just how to train so as to inflict greater damage on the turkey than on one's self is a subject on which no hard and fast rule can be laid down. Experts differ widely on this point.

Old Bill Dorgan, who met Thanksgiving turkeys face to face in the arena for over forty years and never lost a battle or failed to pass his plate for the third helping, has, in response to an earnest request, consented to make public his system of training.

Mr. Dorgan's brilliant achievement last year, when he attended three Thanksgiving dinners in succession and when seen at midnight was asking a policeman if he knew where there was a restaurant open in the neighborhood at which a man could get a good sirloin steak, a half dozen oysters on the half shell, and two slabs of cranberry pie, is so well known that no emphasis need be laid on the fact that his system of training is worthy of careful consideration.

Mr. Dorgan said: "I begin training on the Monday preceding Thanksgiving day. On Monday I eat a humming bird carefully baked en casserole. On Tuesday I eat a quail, on Wednesday a chicken. Naturally, when Thursday comes with its Thanksgiving turkey I am in fine form."

Mr. E. Welch, who has his coat front covered with medals won by his splendid playing back of the plate at countless Thanksgiving dinners, says his system is to eat only crackers and water for the three days preceding the last Thursday in November. Then when he arrives at the annual feast it is with the greatest difficulty he is restrained from chewing great hunks out of the mahogany chairs and biting pieces from the Turkish rugs during the interval he is obliged to wait until the glad word is sounded summoning all hands to the table.

A new school of turkey eaters which has grown in the last few years to number many thousands of members contend their methods are the only sane ones to follow. They attend the Thanksgiving dinner garbed in athletic suits. After every course the guests leave the table and run a half mile and repeat. After a five minutes' rest they again seat themselves at the table and resume the feast. It is claimed that twice as much turkey can be consumed in this way as by following the old custom of having the dinner last until the turkey is over instead of having the feast by rounds.

There is a gong in the corner and a referee to call time every few minutes and allow the turkey to be taken to its corner by the cook and given a chance to get its second wind.

The necessity of training in order to win a decided victory at the Thanksgiving table is more important now than it was a few years ago, owing to the change in the character and kinds of turkeys that are now encountered on the national feast day. It used to be considered ill bred for the host at a dinner when carving a turkey to stand in his chair and put one foot on the fowl. This, while still frowned upon in some circles, is perfectly permissible at present, owing to the fact that turkeys are no longer harvested at Thanksgiving time, but are garnered from the cold storage warehouses.

The old fashioned turkey, young and plump and right from the farm, could be encountered at Thanksgiving time with impunity, but the modern turkey is a much more difficult proposition. Chewing for a week on a small section of gutta percha is considered by many as a splendid training for the turkey to be met with nowadays, while some scientists maintain that the teeth of Thanksgiving dinners-out should be filed to a razor edge.

COLD STORAGE TURKEYS HAVE CHANGED TABLE ETIQUETTE

The movement for a sane Thanksgiving has gained much headway, and it is expected fewer casualties will be reported this year than last. Exponents of a sane Thanksgiving insist that no guest should be provided with more than two helpings of turkey, and not to exceed three saucers of cranberry sauce.

While it formerly was held to be in bad form to slip drumsticks, gravy, and other portions of the turkey dinner into one's pocket at a Thanksgiving feast, the exponents of the sane Thanksgiving insist that such a course is not only pardonable, but praiseworthy.

They point out that after a Thanksgiving guest has eaten all he feels he requires for his physical needs at the time, but is urged by an insistent host to eat more, the proper procedure is to accept a second or third helping and then cunningly transfer the edibles to the pockets and carry the pieces home, where, on the following day, they will furnish forth a tasty repast.

The sane Thanksgiving day exponents who insist that carrying the turkey away in the pocket is both healthful and economical insist that this should not be done in such a way as to cause unpleasant comment. In the case of a man guest at a Thanksgiving dinner the purloining of a drumstick or wishbone from the table is an extremely easy matter, as they can be easily slipped up a coat sleeve, and then the guest can say something about a newspaper clipping in his pocket that he wants to find. In feeling in his pocket the turkey leg or breast of the turkey or gravy or cranberries can be dropped neatly inside.

In the case of a lady guest the reticule offers the only opportunity of carrying home portions of the feast. If the guest has a fair sized reticule and is active and watchful of opportunities there is no reason why she should not escape from the table with about half the turkey, a quart of cranberry sauce, three pieces of pie and a plate of ice cream.

In this way the host and hostess at the feast are gratified that their guest has shown so much appreciation of their dinner by eating so much of it, and the guest is able to get home without riding in an ambulance or keeping two doctors sitting up half the night. In addition, the guest has enough turkey and trimmings—which only require warming over—to make a nice breakfast on the following day.

Calls Negro Key to Progress.

"As long as the negro race remains neglected and ignorant in the United States, just so long will the civilization of this country be impeded," said Dr. Hollis B. Frissell, president of the Hampton institute, Virginia, last night. He was addressing the Chicago Sunday Evening club at Orchestra hall on "Racial Coöperation."

"Wherever the negro changes for better or worse the white race changes. As long as the black race is down the white race will be held back.

"The answer to the negro problem in this country is racial coöperation. When the races are taught to help one another there will be no problem.

"We aim to teach the negroes to be of service to themselves, to their country, and to the white race. Since the founding of the Hampton institute there have been between 7,000 and 8,000 negroes graduated and sent out from the school. In each case, wherever they have gone, they have been leaders in the work of coöperation of the races."

Maj. R. R. Moton, a graduate of and an instructor in the Hampton institute, whose grandfather was kidnaped on the west coast of Africa and sold at auction in Richmond, Va., in the early part of the last century, made an address in which he told of the work of educating southern negroes.

Pioneer Bible Class Celebrates.

Bible class D of the Third Presbyterian church, Ashland boulevard and Ogden avenue, the pioneer of men's adult Bible classes, held a special service yesterday celebrating the accession to the class of its one thousandth member. C. B. Benson is the young man who bears the number 1,000. Men bearing other numbers include leaders in business, physicians, lawyers, preachers, and educators. Some are missionaries in Asia and Africa.

The class was organized in 1874 and has been taught continuously by its present teacher, Miss Anna E. Wing, who, at yesterday's celebration, reviewed its history.

A reception in honor of the new members will be given in the church parlors tomorrow night.

Congregation Urged to "Shop Early."

The congregation of the First Methodist church, Evanston, was set to guessing yesterday morning by the pastor, the Rev. T. P. Frost, when he said:

"There is an announcement on the church bulletins which you hold in your hands that was put there at the suggestion of ex-President Theodore Roosevelt. I guess you will find it if you read the bulletin."

It was a neat device to secure a complete reading of the bulletin. The announcement referred to was:

"Buy your Christmas gifts early in the day and early in December. That will be your biggest gift of the holidays to the workers behind the counters and on the delivery wagons."

Approves Men's Secret Orders.

Dr. Alexander J. Burrowes, president of Loyola university, advised young men to join some secret order which is approved by the Catholic church, in a young men's meeting at Holy Family church last night.

"You cannot become effective in this day's problems unless you are banded together," he said. "It does not make any difference what order you join, but interest yourselves in the aiding of society."

The meeting was the conclusion of a series for young men.

News of the Theaters and Music.

Modest Suzanne' Has Its Brazen Aspects.

BY PERCY HAMMOND.

THOSE who are familiar with the fleshly repute of "The Girl in the Taxi" need not be told that its musical edition, "Modest Suzanne," is by no means a primrose among entertainments. However, it may be as well to say in the interest of the innocent minority that the diversion admitted last evening at the Colonial is a merry, insolent, and brazen fable, relating with considerable frivolity the equivocal joys of the "night life," with its attendant epizoötes of deception, unimportant infidelity, and covers. Since this column is not conducted exclusively for the benefit of the erring, there will be no attempt here to moralize. Instead, merely a warning will be suggested. The Colonial, during the sojourn of "Modest Suzanne," is no place to take a lady, unless you know her very, very well. For the matter of that, no theater in these days is the place to take a lady unless you know her very, very well. Sin, of course, becomes moral in grand opera and many other places, but not in flippant musical comedy. And I know of no location where sin is more flippantly depicted than it is in "Modest Suzanne."

Mr. Al H. Woods is a shrewd impresario, and I know of nothing subtler in his career than his engagement of Miss Sallie Fisher as the prima donna of "Modest Suzanne." Miss Fisher is a symbol of respectability; she is usually gay and irresponsible, but her personality is essentially coupled with good deportment. Nothing that she does seems wrong. So when she appears in "Madame Suzanne," as the fleet and sexually curious wife of a pickle manufacturer of Tours she gives the rôle a glamour of virtue. In spite of all the adventures in private dining-rooms, with champagne and kisses galore, she emerges comparatively immune. One thinks that some mistake has been made, though according to the book of "Madame Suzanne" none has. And she sings!

The gentleman who wrote the music in the wildest dreams of his ideal could have heard no more beautiful treatment of his melodies. There are a half dozen songs, of one sort and another, sung by Miss Fisher, and they are all lovely, if one pays no attention to the words, which, however, are rather good of their kind. A pretty, modest, attractive woman in a wicked play is a somewhat deft combination. Miss Fisher is fragrant under difficulties; an ingenué in situations belonging to an adventuress. Last evening there was so much applause for her that it seemed as if "Modest Suzanne" might be a great success. She received her flowers after the second act, with just one too many delightful jumps of pleasure; but that, of course, is the opinion of a hardened observer of such things. When I left the Colonial she was looking most innocent in a white costume lined with fur, though she should have been in scarlet to harmonize with the disposition of her rôle.

Most of the "others" were capable. Mr. Lawrence Wheat, who knows more about stage young men than any other actor, was present in a congenial character, and Mr. Stanley Ford had one of his favorite rôles as an adult "sport." Mr. Max Freeman was a waiter, which is enough to say about him, and Miss Katherine Osterman was, as a breath of fresh air, so well did she act the rôle of the unsuspecting wife and mother. The ladies of the chorus were garbed like circus horses and they emulated well the traditions of their supposed environment—the Moulin Rouge. Of music there was a plenty—and of the Viennese kind that makes "café life" worth living—and these ladies of the chorus chimed in whenever they had an opportunity, with pleasant result.

Miss Louise Dresser will close her engagement in "A Lovely Liar" at the Olympic, and will be succeeded the next evening by Miss Zelda Sears in a new comedy by Bayard Veiller entitled "Standing Pat."

Miss Sallie Fisher

Miss Fisher appeared last evening in the title rôle of "Modest Suzanne," at the Colonial theater. The play is a musical comedy made from "The Girl in the Taxi."

Director Sousa Plays New National Music.

JOHN PHILIP SOUSA directed a well attended concert last night at the Auditorium.

The program opened stately with the "Overture Solennelle," 1812, by Tchaikowsky, in which the wood instruments were particularly enjoyable. Mr. Clarke gave an appreciated cornet solo.

The most interesting part of the first half of the program was Sousa's playing, for the first time in Chicago, "Dwellers in the Western World."

It begins with a pleasing pastorale, describing the life of the Red Man, who is introduced in descending scales typical of Indian native music. This is followed by more lively strains describing the settling of the White Man, in which melodious anvils interrupt the awakening of industry. The work closes in humorous sentiment with songs characteristic of the Black Man, the harp representing his favorite instrument, the banjo.

It was gratifying for the Chicago public to become acquainted with this new production, a feature of Sousa's European tour. It deserves much attention by the original treatment of a national subject.

Another new composition, the "Federal" march, is noteworthy by the acclamation it has received in Australia, where the governor, Earl Dudley, requested it be given the name mentioned, to emphasize that it was written for the commonwealth of Australia. The new march is a brilliant, vivacious composition.

Miss Virginia Root, soprano, sang a few numbers in the first half of the program. "Annie Laurie"—sung as an encore—was gratefully received by the audience. Miss Nicoline Zedeler acquitted herself creditably in her violin solos, particularly in the Minuet by Beethoven, showing grace and precision.

Sousa was generous with encores and such favorites as the "Stars and Stripes" were warmly applauded. An imposing part of the program formed the prologue to the "Golden Legend," by Sullivan, with its many brilliant passages, ending majestically in a transposition of the Gregorian chant. The orchestra is to be congratulated on its performance of this difficult work.

The program ended with Wagner's massive "Ride of the Valkyries."

Kansas City Soprano Successful in London.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

LONDON, Nov. 27, 3 a. m.—Hammerstein's production of "Rigoletto" Saturday night was remarkable for the triumphant London debut of Miss Felice Lyne, colorature soprano, from Kansas City.

The papers this morning continue the furore over Miss Lyne, whose debut as Gilda was hailed by the Sunday papers as a marvelous success.

The Monday morning papers print prominently the story of her success, and in some cases it is accompanied by her photograph and a history of her life.

The critics seem to have spent Sunday searching their Thesaurus for adjectives and adverbs fittingly to express their delight with Miss Lyne's performance. The enthusiasm equals that which accompanied Tetrazzini's sudden conquest of London.

The Sunday papers were equally extravagant in their praise. One critic said:

"This young American singer, if fortune is kind, will live to be the Patti or Melba of the operatic world. It was a real joy to listen and watch this girlish Gilda singing with perfect finish. It was a wonderful debut, and after the approval which her performance evoked one marveled that the name of Felice Lyne has not been cried from the housetops."

The Sunday Observer, under the heading, "A Great New Singer," said:

"The performance of Hammerstein's find, Felice Lyne, was as perfect a realization of the part as could be desired. She is young and graceful, unaffected and sympathetic. Her performance easily excels some of the most admired interpretations of Gilda. Vocally the interpretation was brilliant in the extreme. It is safe to say that the singing of the part equals the best we have heard in the last two decades. Mr. Hammerstein has an assured success in Miss Lyne. One can readily forgive him the production of the time worn opera for the sake of the singer."

Macmillen Typical of American Music.

BY GLENN DILLARD GUNN.

FRANCIS MACMILLEN made his last public appearance before returning to Europe for a three years tour, yesterday afternoon in the Studebaker theater. The size of the audience, which was sufficiently numerous to fill every seat in the auditorium, and the enthusiasm with which the young violinist was received are proof of his popularity with our public, and his playing suggests certain reasons for this fortunate circumstance which it may be interesting to analyze.

In both its excellencies and its shortcomings it is believed that Macmillen's art accomplishes a complete definition of American life, temperament, and ideals, as they find musical manifestation. As its most salient attribute it reveals a splendid mechanical equipment responding to the nervously intense impulses of a nature particularly sensitive to sensuous tonal beauty and sentimental expressiveness. It shows further a keen but simple delight in the slighter and less significant inflections of feeling as they attain melodic utterance. This naïveté finds a wholesome and unaffected pleasure in those ingenious but spontaneous exaggerations of sentimental moments that most surely endear Mr. Macmillen to his public.

The public that received Mr. Macmillen's interpretation of the Mendelssohn concerto with so much favor proved that we like brilliant technical display joined with fervent, if sometimes exaggerated, emotional utterance, and are but slightly concerned with the traditions of the composition which are known to few of us—the latter circumstance being of great relative importance. The warm and quick response to his reading of the Schumann "Traumerei" showed that we like accustomed beauties with the intention that familiarity has made obvious slightly underscored, a conclusion which a similarly enthusiastic reception of the artist's presentation of the Schubert-Wilhelmj "Ave Maria" abundantly confirmed.

That we are sensitive to the impulse of vital rhythms and sensuous melodies could be discovered in the demand for a repetition of Kreisler's "Old Viennese Waltz," and the delight evoked by Macmillen's own composition entitled "Causerie" proved that daintiness and charm and a delicious tone quality, when used to exalt a musical idiom which, for all its refinement, is nearly akin to light opera, constitute America's musical vernacular. If so we may console ourselves that it is much better than the popular musical vein exploited by Randegger in his so-called Bohemian dance or by Sarasate in his "Gypsy Airs," and is quite as worthy a musical speech as that employed by Dvorak in his "Humoresque."

Miss Garden to Sing Tonight.

The management of the Chicago opera desires to assure the public that Miss Mary Garden is completely recovered from her dental troubles and will appear as announced tonight. Massenet's "Cinderella" will have its first performance, with Miss Maggie Teyte, whose debut in "The Marriage of Figaro" was so successful, interpreting the title rôle. Miss Garden will be the Prince Charming and Mme. Jenny Dufau, the new French soprano, the Fairy Godmother. Mr. Campanini will conduct.

Benefit for Vacation Fund.

A program by professional talent will be presented next Tuesday evening in Recital hall of the Auditorium building for the benefit of the Catholic Ladies' Vacation clubhouse, founded last summer in South Haven, Mich. Miss Anna M. FitzGerald, founder of the clubhouse, is in charge of the program.

Dana's Two Years Before the Mast

With Dr. Grenfell's Introduction and the famous sea-pictures by Charles Pears

"'Two Years Before the Mast,' like 'Robinson Crusoe' and 'Treasure Island,' is a piece of high art. . . . It will never go out of fashion.

"That 'Two Years Before the Mast' should appeal to Dr. Grenfell was inevitable; that he should value it as a vital force for manliness was also inevitable . . . his estimate of the book is found in his introduction to this edition. He says, 'For my part I would far rather have my boy familiar with it than with many of the 'hundred best books.'

"Mr. Charles Pears has achieved in this edition the difficult success of really illustrating the narrative, not only with stirring and graphic power, but with an accuracy akin to that of the text. A man who has followed the sea twenty-four years studied the illustrations with care until he came upon the ship, every sail set, against an almost incredible red sky. Looking at it a moment he said: 'I have never seen a sky like that, but this man is so exact that I believe he saw it.'"—The Outlook.

There seems to be a conspiracy on the part of some of the book-sellers of Chicago to sell to the public another edition of this book. Before you buy insist on seeing the edition with Dr. Grenfell's Introduction and the stirring sea-pictures by Charles Pears.

GOOD CHAPTER IN FOOTBALL HISTORY

Season Just Closed Is Pronounced Best Since New Game Was Evolved.

BIG CHANGE IN MAROONS.

Midway Adherents Forget Defeat by Minnesota, but Concede Title to Gophers.

BY WALTER H. ECKERSALL.

With the playing of a few games on Thanksgiving day the 1911 chapter of football history will be completed and the season must be said to have been the most successful since the new game was introduced in 1906. In most cases the games have been fought and won on their merits and with few exceptions the champion elevens have undisputed claims to their respective titles.

To local followers of football, Saturday's contests were featured by the great playing of Chicago, which defeated Wisconsin, 5 to 0, and which resulted in the Midway eleven being placed on an equality with Wisconsin for second place in the conference race. Maroon supporters now assert this year's Midway eleven is one of the best of late years and its decisive defeat by Minnesota earlier in the season is completely forgotten.

Great Change in Maroons.

To those who saw Stagg's aggregation against Minnesota's team, the work of the Maroons in Saturday's game was a revelation. The players went out on the field determined to win and their efforts were rewarded. The men played a brand of football which would have been mighty hard for any team in the country to beat, and it was no disgrace to Wisconsin to fall before the great playing of Capt. Rademacher and his worthy teammates.

There was nothing of the fluke variety in the Maroon victory and Wisconsin players and rooters did not try to detract a bit from the Midway victory. They gave Chicago all the credit for its wonderful exhibition. In support of these opinions, it must be said, the Badgers made frantic efforts to score a touchdown in the last quarter, when all sorts of tricks, forward passes and onside kicks were attempted. The powerful and alert defense which Stagg had taught his warriors was too much for Wisconsin's attempts, while the hard and deadly tackling of the Maroons hardly could have been improved upon.

Factor in Conference Battle.

The Wisconsin team was one of the strongest and best drilled Badger elevens of late years. Coach John Richards has accomplished great results at Madison and the defeat by Chicago is the only black mark on the slate. Under the able and efficient tutelage of Richards, Wisconsin can be relied upon to be a factor in conference football every season.

Illinois deserves a lot of credit for its wonderful game against Minnesota. Although defeated, 11 to 0, the orange and blue eleven succumbed to defeat only because of the Gophers' superior weight and strength. Laboring under handicaps caused by injuries to some of the star players, the state aggregation has made a good showing.

By defeating Illinois, Minnesota won six of its seven games, Wisconsin playing the Gophers to a tie. As a result the big team of the northwest rightfully is entitled to the conference championship. The eleven has played good football all season and its claim to the honors cannot be disputed.

Northwestern gave Iowa a harder game than was generally expected, the Hawkeyes winning, 6 to 0. With a badly crippled team, the Purple warriors tried hard to avert defeat but Hawley's men were not to be denied and scored enough points to insure a victory. It has been a successful season for the Hawkeyes and Hawley's services will be retained next year.

Michigan Team Hard Pressed.

In its final struggle of the year Michigan was forced to the limit to walk off the field with a tie score with Nebraska. The Cornhuskers were a powerful aggregation this year and they met the Wolverines while the latter eleven was in a crippled condition. Both teams registered their scores in the third period, and according to reports the team west of the river outplayed Yost's aggregation for three periods.

In preparation for its annual game with Notre Dame on Thursday, Marquette took on the Loyola aggregation and trimmed it, 37 to 0. The Cream City eleven should be in great condition to meet the Catholics from South Bend and Thursday's game is sure to be featured by aggressive playing.

Harvard and Yale played another of those bitterly fought contests for which these teams have become famous when both elevens walked out of the Harvard stadium without having been able to register a point. According to reports, both had several chances to score, but the points were not forthcoming. Yale worked the ball within striking distance on two occasions, but Capt. Howe was unable to drive it between the posts. Harvard at once time pushed the oval to the Yale five yard where a forward pass was attempted instead of using straight plays, and the Crimson's best chance of victory went glimmering.

Jack Dalton, for the second successive season booted the Navy to victory over the Army, 3 to 0.

BLUES DOWN HIBERNIANS, 4-0, FOR SECOND TIME THIS YEAR.

Champions Play Superior Ball in Local Soccer League Game—Rovers Defeat Hyde Park Albions, 4 to 1.

BY J. G. DAVIS.

Superior goal taking ability enabled the Hyde Park Blues to defeat the Hibernians for the second time this season in the championship series of the Association Football League of Chicago, the champions winning 4 to 0, at Fifty-second street and Cottage Grove avenue. In the first clash the Blues won, 5 to 2.

Soggy ground marred a lot of the play and as the surface was especially sticky around goal the shooting, for the most part, lacked sting and three of the goals made by the Blues were from short range, the other being from twenty-five yards out by "Scotty" Mair. Lineup:

Hyde Park Blues [4].		Hibernians [0].
Roberts	Goal	Gibb
Burton	Right back	O'Brien
Dixon	Left back	O'Hara
Overberg	Right half back	Curtis
Parker	Center half back	Cooper

Brown	Inside right	McNee
Hills	Center	Halsall
Turner	Inside left	Fluke

Goals—Mair [2], Hills [2]. Referee—Napier.

Over-Seas, 3; Rangers, 2.

After eight straight defeats the Over-Seas finally came out of a game with the credit on their side of the ledger, defeating the West Side Rangers, 3 goals to 2, at Thirty-ninth and Honore streets. The margin of the home team might have been larger but for the excellent work of Williams in goal. Lineup:

Over-Seas [3].		West Side Rangers [2].
Smith	Goal	Williams
Delaney	Right back	Milton
Walker	Left back	Muldoon
Steven	Right half back	Ferrier
White	Center half back	Bishop

Pritchard	Inside right	Stewart
Yule	Center	Angus

Goals—Yule, Angus [2], Barlow, Pritchard. Referee—Rodgers. Linesmen—McKenzie and Taylor.

Pullman and McDuffs Draw.

Pullman and McDuffs played a tie game at Pullman, each side getting two goals. Lineup:

Pullman [2].		McDuffs [2].
Quaite	Goal	Dawe
Archibald	Right back	Clark
Everett	Left back	Cuthbert
Williamson	Right half back	Patterson
S. Govier	Center half back	Fleming

Goals—Fleming, Everett [against], Shallcross, S. Govier. Referee—Scott.

The Campbell Rovers maintained second position in the league by defeating the Hyde Park Albions, 4 goals to 1, on a muddy field at Lawndale park. The Scotchmen were better mudders and also had the better combination. Spectacular work by Birchall, the Albions' goal tender, kept the Scotchmen from scoring more goals.

Knocke and Buchman Get 1,167 in the City Doubles.

WEST LEADS IN THE SINGLES.

Member of Standard Team Helped Along to 630 Score by 243 Game.

Bowlers started play in the minor events of the Chicago Bowling association tournament yesterday at Bensinger's Randolph alleys, some huge totals being made. Two Western Electric players hoisted top mark in the doubles with 1,167, E. Knocke and H. Buchman, two comparatively unknown pin knights, blazing the way for the experts who will follow them. A. West, a member of the west side Standard team, dropped top count in the individuals with 630, a big middle game of 243 helping him.

Knocke proved the better of the two electricians, getting 581 pins, while his partner was satisfied with making a reasonably good series. Two Lake View experts, Al Gaul and Ed Reich, sailed after them and took temporary second place with 1,160. Reich averaged 200 even. Glende and Heine of the D. F. Cooks of the Northwest league dropped 1,132; Swanson and Sallender drew 1,123; Schumacher and Perck of the Berwyns landed 1,103, and Small and Drew of the Vin Fiz team of the Sheridan league accounted for 1,100 even.

The fast work proved a surprise to most of the fans, although the splendid performance of the five men teams on the opening night, when three of the twenty in action beat a 900 average, gave the experts an idea that big scores were on the way. Scores:

FOURTH DIVISION TAKES GAME.

Defeats Engineers in Indoor League, 10 to 5, and Ties Second Section for the Leadership.

The Fourth division, Illinois Naval reserves, in a hard fought contest defeated the Fifth (engineer) division at indoor baseball yesterday at the armory, 321 North Michigan avenue, 10 to 5, tying with the Second division for the Naval reserve indoor championship.

Evans Close to Record.

"Chick" Evans played over the Ridge course at Calumet yesterday, getting 32 and 34 for two rounds and coming within one stroke of the record held by Professional Jim Foulis. Sixty players were out. The club will hold an eighteen hole event on Thanksgiving day, for which there will be prizes for the first, fourth, eighth, twelfth, sixteenth, and last positions. Prospective members are eligible to play in this.

FOURTEEN CARS AWAIT GUN

Hard Fight Looked For in Vanderbilt Cup Race.

AMERICA HAS EVEN CHANCE.

Europeans Lead in Horsepower but Not in Drivers.

BY DAVID BEECROFT.

Savannah, Ga., Nov. 26.—[Special.]—Tomorrow's race for the Vanderbilt cup promises to be the hardest fought struggle for road racing supremacy between American and European cars that ever has taken place in this premier classic of America. The chances for America and Europe are even. Of the fourteen cars that are tuned to the minute for the starter's gun, ten are looked upon as having even chances of victory.

Europe is pinning its faith to two Mercedes and three Fiat cars, and America is looking to the Lozier team made up of Mulford and Grant; to its Marmon team, headed by Burman and Patske, and to the Mercer driven by Hughie Hughes. Three other American cars will struggle for positions—two Abbot-Detroits and the Pope-Hummer.

Course Covers 291.38 Miles.

The fight will be bitter to the last one of the 291.38 miles. The pace promises to be between seventy-three and seventy-four miles an hour. Any one of the Mercedes, Fiats, Loziers, and Marmons can maintain this average with reasonable tire luck and other good fortune. The Mercedes is the fastest of the lot, so far as work in practice has shown up. Spencer Wishart has his car in first class condition and knows the course perfectly. Ralph De Palma will drive the other Mercedes, but his car is new compared to the one Wishart will drive, and is not expected to be so far up at the finish.

Of the three Fiats, all are fast, that driven by Matson being, if anything, the fastest. It is a new car and has shown up well in practice. The Fiat Bruce Brown will drive is the oldest of the three from the Italian factory.

Everybody is looking to Grant and Mulford. Grant has figured the race out carefully. He always runs his races in advance. He knew today exactly what he could do with rational luck. He knows that his average will be over seventy-three miles an hour if his car holds together. He is not going to try to go much faster. With that speed he should not dare to change a front tire.

Mulford Figures Carefully.

Mulford also has figured out his end carefully. He may be expected to drive a little faster race than Grant. Each is going to get the most out of his car. It is not a case of one going out to burn it up and the other take the slower and surer pace. Both are out to win.

The Marmon team has been handicapped by the absence of Joe Dawson. Burman, who will pilot one of the cars, was on the course for the first time yesterday. The cars are fast. Patske is looked upon to uphold the Indianapolis colors. Hughie Hughes in his Mercer will make a fast race of it. He is taking the turns as skillfully as any of them and a little faster. His car is running well and, barring troubles, will be a factor at the finish.

As far as drivers are concerned America and Europe are on an equal standing. From the point of view of horsepower the European cars are in the lead. The three Fiats are racing machines from the ground up. They have short wheel bases, which will help them out on the many curves and sharp turns. The Lozier machines are stock.

COLLEGE SPIRIT ROUSES MARQUIS

Enthusiasm at Wisconsin-Chicago Purity Banquet Is a Revelation.

BULLY FOR MAROON TEAM!

Grit and Determination Made Victory Over Badger Eleven Possible.

BY THE MARQUIS OF QUEENSBERRY

On Sunday evening last, at the invitation of Mr. Stagg, I had the honor of being present at the dinner given to the Wisconsin football team. It took me back to boyhood days to be seated in Hutchinson commons, which is an exact model of the Christ church (Oxford) hall, and the tower of the Reynolds club, which is modeled after the tower of Magdalen college.

What memories it brought back! Unfortunately for me, I never had any university life, but I had a brother at Magdalen college, Oxford, and many a pleasant visit did I pay to dear old Oxford in bygone days, and here on Friday evening I seemed to be in the old college atmosphere again.

For the life of me I couldn't see any difference. The boys are just as nice and cultured, the spirit for good is as great, and the only difference if any was the more vigorous enthusiasm. I think we have just as great enthusiasm at home, but it smoulders.

The Britisher is almost afraid to show his feelings, whereas the American is more open and lets his enthusiasm go. To a foreigner the college songs, cries, and rahs are a revelation. We have nothing to correspond to it, and it is most inspiriting and rousing, especially when you get seven rahs all to yourself from hundreds of fine young Americans. It makes your pulse beat faster, it makes you take a tight hold of yourself and murmur a prayer to hope to deserve such kind, whole hearted enthusiasm.

Fancy the encouragement to a man to get the glad voice of several hundred splendid young fellows representative of all that is best of the youth of the country, bidding you be of good cheer and to be up and doing. No wonder President Judson, that cultivated, charming, and learned gentleman, by whom I had the honor of sitting, and that sportsman of sportsmen, Mr. Stagg, who sat on the other side, each in turn received positive cheers from their pupils, which must more than compensate them for all their labor.

There was a note of real love in the reception of both.

The evening wound up with a dance at the Reynolds club, and I stood and watched the fair undergraduates and graduates dancing, with a sigh to think of how one's youth was slipping slowly by.

Were I to be born again it would be my wish to be an American and to be able to become an integral part of your school and college life. It is all so beautiful, so idealistic. One can see what the future of America must be with such a glorious system of education. That future is victory, leader of the world in thought and deed. I left the sacred precincts of the college with regret, for sacred they are to all who know what veneration means, and the University of Chicago, though young, is so grand, so dignified, and, withal, so democratic, that it inspires veneration. I felt the better for my visit, sanctified, so to speak, for having been permitted to mingle for a moment in its life, and fortified by the joyous voice of good wishes of its students.

On Saturday I saw the match. What a match it was! Bully for Chicago! It won by grit and determination. Every one supposed Wisconsin to be the superior team, but Chicago fairly wore the Badgers down and won by its college spirit.

OAK PARK STILL IN DILEMMA.

Everett High's Failure to Win Renews Quest for Suitable Opponent from East.

The failure of the Everett High school football eleven to secure better than a tie with the Somerville team in their game at Boston Saturday probably will cause a change in the plans of the Oak Park authorities regarding a contest with an eastern prep school next Saturday. Everett was the logical choice before the game, but the tie put a different complexion on the situation.

Accordingly the Oak Park Athletic association wired its representative now in Boston to look up the records of other preparatory schools. Yesterday he was in communication with Brother Thomas of St. John's school, near Boston, and sent the records of the team. St. John's has played eight games this season, winning all. Some of these games were with the best prep teams in New England. Among the victims this season were Beverly and Cambridge, holders of sectional titles.

St. John's scored 148 points, while its rivals made only 8 as the result of one touchdown and one goal kick.

Milton Ghee, Oak Park quarter back last year, but now a member of the Dartmouth freshmen football team, also is in communication with a number of schools. He will make his selection this morning. The announcement of Oak Park's rival will be made at noon.

GOV. GRAY BURNED TO DEATH.

Winner of Latonia and Jamestown Features Destroyed in Blaze at Spring Station, Ky.

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 26.—During a fire at Spring station, near Versailles, Ky., this afternoon, Gov Gray, winner of the Latonia Derby and Jamestown Derby, and County Tax, both big race track winners for their owner, Capt. Jim Williams, burned to death.

Title Goes to Dalcassians.

The Illinois State Gaelic Athletic association closed the season yesterday by awarding the hurling championship to Dalcassians. The failure of the O'Mahoneys to present a team gave the undisputed title to the west siders.

WAGNER HITS 334 FOR BATTING LEAD

Pirate Swats Himself Back Into Championship for the Eighth Time.

ROY MILLER SECOND, .333.

Zimmerman Tops Cubs with 307; Bescher Steals Eighty Bases During Season.

BY I. E. SANBORN.

Hans Wagner of Pittsburgh batted himself back into the swat championship of the National league this year, according to the official averages promulgated yesterday by Secretary Heydler of that veteran organization. The big Dutchman was given a tough battle by Roy Miller, the quondam Cub, now with Boston, who hit within one point of Wagner, the figures being .334 and .333 respectively.

Two recruits, Kirke and Jackson, both of the Bostonians, have higher averages than Wagner's, but their performances covered only a small part of the season, and by common consent, backed by national commission ruling, no player is considered of championship stick caliber who does not play in at least 100 games.

Chief Meyers of the Giants is a close third with an average of .332, and two rival managers are fourth and fifth. They are Red Dooin and Fred Clarke, although Dooin's broken leg kept him out of harness for almost half of the season.

Wagner Leads Eight Years.

This is the eighth time Wagner has led the National league in batting. For four years in succession, 1906 to 1909 inclusive, Honus was unbeaten, but last year he had to surrender the title to Sherwood Magee of the Phillies. This year Magee dropped far back into the ordinaries with an average of only .288, conclusively demonstrating that it does not improve a batter's eye to engage in umpire baiting. Previous to 1906 Wagner led the league in 1900, 1903, and 1904.

Zimmerman proved the best swatter among the Cubs, although he is only a few points ahead of Chauffeur Schulte, their marks being .307 and .300 even. They are the only Cubs who reached the select .300 class, which contains twenty-two National leaguers this year, including recruits. The official count gives Schulte twenty-one home runs, although the popular count was twenty-two.

There is food for comment in the fact that Jimmy Doyle, the new west side third baseman, was third in the Cub list. He beat out Tinker and Sheckard by a few notches. Doyle's average of .282 is far better than he made in the American association the previous year with Louisville. It is not often that a recruit bats better in fast company than in the minors, but Doyle's case is not unprecedented. Artie Hofman, who led the Cubs in hitting in 1910 and held out for a stiff raise in salary on that ground, fell off to .252, which was equaled by Mordecai Brown, pitcher. This leads to speculation concerning what Artie's average would have been if he had not been given a raise.

Bescher Steals Eighty Bases.

Bob Bescher of Cincinnati led the league in base running with eighty steals to his credit. This is only three less than the number stolen by Ty Cobb in the American league.

New York's champions led in team batting with an average of .279 and the Cubs ran fifth with a team mark of .260, which would have been high before the cork core ball came in. Chance's men scored the greatest number of runs, beating New York by a single tally in the year's total.

OVERALL AGAIN INJURES ARM.

Former Cub Pitcher Obliged to Quit Game at Oakland in Sixth Inning.

San Francisco, Cal., Nov. 26.—[Special.]—Orval Overall, the giant pitcher of the Cubs, threw his arm out while pitching this forenoon for Stockton against Oakland at Freeman's park. He was obliged to quit the game in the sixth inning, as his arm bothered him considerably, becoming swollen and painful. This is the second time Overall has experienced the same sort of injury, the first one occurring while he was with Chicago.

...icago Underwriters Want ...ate Supervision Over Formation of Companies.

...ILL MEET TOMORROW.

...k to Check 'Wildcat' Schemes; Want Bankers to Cease Stock Operations.

...t the meeting of the Chicago Life Under... ...ters' association to be held at the Hotel ...Salle tomorrow evening L. Brackett Bish... ...of Chicago, president of the National ...Underwriters' association, will lead a ...vement to get the insurance men of Illi... ...interested in an effort to secure a law ...ing the state insurance department juris... ...tion over a promotion of new insurance ...panies.

...nder the existing statutes, the insurance ...partment cannot take supervisory charge ...the company until it is licensed. The pub... ...is therefore unaware of a company's con... ...ion and plans until it seeks to be admitted ...a state and the insurance department is ...en permitted to make an examination.

...uring the last five years there probably ...ve been 400 insurance companies which ...ve taken out their incorporation papers ...started to sell stock. Professional pro... ...ters have found this a fertile field and ...ve gathered together a large body of sales... ...n who are selling stock to the public.

Promotion Schemes Expensive.

...any of these promotion schemes are ex... ...ive and cost the stockholders in some in... ...ces as high as 40 per cent of the amount ...tributed. There have been some instances ...ere the expense rate during the promotion ...riod is even higher. Purchasers of stock ...unaware of this condition. They pay all ...way from one and a half to three times ...par value of the stock in order to create ...surplus and when the company is licensed ...is found that the surplus has been cut ...wn so materially to pay the promotion cost ...t it is inadequate to meet the demands ...getting the company in running order.

...President Bishop believes it is high time ...at the public is more adequately protected ...the insurance company stock selling propa... ...nda. He states that all insurance men ...welcome new companies organized on a stable ...sis at a moderate cost of promotion. The ...ate insurance commissioners at one of their ...cent conventions placed 10 per cent as the ...aximum promotion cost. There have been ...few companies promoted in the last few ...ars at anywhere near that figure.

...President Bishop advocates a law similar to ...e present New York measure, which allows ...e insurance commissioner to examine the ...ooks and records of a company as soon as ...t opens an office in the state for stock selling ...rposes. The findings and recommendations ...e communicated to the public and the peo... ...can then judge for themselves whether ...they desire to subscribe for stock.

Deceptive Literature Used.

...The chief objectionable feature in the stock ...selling crusade aside from the excessive cost ...promotion is the deceptive literature which ...used. Statistics are juggled and twisted ...till they show almost anything that is de... ...red. Figures of old established companies ...presented in a way to make the public ...lieve that there is a gold mine in insurance ...erations and that large dividends can be ...pected.

...The promoters fail to present the fact that ...large amount of revenue of the old com... ...nies comes from the banking departments ...these institutions, the interest on the ...curities invested producing a big income ...the old companies.

...Again, the older companies were built up ...ring the days when policy conditions were ...ld and equities of policyholders were not ...cognized as they are today. Many years ...competition was not as strong, business ...sier to get, commissions to agents were ...er, salaries to officers and employés were ...t so large, and the entire expense of opera... ...n was considerably less. Money earned a ...gher rate of interest than it does now. ...e insurance companies made considerable ...oney out of lapsed policies, and there were ...any more conditions that voided a policy ...violated than there are today.

Old Companies Firmly Rooted.

...Like many older corporations of other lines ...ey had the advantage of getting firmly ...oted in the soil long ago and gathering to... ...ther a magnificent business and plant at ...wer expenses.

...Insurance men are convinced that new com... ...nies cannot duplicate the records of the ...ast, at least for many years to come. The ...building process will take a long time—in ...fact, conditions are so different today from ...what they were in the past that newer com... ...panies require years to get anything like a ...ood start.

...Stockholders in many new companies find ...that the surplus is soon exhausted and they ...are called upon for more funds. These facts ...are not presented in the alluring prospectuses ...of the present day promotion.

...Promoters start a company in one city, bag ...the profits, and whirl away to another city ...to start a similar enterprise.

...The country banks are accused by many ...insurance men of being very lax in their ...methods in backing these enterprises.

...Promoters seek out the banks, establish ...connection with them, pay them a commis... ...sion on stock sold in the community and a ...commission on new business written. Banks ...take a small block of stock and the people ...looking to the bankers as authorities on in... ...vestments purchase the stock and find later ...on, to their sorrow, that the dividends are ...not forthcoming.

Want Banks to Withdraw.

...Insurance men believe that it is time for ...the bankers' associations to take this matter ...up and adopt some rules that will prohibit ...their members from engaging in enterprises ...of this kind whereby the public is deceived.

...President Bishop suggests that every or... ...ganization of insurance men establish a leg... ...islative committee and have for one of its ...objects the securing of a law that will give ...the state department proper supervision over ...promotion schemes. Superintendent of In... ...surance Potter of Illinois has expressed him... ...self strongly in favor of such a law.

...There are now seventeen or eighteen out... ...standing charters of life insurance companies ...in Illinois that are selling stock. Most ...of these are located in Chicago. As soon ...as New York passed its law, giving the de... ...partment supervision over promotions, the ...professional promoter sought Chicago as a ...base for operation.

Western Managers to Meet.

...The western managers of the western union ...companies will hold a meeting in Chicago to... ...day to discuss the order issued by the Minne... ...sota insurance department compelling west... ...ern union companies to give a pledge in writ... ...ing that they will not practice separation in ...local agencies. If a local agent represents a ...union company solely he is paid a graded ...commission of 15, 20, and 25 per cent. If he ...represents both union and nonunion com... panies the union company pays him 15 per cent flat.

It is optional with the local agent whether he shall accept the graded commission or continue to represent the nonunion companies and only secure 15 per cent flat compensation.

Commissioner Preus, on the authority of the attorney general, holds that the separation rule is in restraint of trade and is morally reprehensible. The attorney general in his opinion claims that it is the practice of the western union, where joint representation is involved, to compel such agents to sever their connection with the nonunion companies upon a threat that if he fails to do so his commission on the part of the union companies will be reduced.

The union managers contend that there is no law in Minnesota that prevents their system of paying agents. They deny that any threats or coercion have been used, and say that it is up to the agent to do as he chooses, without any pressure from headquarters.

Commission Rates in Court?

It is likely that the matter will be contested in the courts and an injunction will likely be applied for to restrain the insurance department of Minnesota from carrying out this order. Attorneys for the western union have gone carefully over the ground, and claim that there is nothing in the statute on which the attorney general or insurance commissioner can bar separation.

The separation issue is being raised in a number of states by the nonunion companies, which claim, in spite of what the officers and members of the western union state, local agents are subject to more or less coercion and pressure by the field men. Instances are recited by the nonunion companies showing that this is the case, and that agents, rather than lose their union companies, are forced to give up the nonunion companies, which they would not have done if extraordinary measures had not been used.

The insurance commissioner of Kansas recently issued an order prohibiting separation, and the matter has been raised in Missouri and Oklahoma. In both states the commissioners hold that they will not tolerate any form of oppression on the part of the union companies.

Barge Goes Ashore.

Port Colborne, Ont., Nov. 26.—[Special.]—The barge Edward Kelly, in tow of the tug T. C. Lutz, broke loose from the tug and went ashore south of the east breakwater. The crew was saved.

MONEY FLOWS IN; BONDS FAVORED

Return of Funds Loaned Abroad Furnishes Chance for Investment.

SIGNS OF BETTERMENT.

Outflow of Gold Doesn't Disturb Good Position in New York.

[NEW YORK TIMES FINANCIAL LEADER.]

New York, Nov. 26.—[Special.]—A good deal of the money New York bankers loaned in the Berlin market recently has been returned to this side, because of the decided improvement in the German and other European money markets during the last sixty days.

Much of the funds so returned to us has found employment, not in the money market, but in the purchase of bonds, the return on which is sufficiently above the current time money rates to lead institutions to make bond investments rather than to lend their money in the open market.

The result of this movement has been an important absorption of bonds, although this has proceeded quietly and without much surface indication of bond market activity.

This interesting shifting of funds from the foreign money market to the home bond market has not, however, exhausted the credits this market has established abroad, for many of the loans made have not matured.

Some Foreign Bills Still Carried.

In addition, some foreign bills are still being carried by our bankers, although the prevailing high rates of exchange have induced the withdrawal from abroad of part of the money our bankers had invested in long bills.

The increased demand for bonds reflects the same change for the better in general sentiment which has found expression in recent weeks in the improvement the stock market has shown. Last week's price changes were irregular, but the movement of the market on more than one occasion during the week showed that, except in isolated cases, there was little pressure of stocks upon the market.

This, at all events, was true until a somewhat sharp advance had led to profit taking and had called out increased supplies of stock.

Little Effect on Money Market.

A considerable additional amount of gold was taken for export last week for Canada and Argentina and for transfer for San Francisco, from where some gold may be exported to the orient.

The comfortable position of the banks at this center prevented this movement causing any material effect upon the money market, despite the reduction in surplus reserve, which rsulted from the gold outflow. This reduction, in fact, was much smaller than had been anticipated toward the close of last week, before the bank returns were published.

War a Factor on Berlin Bourse.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

BERLIN, Nov. 26.—The approach of settling day caused a noticeable desire to realize on the Berlin boerse at the end of the week. This inclination was stimulated through political considerations in connection with the Dardanelles question and the probability of the metal workers' strike assuming greater proportions. Stocks fell a few points. American securities remained firm, Canadian railways were in large demand, and quotations rose on Hamburg-Americans. North German Lloyd remained firm.

Paris Bourse Satisfactory.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

PARIS, Nov. 26.—Although business is much quieter than it was a few days ago the general tendency on the bourse has been satisfactory all the week. The more pacific tone of the German press, and general expectation that Sir Edward Grey's speech on Monday in reference to the Moroccan question will contribute to better feeling in Anglo-German relations, and the settlement of the Franco-Spanish differences, all have tended to inspire confidence. The chief features of the week were Rios Tintos and American Telephone and Telegraph, both of which closed firm. Settlement day is viewed without concern, money being plentiful.

Rates Harden in Europe.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

LONDON, Nov. 26.—There has been a general hardening of rates all over Europe during the week. Local and temporary influences have contributed to bring this about but the real causes are world wide.

First, there are the usual autumnal requirements, which, up to now, have been uncommonly little felt this year; but which are now beginning to assert themselves; second, there is the general recovery from the recent war scare, and third, the large gold shipments from New York.

But financial enterprise must remain somewhat depressed until better diplomatic relations are restored with Germany. On the stock exchange there has been a more hopeful feeling throughout the week than for some time, and business has increased.

LIFE SAVERS RESCUE MANY.

Forty-seven Persons Taken from Water Peril During Season of Milwaukee Station.

Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 26. — Forty-seven lives were saved during the season of the local life saving station, according to the report of Capt. Ingar Olsen, issued today. The rescues include those mostly from capsized small craft.

WETS AND DRYS IN ALLIANCE; BOTH WOULD ABOLISH LICENSE.

Single Taxers in Willard Hall Told of Oregon Situation—Speaker Praises Rule of British.

Single taxers in convention at Willard hall yesterday were told by William S. U'Ren of Oregon that the saloonkeepers and prohibitionists of his state had joined forces to fight for a reform by which each faction hopes to put the other out of business. The Y. M. C. A. also is urging the reform, which will abolish saloon licenses, allowing dramshops to operate without paying a city tax.

By abolishing the license the prohibitionists hope to draw the saloon from under its political protection, while the saloon-keepers declare that with the decrease in expenses the abolition of license will bring they can afford to conduct saloons in such a fashion that the prohibition movement will lose support.

"Our ancestors," said U'Ren, "fought to escape the laws of England, but in this generation we find thousands going to Canada every year and claiming the liberty they find under the British rule. The Pacific coast is waking up, as are also Missouri, Ohio, Rhode Island, and others, but we are still behind Canada."

John Z. White of Pennsylvania told the members of the National Single Tax league that the cries for trust busting, corporation control, and reciprocity showed shortsightedness. He said the voters should first seek the referendum, and then they could correct existing evils as they pleased, without having to harangue the legislators for reforms.

THRONGS DRAWN BY KANSAS CORN

Four Prize Varieties on Exhibition at Land Show in Coliseum.

STATE NOT REPRESENTED.

Farmers Individually Send Products; Best Taken from Small Town Fair.

The banner corn exhibit of the land show is to be found in the Kansas booth at the Coliseum. Four varieties, which have no equal for size in any state booth, are corded up like stove wood in the booth and all the samples were raised in Jackson county, Kas.

The Kansas exhibit of products is notable in another respect. No state offers as wide a variety of products from irrigated and nonirrigated lands. Every variety of hay, grain, and vegetable, from mammoth watermelon to the champion fifth cutting of alfalfa hay on nonirrigated land, is on exhibition. The show was crowded again yesterday and each visitor was given a Michigan lot.

Kansas had no "bumper" corn and wheat crop this year, so the state authorities thought it not worth while to make an appropriation for a land show exhibit, but a few of the farmers of the state thought differently, and they "threw together" a few products from the Kansas farms and came to Chicago.

Show Almost Passed Up.

"There isn't any doubt but that Kansas will have one of the finest exhibits of the show next year," Frank H. Chase of Hoyt, Kas., said last evening. "The state made a great mistake by not making a big showing here this year. The big corn that we have here—the finest by far of any in the Coliseum—was picked from a little town fair that we had at Hoyt.

Proud of School System.

"We've got some 65-bushel-to-the-acre wheat here and some 100-bushel-to-the-acre oats, all raised without irrigation on Jackson county land that can be bought for from $40 to $75 an acre. The irrigated products are here, also, chiefly sugar beets from Gray county, where the land is reasonable in price and the prouts good."

The Kansas boosters at the show have a big talking point aside from hogs and alfalfa and corn and wheat—that is the Kansas schools, which they declare to be the best in the country. And they show the figures which indicate that there is a higher per centage of Kansas children going to school than in any other state in the union.

Baby Given California Lot.

"Baby Frank," who was born at the land show on Saturday, has been unofficially adopted by California. Wilber C. Wall and Richard DeV. Bessac, representatives of San Joaquin county, Cal., decided the "land show baby" should become a San Joaquin baby, so they presented him yesterday with a lot in Stockton, the seat of their county. The lot is worth $500 and will increase in value as Frank grows.

The Louisiana exhibit commission appointed by Gov. Sanders has announced a big program for Louisiana day on Dec. 2. A five acre farm of newly reclaimed land, worth $100 an acre, within twenty miles of New Orleans, will be awarded to some one in the crowd which attends. One hundred acres in the north central part of the state will be split up in five or ten acre tracts and be given away at the land show on Louisiana day.

NO CASH PAYMENT DOWN.
We are selling forty acre farms near Monticello, Jefferson county, Northern Florida, on a basis that enables purchaser to pay for land out of crops in five years. The only condition is that purchaser must move on to land at once. He must have sufficient capital to purchase his equipment and construct necessary buildings. We will help purchaser to get money to produce cotton crop. Land now ready for plow. The land is what is familiarly known as high hammock—the best in south country, high and rolling.

The Source of Wealth.
It is rightly maintained that the soil is the source of all wealth and the "Back to the Land" movement has no stronger influence behind it than the immense possibilities of Pecan culture, with small production cost and large profits.
Based on returns, the worth of an acre in Pecans in full bearing, is $1,000.
You can buy a grove from us at a low price and on easy terms, and we care for it until it is ready to bear. Sound good? Ask about it. A card will do.

HOUSTON
Where the railroads meet the sea, is building a great city whose destiny is linked with the Panama canal. She holds the key to the Gulf that unlocks the gateway, letting in and out the foreign commerce of the world to the greater part of the United States. Fortunes are made here in short time on real estate investments. ALDINE is only 10 miles from Houston and is one of the most desirable suburban communities for investment or residence, being admirably located as regards soil, water, drainage, school, markets, transportation. The best fig orchards and largest fig preserving plant in Texas are found here. Orange groves and other fruits and vegetables grow nicely. Poultry and dairy farming, as well as general farming, is successfully conducted here. Lands are now cheap and may be bought on reasonable terms. Small tracts of 5 and 10 acres may be had for $1 per acre cash and $1 per acre per month until fully paid. Town lots and land together sell for small cash payment and balance monthly. Prairie land fenced rents for $10 per acre cash. Large tracts may be had on usual terms. Titles perfect. Write today for full particulars free.

STRICTLY CONFIDENTIAL. MASON FINANCIAL COMPANY, BANKERS TO SALARIED PEOPLE, 105 W. MONROE-ST., ROOM 502, SOUTHWEST CORNER OF CLARK-ST. TEL. CENTRAL 3516.

I APPRECIATE ACCOUNTS OF HONORABLE people [men employed or in business, ladies with allowances from their husbands or income from other sources] who, while not in a position to borrow money from a bank, realize that exorbitant interest charged by professional money lenders is high and extortionate. I am connected with the Indiana Loan, Credit and Trust Company of Chicago, co-partners, 4303 Grand-blvd., and, having private means of my own, I am willing to loan money with or without security and at a considerate but a trifle above bank rates, and never more than the interest legalized by the states of Massachusetts and Rhode Island, the precise rates being determined by the amount loaned and risk assumed. My location [15 minutes from loop district via South Side elevated] assures a privacy not possible to those who deal with brokers in downtown office buildings, where lenders congregate. Always best to telephone Drexel 54 for private appointment. Ask for MR. S.

BUSINESS MAN HAS A SPECIAL FUND TO LEND OUT; HE PREFERS TO DEAL WITH GENTLEMEN AND LADIES OF GOOD STANDING, WHO WILL APPRECIATE CONFIDENTIAL AND COURTEOUS TREATMENT.

HIGH GRADE SALARIED EMPLOYES, BUSINESS MEN, AND LADIES OF REPUTABLE FAMILIES WILL BE ACCOMMODATED.

WHENEVER NECESSARY, HE WILL PERSONALLY CALL ON PROSPECTIVE BORROWERS; IF YOU DESIRE A PERSONAL INTERVIEW, OR WISH HIM TO CALL UPON YOU, PHONE RANDOLPH 2805 AND ASK FOR MR. BLAIR.

Why Not Give Your Wife An Electric Washing Machine?

Too suggestive of utility, do you say? But just look at it from your wife's viewpoint. If the maid does the washing, then a Washing Machine will make it easier to retain her. If she is wanting a maid, it will be easier to secure one. If a laundress is now employed, your wife can save that worry and expense—and the considerable wear and tear on clothes.

Saves Time, Worry, Work, and Money—Makes the Clothes Wear Longer

The Electric Washing Machine simplifies wash day. The maid puts clothes, hot water and soap in the machine—switches on the electricity—goes about her ordinary housework. When the clothes are washed she runs them through the Electric Wringer and hangs them to dry. There is no slop, fuss, muss, or worry—and no work. A few cents worth of electricity is the only expense.

In the Appliance Room may be seen all the best makes of Electric Washing Machines at prices from $60 up. Over 2000 things electrical for gifts.
